Indonesia, Dutch Chiefs Agree to Call Plebiscite

East Indies Parley Designed to Set Political Status of 40 Million People

Batavia, Java, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—Indonesian and Dutch leaders agreed today to call a plebiscite in the East Indies either this year or next to determine whether 40 million Indonesians want to join a separate Indonesian republic or the Dutch-sponsored United States of Indonesia.

Indonesian Republicans also agreed to recognize Netherlands sovereignty in the East Indies until power is transferred to the United States of Indonesia. The proposals were two of six signed today and handed to both sides by the United Nations committee of good offices Saturday after a truce was declared.

Although the proposal provides for an election within six months to one year "of the signing of this agreement," Dutch circles doubted it will take place in 1948. They pointed out it will take four or five months more to iron out political differences; then six months, possibly a year to prepare for the plebiscite.

Commenting on the plebiscite, a U. N. source said, "we realize it is a difficult task and unprecedented in United Nations history. Approximately 40 million people will vote. Despite obstacles, we place great faith in its outcome." The U. N. committee will have observers at the voting.

The proposal explained that the voting will "determine whether the populations of the various territories, Java, Madura, Sumatra, wish their territory to form a part of the Republic of Indonesia or another state within the United States of Indonesia."

Upon acceptance the U. N. committee agreed to a Dutch request that subcommittees be created to deal in detail with preparation of the political agreement between the Dutch and Republicans.

Committees on future defense, foreign relations, economics and finance as well as on such political matters as the plebiscite will be formed, reliable sources said.

India, Pakistan Okay Kashmir Mediation

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 19 (U.P.).—India and Pakistan agreed today to United Nations mediation of their dispute over the state of Kashmir, a reliable source disclosed.

The agreement was reached at a 2½-hour private meeting of Indian and Pakistan representatives and Fernand Van Langenhove of Belgium, chairman of the U. N. Security Council, it was said.

Van Langenhove will ask the Security Council to set the mediation machinery in motion tomorrow. He will present a resolution calling for a three-nation U. N. commission to leave for Kashmir immediately.

Calls for Prompt Mediation

The resolution, it was learned, will try to hedge on Indian-Pakistan differences over the scope of the mediation. Pakistan originally wanted U. N. to intervene in all Pakistan-Indian differences; India wanted only mediation of the fight over the state of Kashmir.

Persons who attended today's meeting indicated that the resolution called for prompt mediation of the Kashmir dispute, and left the way open for possible U. N. intervention in other matters later.

These sources were optimistic that the plan would sail through the Security Council without too much controversy.

Under the plan, India would

Prosecution Rests, Murphy Testifies Today

His Personnel Rotation Made Firemen 'Go to Pieces', Witness Says

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

After six days of testimony, prosecution in the trial of Fire Chief Murphy yesterday rested its case and Murphy will take the stand today as first defense witness.

One of the final prosecution witnesses said Murphy's system of personnel rotation, which allegedly reduced efficiency, caused firemen to "go to pieces" on the fireground at a blaze in October, 1946.

Effect of the personnel transfers, broadest of 10 charges against Murphy, has brought varying opinions from those taking the witness stand against their chief.

Werheim Makes Charge

Another highlight of yesterday's proceedings was a charge by Battalion Chief John L. Werheim that he believed a form for reporting condition of units was deliberately changed on September 1, 1947, to include the condition of morale, so it could be used in the present trial.

The proceedings are limited from March 1, 1946, when Murphy took office, to September 1, 1947, when the charges were drawn.

Werheim's statement came in answer to a question by Trial Board Member Joseph A. Wilner.

Closing of the prosecution's case ruled out any appearance by Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, who touched off the charges against Murphy at the Capitol last June.

William J. Rowan, Conroy's attorney, said Conroy unsuccessfully made a "qualified request" to appear on the "demoralization charge," but Rowan said Conroy did not seek to testify that the fire department is inefficient. Rowan said Conroy accused Murphy, not the department, of inefficiency.

18-Degree Low Forecast Here This Morning

Another serving of shivers is in store for Washington and the suburbs this morning.

The mercury is expected to settle to a frigid 18 in the city and a still more frigid 10 in the outlying sections.

Even these temperatures will be a relief from the 13 recorded yesterday on the official thermometer at 6:58 a. m. This equaled the winter's lowest mark, set last Thursday. One resident near the American University reported 10 degrees about 7 a. m.

Near Zero in Suburbs

In the suburbs, the temperature skidded within a shade of the zero mark yesterday morning. Rock Creek Forest, Md., just north of the District line, reported a reading of 1 above.

The Weather Bureau said the temperature reached its high mark of 28 in Washington at 3:24 p. m. yesterday. This morning's low temperatures will be followed by warmer weather and considerable cloudiness. The temperature will ascend to about 34 during the day.

Fuel Saving Adopted

The continuing cold spell here yesterday prompted the District Commissioners to adopt President Truman's fuel saving program for the District.

Heat in District government buildings will be kept to a maximum of 68 degrees in daytime and 60 degrees at night.

J. Thomas Kennedy, superintendend of Weights and Measures, who heads a coordinating committee set up to conserve fuel oil in the District, said the committee will meet in his office at 2 p. m. Friday to discuss full implementation of the program. Representatives of the fuel oil industry will attend the meeting.

Kennedy said he will ask the

Laughlin Defense Charges Nurse Performed Abortion

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A prosecution witness yesterday was accused of performing the abortion for which Attorney James J. Laughlin and Dr. Henry L. Peckham are standing trial in District Court.

The charge was hurled by Defense Attorney T. Emmett McKenzie at Mrs. Irma Petrain, a nurse of 2215 H st. nw., during cross-examination. She earlier had testified she received $300 from Laughlin with which to pay a physician.

Mrs. Petrain had described how she and Hubert Stottlemyer, an acquaintance, drove Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, Laughlin's former sweetheart, to the vicinity of Dr. Peckham office when McKenzie asked:

"Did you by any chance just walk her (Mrs. Hobbs) around the corner then take her back to your home and commit the abortion there?" McKenzie boomed.

"Definitely no," Mrs. Petrain replied hotly.

". . . and when the deal got hot," McKenzie demanded, heedless of her denial. . . . "when it got dangerous did you summon the

Hagana Kills 5 in Raids on Arab Towns

Mass Burial Rites Held for 35 Jews, Including American, Slain in Ambush

Jerusalem, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—Jewish attacks on Arab villages killed five Arabs today as mass burial rites were held for 35 members of Hagana, including one American student, who were slain in an Arab ambush last Friday.

In the port city of Haifa Jewish and Arab workers clashed on the crowded docks and military sources said one Jew was stabbed to death. The unofficial death toll since the November 29 United Nations decision to partition Palestine mounted to 901.

An Egyptian Arab, a woman and a 12-year-old girl were killed at noon when Jews in a speeding truck hurled a bomb into the Arab village of Sarafand el Amr, the airport city of Lydda, then sprayed the villagers with gunfire.

Two Arabs Killed, Six Wounded

Two other Arabs were killed and six wounded in a half hour pre-dawn Bren gun and rifle attack on Tamara, inland from the Bay of Acre.

One Jew died in an Arab attack on a convoy leaving Jerusalem for Tel Aviv. An Arab was killed when armed occupants of another Jewish convoy replied to Arab sniper fire from the Sheikh Jarrah quarter north of Jerusalem.

Twenty masked men identified as members of the Jewish Irgun Zvai Leumi terrorist organization raided several Palestine government departments in Tel Aviv today and escaped with "considerable" government property including maps of Palestine, printing machines and 500 pairs of shoes, dispatches said.

The 35 members of Hagana, the Jewish militia, were buried in Kfar Etzion, a Jewish settlement in the Judean hills south of Bethlehem.

Arab Group Scorns U. N. Commission

Lake Success, L. I., Jan. 19 (NYHT).—The Arab Higher Committee of Palestine today told the United Nations Palestine Commission that it does not recognize the U. N. partition decision or "anything deriving therefrom."

The unmistakable meaning of the last three words was that the Arab Higher Committee does not recognize the U. N. commission which is now planning its formidable assignment of going to Palestine to try to put into effect the partition decision.

The Arab Higher Committee message was received in reply to a cable of January 9 in which Secretary General Trygve Lie invited the Palestine Arabs to supply the commission with a liaison officer.

The British and the Jewish agency for Palestine already have accepted similar invitations. Today's message of noncompliance from the Arab committee asserted that that body was "determined to persist in rejecting partition."

Meanwhile, the World Jewish Congress asked the U. N. Economic Buenos Aires, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—The port workers union started a two-day strike today, reducing harbor activities to about half of normal.

Food Strikes Spreading to U. S. Zone

Workers in Ruhr Now Threatening General Walkout Beginning Friday

Berlin, Germany, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—Strikes in protest against food conditions spread to the American occupation zone today and workers in the Ruhr threatened a general strike Friday unless the situation improved.

As in last week's big strikes in the British-occupied Ruhr, there was no indication whether the strikes were entirely due to the food shortage or were Communist-inspired as part of the "Protocol M" plot to wreck the Marshall Plan.

More than 2000 workers in Wiesbaden-Biebrich walked out, protesting against the halving of the local fat ration, in the first such strike in the United States zone. Ohers—their number not immediately estimated—engaged in a sit-down strike.

In Kassel, at the northern extremity of the American zone, Paul Pfetzing, chairman of city labor unions, said the situation of his 65,000 men was "critical."

Needs Only a Push

"It will take only a slight push to bring the same reaction as in the Ruhr," he said.

In Munich, also in the American zone and the third largest city in Germany, Lorenz Hagen, president of Bavarian unions, predicted widespread strikes tomorrow because the Bavarian government today rejected a labor ultimatum to tighten up rationing and close down luxury cafes.

The chief strikes in Wiesbaden-Biebrich were in a chemical plant and a transparent paper factory. City gas works employes struck in sympathy but remained in their plants.

As workers became more restive, one of the few instances of violence since the end of the war in the fight for political power was reported from Passau in Bavaria. Two Communist leaders were beaten so severely Saturday night by a group of nine youths that they were sent to a hospital. Earlier youths threw stones through windows of the homes of 17 Communists.

Reds to Fight Merger

Russian Marshall Vassily Sokolovsky intends to open tomorrow, at a meeting of the Big Four Allied Control Council here, a bitter fight against the merger of the United States and British occupation zones. It was understood Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander, is prepared for a showdown if Sokolovsky asserts that because of the merger the United States and Great Britain have no right to remain in Berlin.

Immediately after the meeting, whether a crisis occurs or not, Clay intends to proceed at once to Tempelhof and take off for Washington in his personal plane with Ambassador Robert Murphy, his chief political adviser. Clay and Murphy are to appear before a congressional committee.

Clay is to open tomorrow's Allied Control Council with a brief formal report on the Anglo-American decision to set up a German governmental regime, with full power in economic questions, in the western occupational zones.

Jim Crow Law School Unacceptable, Says Negro Leader

Oklahoma City, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—The Oklahoma State regent for higher education today established a Negro school of law in Oklahoma City as a branch of Langston Negro University, but a Negro leader said immediately that there would be "no acceptance of a Jim Crow law school."

The school was established after the Supreme Court of the United States ordered Oklahoma to provide equal law school facilities for Negroes as soon as for white persons. Oklahoma's constitution requires separate schools.

Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old Negro woman who sought for two years in the courts a decision to permit her to enter the University of Oklahoma law school, filed application to enroll this morning. She would make no comment on the regents' action.

Roscoe Dunjee, a national director for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, said the regent decision was a surprise. He made the statement that there would be no acceptance of the Jim Crow school.

The new law school must be established by next Monday to meet

Appeals of Jailed Countess, Japanese Farmer Ruled Upon

By Dillard Stokes

A flood of eight opinions in two close cases yesterday threw the basic disunity of the Supreme Court into harsh relief.

The judges gave four more opinions, in two other cases. Their fine distinctions left the courtroom public in a fog and clear-cut decision of other close questions that are before them open to doubt.

Here is what was plain in 115 pages of judicial prose:

1. The State of California may not use laws that do not apply to other races to take a farm away from an American-born Japanese boy.

2. But the court—against the wishes of four judges and to the bewilderment of three more—shied away from holding the anti-Japanese California land laws were against the Constitution.

3. Without getting together on a majority opinion, the justices upheld the claim of Countess Marianna von Moltke that she may have been wrongfully denied a lawyer when she was jailed for a German spy plot. Four judges

Baruch Urges Control Of Prices and Wages For Effective Aid Job

Statesman's Blueprint

Text of 11-Point Baruch Plan For Foreign Aid, Price Curbs

Here is the text of the 11-point program recommended by Bernard M. Baruch to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

1. The United States stand ready to buy all non-perishable raw materials produced anywhere and by anyone in the world for the next five years, and which cannot find normal commercial markets: minerals, metals and ores, both crude and refined; jute, sisal, etc., yes, even wool and cotton. Also up to 750,000 tons of crude rubber. This should be made part of the European recovery legislation.

2. Extend the President's present tariff authority for the next three years.

3. That the countries of Europe—as many as are willing—band themselves into a political, economic and defense union under the United Nations. This would include the lowering of trade barriers among them.

4. That the United States, and such others as will join us, mutually guarantee the nations entering this union against aggression. By guaranteeing I mean a firm promise to go to war in joint defense if any of them are attacked.

5. That the European nations organize to liberate and use every productive resource of the continent, with those of the Ruhr regulated under priorities and international control so as to protect the peaceful interests of Germany's neighbors.

6. Stabilize all European currencies and establish realistic rates of exchange.

7. Atwo-year production drive in this country—to work for peace as we worked for war—where feasible, with longer hours and overtime; where not, to smash production bottlenecks.

8. As part of this work-for-peace drive, an across-the-Nation anti-inflation program to stabilize for peace, including:
(a) Reduction of major food and agricultural prices in exchange for guaranteeing farmers an assured price for their crops for the next three years, with ample soil conservation.
(b) In return for this rollback, stabilization of wages.
c) Restoration of the excess profits tax by 50 per cent of the cut

Asks Guarantee Against Aggressor For 16 Nations in Marshall Plan

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Bernard M. Baruch urged Congress yesterday to enact a sweeping anti-inflation program at home as a supplement to the Marshall Plan abroad.

"If we are to undertake a European Recovery Program, let us do it well," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in words that recalled Secretary Marshall's disputed statement to the same group 10 days ago.

But he defined "doing it well" to include anti-inflation measures so broad and so drastic that they would be felt by every segment of the American people.

Two-Year Bar on Tax Cuts

He called, among other things, for no tax reduction for the next two years; for restoring half the cut made in the excess profits tax at the end of the war; for a three-year guarantee of farm prices at lower than present levels, and for labor's agreement to seek no more wage increases.

In an extension of the Administration's proposals to buy $2,165,000,000 worth of Marshall Plan supplies outside the United States in the next 15 months, he suggested offering to buy any nonperishable goods available anywhere in the world for the next five years.

He went even further with a proposal to guarantee the 16 Marshall Plan countries against aggression, presumably under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter, which permits regional arrangements for mutual defense.

Would Dramatize Link

It was a program intended to dramatize what Baruch called the "Siamese twin" connection between domestic and foreign policy, and perhaps also to take the committee's breath away. The Senators on the committee gave little hint, however, of having been shaken or swayed.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) with a smile, complimented the white-haired financier on his "message on the state of the union." Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) an old friend and admirer of Baruch, declined to ask a single question during the hearing, but told reporters later that he opposed restoring the excess profits tax.

"You couldn't take 85 cents out of every corporation dollar and have any production left," said George, the ranking Democratic member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) said he had been wrong in voting to scrap the wartime excess profits tax, and called Baruch's statement "bold and incisive."

Costs, Main Question

Other members of the Foreign Relations Committee had little to ask Baruch about his anti-inflation proposals, but asked him chiefly the same questions that have arisen in every hearing on the Marshall Plan—questions about the cost of the program and the methods of administering it.

As to the cost, Baruch firmly declined to commit himself, with the plea that he had no way of judging the right figure. As to the management of the plan, he offered in some detail a compromise between the Administration's proposals and the rival scheme sponsored by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.).

Baruch would set up an independent operating agency, "something like the TVA," perhaps in corporate form, with a single administrator in charge. The administrator would be advised by

5500 Housing Units Sought For Low-Pay Families Here

Post Reporter

Five District organizations yesterday asked Congress to empower the National Capital Housing Authority to build 5500 housing units here to meet the emergency needs of low income families.

This plea was put before the Senate-House Committee on Housing which heard a day-long parade of 35 witnesses on the critical housing shortage from coast to coast.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady, secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, lashed out a congressional treatment of migratory workers, and warned that if family life in the United States is to be preserved the Government must provide public housing for families who can't afford anything else.

Admiral Oscar Badger, commandant of the Eleventh Naval District, said that if Congress doesn't act—and speedily—to relieve the housing shortage in the San Diego area, he will have to recommend moving much of the fleet from the harbor—a move he said which certainly is not in the interest of the national defense. But the housing situation, he said, is "catastrophic," and if he has to order the eviction of hundreds of families of sea-going men to make room for the shore-based families it will be a "bombshell" to the morale of the whole fleet.

The five groups from the District who testified yesterday included: The Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters; the Citizens Council for Community Planning, Inc.; Washington Section, National Council of Jewish Women; Washington Chapter for Democratic Action; and the National Capital Housing Authority.

From 20,000 to 30,000 families in Washington need low-income

GOP Leaders Plan to Revise Tax Cut Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Republican leaders last night called a tax reduction clinic today on the 5.6-billion-dollar Knutson bill to sweat it down to House passage size.

More than a billion in tax cuts is expected to be scaled from the measure before it gets a GOP steering committee okay.

Republicans moved into tax action on the leadership level as the House Ways and Means Committee concluded two days of hearings on the oversized Knutson bill.

Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman backed up the President's stand against any net cut in revenue with this warning to the committee. "Our economy is in an inflationary situation and . . . sound policy demands that the level of taxation be maintained."

Republican Ways and Means committeemen, wooing the votes of Representative Robert L. Doughton (N.C.) and other Democratic advocates of some tax reduction now, will caucus this morning in

Schwellenbach May Intervene In Federal Cafeteria Strike

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach was considering taking a hand in the GSI cafeteria dispute yesterday as eight more persons were arrested in new outbreaks of picket line violence.

Following a 40-minute conference between Schwellenbach and six ministers, it became evident that the Secretary of Labor intends to intervene, perhaps tonight, in the 15-day-old strike against 42 Government Services cafeterias.

Dr. Robert W. Brooks, who headed the delegation from the Interdenominational Ministers Alliance of Washington and Vicinity, told The Washington Post:

"The Secretary told us he is certainly working on it. He is doing all he can and asked us to give him until tomorrow night to see if a plan he has will work out."

The ministers, who said they represent about 200,000 Negroes in Greater Washington, were hopeful that Schwellenbach could effect some settlement of the dispute. They had called on him because of their concern over "the effects of this prolonged strike upon the social welfare of the per-

Greek Army Lifts Siege of Platonos

At White House

Children's World Aid Funds Asked

By The Associated Press

Some 7,215,000 European and Chinese children who are slated to get their single daily full meal for the next six months through the International Emergency Children's Fund, won't get even that unless more money is forthcoming.

Funds on hand can carry the international children's aid only through June, Mrs. Donald B. Sinclair of Ottawa, told a day-long White House meeting yesterday o. men and women from 26 American agencies engaged in postwar relief.

Yesterday's meeting was called to plan a drive for 60 million dollars from American donors to be divided between the children's fund and several health and self-help programs for adults.

Overseas Aid Merged

Of the total, 70.3 per cent will go to the children, the meeting heard from William L. Batt, industrialist, who is working with the American Overseas Aid, an agency which has merged the programs of various overseas relief agencies.

Children's fund staff workers have reported that between 20 million and 30 million children in Europe and China need both food and medical care to bring them to normal health. Funds on hand are permitting aid for only 3,715,000 children in Europe and 3,500,000 in China. Most funds are going to Greece, Italy, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia.

Representative Herter (R., Mass.) told the meeting that the children's fund has many friends in Congress.

"If you find the row of private charity too hard to hoe, give us a chance. There is infinitely more value in such a program as this, with its personal touch, than in all the big economic programs now planned," Herter said.

Other Nations Help

Paul White of the United Nations staff said "other nations are organizing similar campaigns, to start in February, and it now appears aid of various sorts will be given by 43 nations. The world campaign will be called the Crusade for Children.

The meeting elected the following officers for the American drive: Mrs. Oswald Lord, New York, chairman, to be aided by the following vice chairmen, Gardner Cowles, jr., Des Moines; Leo Perlis of the CIO; Clarence Pickett, Philadelphia, from the American Friends' Service Committee; Mrs. De Forest Van Slyck, Washington, and Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, Washington. Alger Hiss of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace will be secretary-treasurer.

Soviet Doubles Oil Price For Austria

Vienna, Jan. 19 (NYHT).—Russia's first concrete attack on the Marshall Plan in Austria was contained today in a demand that the Austrian government pay 100 per cent more for all fuel oil products delivered from the Soviet-controlled Zistersdorf oil fields.

The demands built up in weekend proposals carried the threat, authoritative sources said, of halting all oil and gasoline deliveries immediately if the new price increase was not accepted.

The Zistersdorf fields, among the richest in Europe, were seized by the Russians as German assets in 1945. Under disputed but direct Russian control since, they lie in eastern Austria. The Zistersdorf fields supply about 70 per cent of all Austria's basic fuel oil needs.

The Russian price ultimatum carried by the Soviet deputy commander, Col. Gen. Alexis Zheltov, to Chancellor Leopold Gigl, places the Austrian cabinet in a grave position when it meets tomorrow to ponder a decision.

Refusal to go along with the new increase will shut down most of Austria's industries. Vehicular transport, especially important for the distribution of food, will grind to a halt. Electric power, now carefully hoarded for the average consumer, will be cut.

The only other source Austria has for fuel oil is from the United States Army, which has furnished between 4000 and 5000 tons a month at a cost of $200,000 monthly. Broken down, the American charge is $55 a ton, while the Soviet's price now is $93 a ton. With the increase, Austria would pay nearly $200 a ton in local currency pegged at 10 schillings to the dollar.

Pounds Retreating Guerillas With Artillery, Mortars

Athens, Jan. 19 (AP).—Counter-attacking Greek army troops lifted the siege of Platonos and pounded retreating guerilla units with artillery and mortar fire, front advices said today.

At least 407 guerillas were reported killed on that battleground in south central Greece and in scattered engagements in the northern part of the country.

The guerilla force of 1500 to 2000 men engaged at Platonos was said to have fallen back in disorder when Athens government troops from Agrinion, 20 miles to the west, joined the defenders of the town and promptly launched an assault against the insurgents' positions.

300 Rebels Killed

Press dispatches said 300 rebels were killed. One report said total casualties were 1000 and that 100 had been captured. There was no official confirmation of the casualty figures.

In northern Greece, the Third Army Corps said 23 guerillas had been killed, four captured and 25 wounded in Macedonia since noon Sunday.

The Ministry of Public Order, giving additional details of the battle which took place three days ago along the Nestos River northeast of Drama, said 50 rebels were killed and others were wounded in a 30-hour battle there. The ministry said the 400 men in that guerilla force came from Bulgaria.

Another report told of the finding of 15 guerilla dead and considerable supplies north of Drama, near the Bulgarian frontier.

North of Salonika, guerillas moving from near the Bulgarian border lost eight killed and 14 captured. Two Greek army soldiers were killed and five wounded.

Peasant Exiles Ask Support Against Reds

By R. H. Shackford
United Press Reporter

The International Peasant Union, made up of former eastern European officials who escaped from that Communist dominated area, yesterday appealed to the United States, Great Britain and France to help it organize an "international democratic front" to combat the Soviet-dominated Cominform.

The union also announced at a press conference, after an all-day meeting of its central committee, the "official participation" of the Polish National Peasant movement and the active membership of its leader, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who recently escaped from Poland.

"Unilateral action on the part of the Soviet Union has resulted in the destruction in the international agreements of Yalta, Potsdam and Moscow," the union said in a declaration. "It is high time for the democratic powers to admit openly this state of affairs and take the necessary steps to prevent its adverse consequences."

Bulgarian G. M. Dimitrov said that "necessary steps" meant support of the democratic international front "as soon as possible."

The union said its first aim was emancipation of the peoples of eastern Europe from "Red dictatorships."

"However," it added, "it has also in view an adequate international organization based on a new spirit of understanding and collaboration capable of supplying the conditions conducive to the federation not only of the small nations exposed to imperialistic aggression but eventually of the whole of Europe . . .

"We appeal to all democratic movements to assist us in the struggle of freedom and democracy—in ordder that a potent international democratic front come into being to second the aims of the United Nations as well as the efforts of world democratic forces of the United States, Great Britain and France, and thus secure a peaceful democratic world."

The "brutal persecution" of agrarian and peasant leaders in eastern Europe by the Soviets, the union said, was an admission by the Soviets that those movements are the "main antagonists to the realization of the plans of Soviet imperialism."

The union is supporting the Marshall recovery plan but warned that its total success might be dependent upon participation of eastern Europe.

Italian Reds Deny They Plan Uprising

Rome, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—Communist Chief Palmiro Togliatti today scoffed at reports his party will block the general elections in April with an armed uprising and predicted Communists and Socialists together will win a legitimate victory at the polls.

Moscow-trained Togliatti delivered the keynote address at the opening of the "leftwing" Socialist national convention before 1000 delegates, including 600 from nine foreign countries.

"We Communists have great confidence in our forces and we listen with scorn to reports which say we are planning a coup de main to prevent the elections," Togliatti declared.

Togliatti's assurance that Communists are willing to take their chances at the polls apparently was motivated by persistent reports that Communists will resort to revolution if they believe they are going to lose in nation-wide balloting.

Togaliatti handled with tact the convention's hottest issue—renewal of the Socialist Party's "unity of action" pact with the Communists. It was this pact last year that caused the Socialist Party to split in two groups. Leftwingers under Pietro Nenni cooperated with Communists; rightwingers under Giuseppe Saragat repudiated the pact.

First Emergency Appeal

Kennedy envisions a stockpile of 130,000 gallons of No. 2 oil and about 10,000 gallons of No. 1 oil, which is kerosene.

He disclosed that his committee received its first emergency appeal from a homeowner in Southeast Washington yesterday. The homeowner received 50 gallons of kerosene when investigation showed his dealer had shut off his supply.

Ice was reported thickening fast in the upper Chesapeake, with Coast Guard icebreakers on duty to keep the channels open. Two to 3 inches of ice were reported in the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal.

The temperature drop here in Washington gave ice skaters their first chance of the season to skate at the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool.

However, Park Police discontinued the skating at 3 p. m. yesterday because the sun had made the ice too soft. Skating may be allowed this morning if the ice is thick enough.

Nationally, the cold wave which sent temperatures tumbling as low as 40 degrees below zero in parts of the northeast has caused at least 36 deaths.

An unofficial 40 below was reported at both Orson, Pa., and Lyndonville, Vt. Readings of 20 below or colder were common throughout Pennsylvania, New York and New England.

On Foreign Affairs

Bevin to Tell British Policy To Commons

London, Jan. 19 (AP).—Informed sources said today Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will tell the House of Commons Thursday of the changes in British policy necessitated by the successive failures of the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference.

His speech will open a two-day foreign affairs debate in which Prime Minister Attlee also will participate. Observers said the Prime Minister may answer members of the Labor Party's extreme left wing who oppose Bevin on the ground he is hostile to Russia and too closely aligned with the United States.

Bevin's statement is expected to deal with the broad outline of British policy, making little if any mention of what the nation specifically plans to do.

The informants said he will discuss the Greek situation, the communal strife in Palestine and the general political picture in Europe where Communists have tightened their grip on nations within the Russian sphere of influence.

In his reference to Palestine, the Foreign Secretary may amplify an official disclosure last week that many of the British troops to be evacuated from the Holy Land will be sent to Cyprus.

Cyprus, just off the coast of Turkey, and Malta have strategic importance in relation to Greece and the Dardanelles—two sore points in relations between Russia and the West.

Md. U. Seeks U.S. Funds For Psychiatric Unit

The University of Maryland hopes that more than half the Federal hospital construction funds available to the State this year will be assigned to the university's proposed psychiatric unit in Baltimore, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president, said yesterday.

Byrd pointed out that approximately $950,000 in State funds will be available for the project, which is expected to cost $1,250,000. He said that unless the Federal funds are received, the plans would have to be carried out on a "reduced basis."

The Government has allotted Maryland $870,300 for the year.

Troops Rushed To Colombia Trouble Zone

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 19 (AP).—President Mariano Ospina Perez called military reservists today for duty in Santander Del Norte Province where Conservative and Liberal Party members have been battling each other for the past week.

The northern province, adjacent to the Venezuelan border, has been placed under martial law. The reservists will reinforce Colombian troops sent into the mountainous region to halt the fighting.

Press dispatches from the troubled province said political opponents there were hunting each other with small arms and setting fire to homes in rural districts.

An exodus of women and children from the towns of Salazar and Durania was in progress.

Gen. Gustave Matamoros, named by the president as civil and military governor of the province, is expected to reach the scene of the fighting tomorrow.

Manuel Buenahora, who resigned as civil governor, blamed leaders of the opposition liberal party for the strife which reportedly has caused 30 casualties.

Liberal newspapers contended, however, that the fighting resulted from persecution of liberals by the conservatives.

Confession Claimed In Pa. Wife Slaying

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 19 (AP).—Twenty-four-year-old Thomas W. Hillegass has admitted in a signed statement to Detective Forrest Kramer that he killed his wife, Marian, 19, following an argument over who should warm the milk for their infant daughter, the detective reported.

The shotgun slaying in their apartment last Friday made motherless the couple's two children, a 19-month-old son and a three-months-old daughter.

France Will Devaluate Franc In Face of British Objections

Paris, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—Reliable sources reported tonight that the French government has decided on a general devaluation of the franc over the bitter objections of the British, who fear such action inevitably will lead to a reduction in the value of the pound sterling.

The French plan calls for creation of an export franc and possible legalization of free money—now circulating only on the black market, it was said.

The reports caused near-panic on the Paris bourse, the Wall Street of France, where gold and other mining stocks toppled sharply.

The franc, it was disclosed, will be pegged at 180 to the dollar, approximately 60 more than at present, in the general devaluation, while the "export" franc for buying foreign goods will be established at 240 to the dollar, about double the current domestic rate.

"Free" Currency Dealings

Well-informed quarters said the plan also calls for "free" dealings in hard currency—in other words, the present black market exchange of dollars, Swiss francs and other solid moneys would be legalized. The black market rate last week hovered around 350 francs per dollar.

The outlines of the plan, expected to be announced either Wednesday or Friday, were confirmed in both French government and foreign diplomatic quarters.

The government was believed to be awaiting final approval by the International Monetary Fund before making the announcement.

[In Washington, a closed meeting of the International Monetary Fund's board of directors was held yesterday with indications that France's reported decision to devalue the franc in foreign trading was up for consideration, the Associated Press reported.

Export Franc Up

[Fund spokesmen declined to say what was on the agenda, but other informants hinted the French desire to create an "export franc" was presented for approval after lengthy "informal" talks with fund officials. No announcement was expected for several days.

[Pierre Mendes-France, the French member of the board of governors, was reported representing France at today's meeting.]

It had been reported that French Finance Minister Rene Mayer had sold Britain on the franc devaluation plan in his weekend talks in London with Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, but later it was learned that the measure was decided upon over the protests of the British.

Meat Rationing Machinery Sought

Two Republicans Introduce Measures To Get Ready to Meet 'Crisis'

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Two Republicans yesterday introduced a bill to permit the Government to prepare for meat rationing and to put it into effect when a meat crisis comes, "if it comes."

But another Republican, presidential aspirant Senator Taft, denounced rationing, price controls, and other aspects of President Truman's anti-inflation program as "fundamentally the wrong approach."

The when-as-and-if meat rationing bill was offered in the Senate and House by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) and Representative Javits (R., N. Y.). It would let the Agriculture Department spend up to one million dollars in preparing for a rationing plan, including the printing of ration books.

No Ceiling Provided

Then, when the Administration thinks the situation demands it, it can apply rationing. It would take effect unless both houses of Congress disapproved of it within 30 days.

The bill does not provide for ceiling prices on meat. But its authors argued that the rationing would limit supply and thus have a tendency to stabilize prices if not bring them lower.

Introduction of the bill touched off small squalls of debate in both chambers.

Flanders said that introduction of the measure "can be justified only by the seriousness of conditions which threaten the country at this time."

Young Opposes Proposal

He said the bill "warrants consideration now only from the fact that it will take some months of preparation to organize (meat rationing) action of the kind for which the necessity is feared." He added:

"When the crisis comes upon us, if it does come, it will be too late to make preparations for meeting it."

Senator Young (R., N. Dak.) interrupted to tell Flanders that "I see no reason for imposing police controls again."

Young said he fears that the American farmer will suffer as he did after the First World War. Then the farmer got virtually nothing for his products, Young said.

Representative Murray (R., Wis.) spoke out in the House. He called the measure a "most ridiculous" proposal to reestablish "a rejuvenated OPA."

Taft Renews Attack

Taft's renewed attack on the Administration's plan to control inflation came in a luncheon address to the American Public Relations Association here.

In President Truman's program of rationing and price control, he said, "you increase demand by lowering prices and you decrease supply. Perhaps you can do it for a few months, but in the long run, the result is inflation."

Taft named these three key areas in which he said the Government might better exert its effort:

1. Cutting Government spending and taxing. "The ultimate effect would be to reduce prices, because people are paying taxes in the price of things they buy."

2. Reducing the wide margin between exports and imports. "Before we start rationing goods to our people here, we ought to begin rationing industries abroad, particularly outside the European area."

3. Finding a solution to the problem of expanding bank loans which "creates inflation out of thin air."

Public Urged to Save

Businessmen, Taft said, "should make every effort to hold prices down, even if wages go up another notch."

Labor should "temper" its demands.

The general public should be encouraged to spend less and save more.

Taft estimated:

"A 5 per cent saving across the country could save about 10 billion dollars and perhaps stop inflation over night."

Illustrating Low-Income Housing Needs

CASE IN POINT—Picture of conditions at Nichols ave. ond Morris ave. se., was one of several exhibited before a Joint Congressional Committee on Housing by the Citizens Council for Community Planning, Inc., one of five District organizations seeking power for the National Capital Housing Authority to build 5500 housing units to meet needs of low income families sons immediately affected and their families."

What form Schwellenbach's action will take—if he takes any action—was not clear. He is up against a many-knotted problem that includes these major obstacles:

1. GSI has made it clear that it will not negotiate a new contract with Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO), because it has failed to file non-Communist affidavits.

1250 New Workers Hired

2. "Even if the union complied with the Taft-Hartley Act tomorrow," adds J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel director, "we still couldn't bargain with a union that doesn't represent our workers. (GSI has hired about 1250 new permanent workers, it says, to replace the 1400-odd strikers. Thus, as far as GSI is concerned, Local 471 is virtually nonexistent.)

3. Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming—the Government's representative in a contract with GSI that covers nearly all the 42 cafeterias—has been reported to be satisfied that GSI is living up to the contract, strike or no strike.

Yesterday's eight arrests growing out of picket line violence involves six strikers, four of them women, and two nonstrikers, a woman and a man.

Charged with simple assault and released under $300 bond each for Municipal Court appearance today were Lida K. Cunningham, 30, 3743 Grant st. ne.; Lorene G. Coleman, 30, 629 4th st. ne.; Lester Johnson, 27, 602 62d st. ne., and Richard S. Ray, 28, 1417 Simms dr. se., all strikers.

According to police, they assaulted one of GSI's new workers after following his bus in an automobile to 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., where the man got off. They were arrested by two Traffic Division policemen, Pvts. N. R. Marsh and M. A. Ragland, who said they witnessed the altercation.

Alfred Carter, 19, 2627 Virginia ave. nw., pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to carrying a concealed weapon. A GSI replacement, he was arrested by Third Precinct Pvt. John D. Wildman after he was pointed out by several strikers at the Munitions Building. Judge George D. Neilson referred his case to the probation officer.

Scuffle on Sidewalk

A third incident occurred at Tempo 8 Building, near McLean Gardens. Charged with disorderly conduct following a scuffle on the sidewalk were Mrs. Fannie Littlejohn, 35, 1406 12th st. nw., a new worker, and Miss Leona Alexander, 20, 615 M st. nw., a striker.

At the Munitions Building, police charged Miss Mary Williams, 1244 8th st. nw., with simple assault because she allegedly pushed a nonstriker who was going to work.

Oliver T. Palmer, union business agent, attributed the incidents to "flaring tempers" caused by "unwarranted interference by Public Buildings Administration guards."

5500 Low-Pay Family Units Sought Here

dwellings, District spokesman said.

The League of Women Voters charged that right now public housing here is caught up in a "vicious circle" drawn by congressional action.

The right of the National Capital Housing Authority to acquire land on which to build low cost homes has been transferred to the Redevelopment Land Agency. This has been given no funds by Congress.

Even if it had the funds to acquire and clear slum land—the purpose for which it was created—it could not do so before housing is available for those displaced.

Funds Are Urged

The league, along with the other agencies, asked:

1. That the Redevelopment Land Agency be given funds so it can start to function.

2. That the D. C. Redevelopment Act of 1945 be amended to empower NCHA to acquire land in a five-year interim period and that NCHA be empowered to contract for the construction of 5500 low-income dwellings on that land.

Survey Advocated

The Citizens Council for Community Planning, Inc., recommended in addition that a federally or partially federally financed program of survey be adopted to obtain an authentic picture of the need for additional housing here. The council called attention to the estimate by the Washington Veterans Housing Center that the District needs 30,000 permanent low-income rental housing units.

Private enterprise, the council said, cannot supply the low-income housing, in this time of rising costs.

"It is simply a question of mathematics, and no amount of promises, finger-pointing, or statistical averages can distort the underlying fact that decent housing, to rent for about $30 or $40 a month can not be built in quantity by private enterprise," Julian E. Berla, architect, and spokesman for the council told the committee.

Situation May Become Worse

Mrs. Samuel Brown of the National Council of Jewish Women, told the committee that her organization knew the housing problem through its operation of a settlement house at 530 8th st. sw. She spoke of the eagerness of the children from homes where there is no running water to use the showers at Council House, and she told of whole families crowded into one room because the rents are too high to afford more.

Miss Francis Adams, spokesman for the Washington ADA chapter, warned that the local situation threatens to become even worse because under existing law some 4000 war housing dwellings in the District must be disposed of by July 25, 1949. ADA, like the other District organizations, indorsed the long-range Taft-Ellender-Wagner Housing Act, but called for immediate remedial steps here.

Need Declared Desperate

Spokesman for NCHA was John Ihlder, executive officer. Ihlder, in his opening statement, tried to emphasize the need for housing here.

"The need," he said, "is desperate. It has resulted in suicide; it has resulted and is resulting in the break-up of families."

Chairman Ralph A. Gamble (R., N. Y.) interjected that he didn't need to tell about the need, the committee would concede that.

Ihlder retorted that it was all right to concede the need, if the committee really felt and saw how tragic the lack of housing is in the lives of the citizens.

"The National Capital Housing Authority," Ihlder disclosed, "has some 17,000 low-income families on its waiting list, among them families of more than 6000 low-income veterans. All of those veterans have young children," he said.

Situation Critical

NCHA has 8774 dwellings under its management, Ihlder told the committee. Of these 5515 are war housing units, and 4114 are of temporary construction. All are occupied by families whose highest income at the time of admission was $3000.

"There are no proper dwellings," the NCHA chief said, "into which the occupants of the temporaries can move. Yet removal of the temporaries is scheduled to begin before June 30—in less than five months.

"The only answer is a program for the construction of permanent low-rent housing tied up to the disposition of public war housing."

Private housing today is not even providing for the middle-income group in Washington, Ihlder said; and added:

"It never has, is not now, and gives no evidence of future ability to provide an adequate supply of proper dwellings for the low-income group. That group must depend upon public housing."

Estimates Held Faulty

Monsignor O'Grady warned the committee that the 64 per cent increase in the cost of living since the war means that the basis of figuring a low-income group must be changed.

"As we look over the figures for the 34 cities of the United States in which the Bureau of Labor Statistics studied city workers' family budgets," the monsignor said, "one would be safe in concluding that any family of four people with an income of less than $3200 a year on the average, in our large urban centers, cannot afford minimum standard housing being provided by private enterprise. All this shows the need for revision of our estimate of low-income families.

"On the over all national average, families with incomes of less than $2000 a year and up to $3200 cannot hope to obtain adequate housing.

Speaks for Migratory Worker

Sternly the noted Catholic expert admonished the committee that one of the greatest difficulty in solving housing problems is "the tendency of Congress to deal with housing piecemeal as emergencies arise rather than legislate for a long range housing program."

Noting that he was speaking for the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church and the Council of Congregational Churches, as well as his own agency, Monsignor O'Grady indorsed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing program.

Then the churchman swung into the question of the migratory worker. His eyes—the unfaded blue of the fighting Irish—threw off sparks, and the snow-capped sand of his hair stood up in peaks as he told the committee he was deeply concerned about the 100,000 migratory workers in the United States.

Congress has provided that the Federal migratory worker camps ini the United States be liquidated in 18 months from this January, the monsignor declared.

"What's going to happen to these thousands of people?" he demanded.

"Are you going turn them back to the ditches and the dumps?"

San Diego Mayor Present

Admiral Badger was accompanied by Mayor Harley E. Knox of San Diego in his plea for housing relief in the San Diego area. Both pointe dout that without further legislation Lanham Act housing must start to be liquidated, a provision which will aggravate an already existing shortage.

When he detailed the problems of housing Navy personnel, Gambled remarked that it was a Navy problem.

"I don't think so," snapped the admiral. "Sailors are citizens, too."

Restrictive Covenants Hit

Leslie S. Perry, on behalf of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged the Congress to prohibit all State and Federal courts from entering racial restrictive covenants, and to spell out in the law that agreement between two or more real estate agents to require discrimination violates the Sherman anti-trust act.

The NAACP also asked that Congress prohibit the use of Federal funds, loans, tax exemptions or other aids to any private builder, State or municipal housing authority which practices segregation.

Miss Dovey Johnson Roundtree of Howard University, spokesman for the National Council of Negro Women, told the committee that as women and as Negroes her group had a deep concern with housing.

'Ghetto' Areas Cited

"The overcrowded conditions under which our families are forced to live—in restricted ghetto areas in substandard dwellings—often totally unfit for human habitation-are wrecking the very foundations upon which family unity and security are built."

In Washington, she said, 70 per per cent of the married Negro veterans are sharing quarters with other families or living in rented rooms.

Mrs. Stanley G. Cook, of Indian Head, Md., whose "new look" costume was a striking cobalt blue, appeared for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Housing which does not make adequate provision to maintain good health, a decent amount of privacy and recreational facilities, furnishes a breeding ground for juvenile delinquency, she said. The P-TA endorsed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill.

20 Hurt in Cairo Riot

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 19 (U.P.)—Twenty persons were stabbed and a police station was set afire today when Moslem and leftist students fought a bitter battle with daggers and stones at the University of Giza, outside Cairo.

Tax Cut Bill Changes Due

advance of steering committee action.

Tentative plans call for reducing the bill to a four billion dollar plus figure by modifying the percentage tax cut range. Proposed income tax cuts ranging from 20 per cent in the lowest bracket to 5 per cent in the highest may be substituted for Knutson's 30 to 10 schedule.

Today's round of party conferences on tax cutting followed a first uncertain step toward burget cutting.

House and Senate Republican leaders met for 30 minutes in the office of Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.) on over-all budget strategy.

Upshot was that a meeting of the Joint Committee on the Legislative Budget was called for Thursday, to start work on spending ceilings.

House GOP leaders previously had determined to push a tax cut through the House next week, without waiting for a congressional budget decision.

Last day's testimony on the Knutson tax bill brought a second member of the President's Cabinet to the Ways and Means Committee stand.

Secretary Harriman, like Treasury Secretary John Snyder before him, said business is not in need of a tax cut now. He said business needs for investment are being reasonably met "with no evidence of a lack of means of financing."

In fact, Harriman said any increase in the present rate of investment, resulting from tax cuts, would:

1. Increase present inflationary pressure by diverting more current output away from consumption.

2. Increase the pressure on our presently short steel supply, since most investment requires substantial amounts of steel.

3. Tend to intensify the boom and make more difficult the readjustment to a normal growth rate when present deficencies are made up.

4. Cause a shift in production facilities that could not be maintained over a long period and thus force "a painful readjustment at a later time."

Snyder, who last Friday virtually promised a Knutson bill veto, followed through yesterday with this warning in his annual report to Congress:

"General tax reduction must wait until the present inflationary pressures have subsided."

Unexpected support for this position came from the American Farm Bureau Federation, representing 1,275,000 farm families.

In a statement filed with the committee, President Allan B. Kline of the farm group, said this is not the time "for any material reduction in income tax rates."

"We feel that now, with high production and high prices, is the time when tax receipts should be maintained and the national debt should be reduced as rapidly as possible," said Kline.

Before closing hearings on the Knutson bill, the Ways and Means Committee also heard:

1. Budget Director James E. Webb defend the President's 39.7 budget estimates as the total needed for a "balanced program." Webb said he doesn't look for any sharp decrease in spending requirements in the years just ahead—that merely to continue our present military strength "will mean higher expenditures in future years as the inventories carried over from the war are exhausted."

2. George J. Schoeneman, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, said the proposed Knutson bill raised many problems of administration. He urged Congress allow plenty of time between enactment of tax legislation and the effective date of the new rates, so the bureau can work out new tax forms and business can adjust its payroll records.

Pianist-Actress, 14, Kidnaped, Mother Says

Los Angeles, Jan. 19 (AP).—Jacqueline Horner, 14-year-old pianist-actress who disappeared from her Hollywood home last Tuesday, is still missing. Her mother, Mrs. Clara Horner, said "I'm convinced Jackie has been kidnapped."

In Fresno county, sheriff's officers were trying to locate Mrs. Nellie Edwards, a friend who, it was believed, the girl might visit. A man who promised to spend $50,000 to bring the girl concert fame also was being sought for questioning in the Fresno area.

Negro Law School Set Up the needs of Mrs. Fisher, honor student from Langston the only Negro university in Oklahoma.

Thurman Marshall, New York attorney for the NAACP who went with Mrs. Fisher to enroll this morning, left immediately for Washington for conferences tomorrow on what further legal action would be taken.

Dunjee said: "I can't see how the regents can give us a school next Monday which is equal in faculty and facilities and the 40-year-old tradition of the Oklahoma school."

Details for securing classroom facilities and use of the State law library for the school were left by the regents to a committee of five members of the board of regents and the dean of the University of Oklahoma School of Law.

The University of Oklahoma schedule of study will be used along with recommendations for instructional, secretarial and other personnel, a spokesman for the regents said.

The governing body of the new law school will be the board of regents for Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges which now governs Langston. The school will not be a branch of the University of Oklahoma, in order to comply with State segregation statutes.

It was indicated classrooms will be established at the Oklahoma State Capitol. Faculty members will be provided following recommendations of Dr. W. Page Keeton, dean of the university school of law.

The resolution establishing the new school specified "the course of study and the standards for said school of law shall be substantially equal to the course of study and standards now in existence at the University of Oklahoma.

"The course of study of said school shall be prescribed and made available for any Negro citizen of the state of Oklahoma qualified to enter the school at registration time, which shall be identical with the registration period for the enrollment of law students at the University of Oklahoma school of law."

A week ago the Supreme Court of the United States ordered Oklahoma to provide equal and immediate education for Mrs. Fisher but did not rule on the constitutionality of Oklahoma's segregation laws. Mrs. Fisher had appealed from adverse decisions in State courts.

Last Saturday, the Oklahoma Supreme Court directed the regents to act in conformity "with the provisions of the constitution and statutes of this State requiring segregation of the races in the schools."

doctor so the woman wouldn't die in your house?"

"Definitely not!" exclaimed Mrs. Petrain.

The witness testified from a stretcher. She said she had suffered head, neck and back injuries on November 5 and was obeying doctor's orders by remaining in a reclining position.

She said after a number of conversations with Laughlin about having a girl "fixed up," Laughlin handed her three $100 bills which she turned over to Stottlemyer.

(Stottlemyer had testified earlier in the trial that he had received an envelope from Mrs. Petrain which he gave to Dr. Peckham, unopened.)

Mrs. Petrain could not identify Dr. Peckham as the one who visited Mrs. Hobbs.

About March 20, she said, a man came to her home and inquired about Mrs. Hobbs. He entered the bedroom which Mrs. Hobbs was occupying.

She said that shortly after the man entered, Mrs. Hobbs screamed and she heard the man's voice calling, "Come and clean up this mess." According to testimony, Mrs. Hobbs had stayed at Mrs. Petrain's house for 10 days convalescing from the illegal operation.

Mrs. Petrain also testified that Laughlin had told her the pregnancy had been caused by "a serviceman."

Under cross-examination by McKenzie and Defense Attorney H. Mason Welch, the witness admitted police had told her that if she refused to testify before the grand jury and at the trial, she would be prosecuted herself for aiding in an abortion.

In addition, the defense lawyers brought out several discrepancies in dates and incidents in her testimony as compared with her statement to police.

The trial will be resumed today at 10 a. m. with probable further cross-examination of Mrs. Petrain. The Government then plans to rest and the defense will open its case.

were sure she was, three thought not and two were in doubt.

4. Selling sulfa drugs in small lots without putting a full label on them was declared—6 to 3—to be a crime.

5. The jail term given a 17-year-old Mississippi Negro who claimed he was forced to confess, and also denied he confessed at all, was set aside.

California has a law frankly aimed at the Japanese, which says no alien who cannot become a citizen may own land in the State.

In 1934, Kijiro Oyama, a Japanese, bought a small farm in the name of his son, Fred, who was 6 years old at the time, and who was an American citizen.

California courts named the father guardian and he took care of the land for years, never claiming it was his own. Despite this, when the Oyamas were interned in 1943 the State claimed the land and won it, chiefly on the strength of a section of the land law which said a purchase like the elder Oyama's was presumed to be for the purpose of evading the law.

Chief Justice Vinson said for the court yesterday that purchases by other races are not subject to this presumption, that it therefore denies Japanese the equal protection of California's laws, and so is against the Constitution. Vinson said this settled the Oyama case and there was no reason to go on to decide whether the whole land law was against the Constitution.

Black, Douglas Concur

Justices Black and Douglas, in a concurring opinion, said there was "I would now," said Black, "overrule the previous decisions of the court that sustained State land laws which discriminate against people of Japanese origin residing in this country."

Justice Murphy said for himself and Rutledge that he would, too. Murphy's 25-page opinion was a blistering attack on racism.

Justice Reed, speaking for himself and Burton in dissent, said he did not see how the court could rule for the Oyamas without striking down the whole land law, a point on which he gave no opinion either way. If the ban on Japanese holding land was good, said Reed, so was the presumption set up to enforce it.

Justice Jackson, giving his own dissent, said the court seemed to be saying California could bar Japanese from owning land, but they had a right to defeat that policy "by a device we would be prompt to condemn if it were used to evade a Federal statute."

Got Four Years

Countess von Moltke got four years in jail, on a plea of guilty to conspiracy. She claimed the court promised her a lawyer but never got her one and that FBI agents gave bad legal advice when she was in jail. The court ordered the Michigan Federal Court to hold more hearings and—unless the countess knew what she was doing when she pleaded guilty without a lawyer—to turn her loose.

Black, Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge said they were satisfied the countess was deprived of her rights. Burton, Reed and Mr. Vinson were not. Frankfurter and Jackson were ont clear whether FBI agents gave the countess advice or not, and wanted new hearings to settle that point.

Black said that for the court in a nine-page opinion that the law clearly calls for labels on drugs that are taken out of bulk lots and sold in small lots. Frankfurter said in dissent that if it takes nine pages to tell the scope of a statute its meaning can hardly be called clear.

Truman Asks Lifting of Ban On Gen. Kuter

President Truman called members of the Senate Armed Services Committee to the White House yesterday to personally request reversal of last week's committee action barring appointment of Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter as CAB chairman.

The group agreed to reconsider the matter this morning as a scheduled meeting, but made no promises to the Uresident.

Barring a possible compromise, it appeared probable last night that the committee would stand by last week's vote. The group then unanimously disapproved Mr. Truman's proposal that special legislation be passed permitting Kuter to retain his Air Force status and pay of $15,144 a year while holding the $10,000-a-year CAB post.

Members made it plain they had nothing against Kuter, but opposed filling key civilian jobs with military men.

After yeesterday's meeting, Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) told reporters that Mr. Truman said he had offered the CAB job to a number of qualified men not now connected with commercial airlines. All turned down the post.

Gurney refused to state whether the President's plea had changed his mind. Most others in the group followed suit, but Senator Byrd (D., Va.) issued a statement later condemning the proposal as "most unwise."

"Not only is the principle of unequal compensation involved," said Byrd, "but likewise if such appointments are continued they would develop a dangerous dominance by the military services over civilian departments."

Harrisburg Telegraph Sold to Newhouse

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 19 (U.P.).—The Harrisburg Telegraph has been sold by Telegraph Press, Inc., to Samuel I. Newhouse, publisher of the Newark Star-Ledger and six other newspapers in New Jersey and New York.

Announcement of the sale was made here by A. H. Stackpole, who continues as editor and publisher of the Telegraph and becomes president of Telegraph Enterprises, Inc., a newly formed organization which now operates the evening newspaper.

Judge Berates Delinquency of Overprivileged

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19 (U.P.).—Dade County juvenile court judge Walter H. Beckham said today that "delinquency of the over-privileged" is a more serious social problem than the petty crimes of underprivileged children who may be driven to lawlessness by force of circumstance.

Beckham, whose rulings involving 20,000 children never have been appealed, said he was particularly disturbed by the wanton vandalism of delinquent children of prominent families.

He referred to a group of teenagers who recently wrecked parked automobiles in Atlanta, Ga., for a "thrill."

a board of directors composed of four other presidentially appointed "civilians"—that is, private citizens—plus the five heads of the Government departments involved.

Purely Advisory

But Baruch stressed that the board's authority would be purely advisory, and that on all matters affecting foreign policy the Secretary of State and the President must have the controlling voice. The representatives of the new "authority" abroad would report directly to their chief, the Administrator, in Washington, although they would have to keep the ambassadors in the respective countries fully informed.

On other points concerned with the Marshall Plan, Baruch sided with Secretary Marshall in calling for wide discretion for the Administrator, in cautioning against rigid conditions to be imposed on the European countries, and generally in describing the European Recovery Program as "a new adventure in peace," of incalculable benefit to the United States.

Far More Than Money

He warned the committee that the job involves "far more than appropriating money, however many billions." It also means, he said, "that each of us—not just the Treasury—must contribute what is required in moderation, self-restraint and, if necessary, sacrifice, so as to be sure to see it through."

"By itself this legislation cannot bring peace," "It is a beginning, not the end. If its objectives are to be realized, it must be accompanied by two further actions—we must stabilize America for peace; we must develop a global strategy for American peace-making.

"The foundations of economic stability in the world—without which peace must continue to elude us—can be brought into existence inside of two years, through an all-out production drive here and in the rest of the world. If, from today until December 31, 1949, we produced for peace as we produced for war—all out—without interruptions, strikes, lockouts or profit scrambling—mankind's whole lot and outlook would be magically lifted."

Bold, Concerted Attack

Baruch then launched into his 11-point program, toward what he called "a bold, resolute, concerted attack against the clawing fears of inflation and of another war."

"These measures," he said "put into effect promptly, can boost production sufficiently to cover the whole Marshall Plan and still break the present inflationary cycle almost immediately, cancel part of the national debt, while laying the groundwork for orderly tax reduction in the future."

He stipulated that the recovery administrator should make loans secured by the assets of foreign industries, and guaranteed to be repaid in dollars before any industry abroad is nationalized. He added that this did not restrict in any way the right of Europeans to socialize any or all of their industries.

Dealing with the European nations' part in the recovery program, Baruch insisted that they stabilize currencies, lower trade barriers and "compact together" against aggression. If they do this, he said, the United States should promise to defend them against attack.

"Let us not shy from stating now what we intend to do before any would-be warmaker has yielded to temptation of aggression," he pleaded.

Shall Be Forced Later

"I have been warned that the American people may not be prepared to make their position clear. If that is true, may I add this—if we do not take our stand today, so the peace-loving, freedom-loving peoples of the world know where to rally, we shall be forced to do so in the future under more adverse circumstances."

As for his anti-inflation proposals, he defended them on the ground that labor was sure to demand—and get—another round of wage increases if the rise in food prices was not checked. He felt farmers would be better off under his proposed three-year guarantee of lower prices than if "agricultural prices boom a bit longer to collapse in another bust."

"By inclination I am opposed to governmental controls, except in wartime," Baruch said. "However, we have no peace today. The demobilization was done too hurriedly, without adequately considering this fact, that the peace has still to be won." And he expressed the belief that few controls would be needed, and then only temporarily, if his program were adopted.

The greatest danger facing the United States today, he said, is its "swollen national debt," adding that its "systematic, orderly, substantial retirement is as much a measure of defense as an army, navy and air force."

Today the end of his prepared statement, in an oblique thrust at Senator Robert A. Taft and President Truman himself, Baruch insisted that his proposed economic controls were not "police state" measures.

"I have no fear of the restraints which we adopt as free men to save our freedom," he said, "so long as we uphold our laws and Constitution, as long as the people vote freely at appointed elections, as long as the American spirit of liberty remains as strong as it is today.

"Gentlemen, the time has come to organize — to mobilize — for peace. It cannot be safely put off any longer."

Committee members were gingerly in their questions. Senator Vandenberg drew from him the answer that the new recovery administrator must be "a good man" inoculated against what President Truman has called 'Potomac fever.'"

Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) beamed when Baruch answered that this was "the opportune moment" to negotiate for the joint ownership and use of foreign bases. Wiley has been a persistent advocate of getting bases in partial exchange for economic help.

Answering Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.), Baruch thought it was "a bad idea" that the 16 European countries had been "told" not to hold another meeting at the present time. Last week Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett agreed with the British and French ambassadors that another conference of the 16 would be "premature" until Congress had shown its intentions more clearly.

Baruch told Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) the agreements to get strategic materials from Europe should apply far beyond the 4¼ years of the recovery program.

This morning the committee will hear John Foster Dulles while the House Foreign Affairs Committee resumes its questioning of Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas.

House Group Okays Sale of Enemy Assets

By The Associated Press

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared for House action, probably on Wednesday, legislation allowing the Government to sell 250 million dollars' worth of seized German and Japanese property in this country and give part of the proceeds to civilian war victims.

Overwhelmingly approved by the House Commerce Committee, the measure marks a broad departure from the historic American policy of returning impounded property to its original owners at the end of hostilities.

Of the total about 50 million dollars would be paid in emergency relief to American civilians held prisoner by the Japanese on Guam, Midway, Wake and in the Philippines.

The relief would include payments at a maximum rate of $37.50 for each week of detention, plus disability and death payments ranging up to $9500.

The legislation does not apply to members of the armed forces who drew military pay during the time they were held by the enemy. Nor does the measure preclude any beneficiaries from filing claims for compensation against the German and Japanese governments.

This view, however, was criticized at a Rules Committee meeting by Representative Cox (D., Ga.) as "the un-Christianlike thing to do."

Representative Smith (D., Va.) called the proposal "a return to the dog-eat-dog policy of centuries ago."

Both Cox and Smith, however, said they would vote to send the bill to the House for general debate.

U. S. Urged To Abolish Rent Controls

Abolition of Federal rent control was urged here yesterday by 225 real estate board presidents.

The realty officials' stand came as part of a five-day meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at the Statler Hotel.

In affirming a resolution adopted at the annual association meeting in San Francisco last November, they requested Congress to "keep its pledge to abolish all Federal controls on February 29."

The decision was attributed to the "unprecedented volume of new construction" which has followed the Housing and Rent Act of 1947 removing all controls from construction.

J. E. Teller, executive secretary of the Westchester County board, pointed out that the vote was not unanimous. The Westchester and Bronx, N. Y., boards sought extension of controls for another year.

In another action yesterday, the NAREB filed a memorandum in the Federal District Court requesting a denial of a recent motion of the Justice Department in the civil antitrust suit against the Washington Real Estate Board and 15 of its members. The Justice Department motion seeks a ruling in the case without a trial.

The Government is seeking to enjoin the alleged "continuing combination and conspiracy to fix brokerage commissions and other fees" in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Hobart C. Brady of Wichita, Kans., will be installed as association president at a banquet at the Statler at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. He will succeed Morgan L. Fitch of Chicago.

from war levels, with wartime amortization for new plants.

(e) Postpone tax reduction for two years, after which a five-year orderly reduction of personal and corporate taxes combined with the systematic, substantial lowering of the national debt which is a terrible threat to our security.

(f) Put off all less essential works, including Federal, State and municipal projects, giving priority to increasing production, housing, schools, hospitals and other more essential needs.

(g) Set up a Capital issue committee, with advisory powers, under the Secretary of the Treasury, to review all capital issues, public and private, with a view to deferring less essential projects. The governors of each State should appoint committees to pass on all proposed projects at the local level before going to the Federal committee.

(h) Congress to set up a digging committee to scrutinize all Federal works and expenditures to determine which are postponable; also where Government spending can be cut and whether it is being done most economically. "Cut costs for greater efficiency" is a sound business maxim. It applies to governments as well.

(i) More production—so important that I repeat it.

(j) Settle realistically all prewar and wartime intergovernment debts. For example, Britain and other creditors must decide what is to be done with the 14 billion dollars of frozen pound sterling accumulated during the war.

(k) The British and others to retain their empire preferences for three years.

(l) A General Staff for Peace to develop an over-all, global strategy for America's peace-making.

Hoover Urges End To Reich Dismantling

New York, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—Former President Herbert Hoover declared today the continued dismantling of German factories will mean "less essential goods to all Europe, greater delay in the recovery of the world and larger drains on the American taxpayer."

Writing in the preface to a report issued by Common Cause, Inc., Hoover urged that only arms plants be dismantled. He said the present dismantlement program will keep food scarce and taxes high in America, "as we vainly spend a billion a year to keep alive millions of idle Germans."

Sen. Knowland Warns GOP on 'Isolationism'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

In advance of the 1948 campaign, Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) called on Republican leaders last night to make it clear that a GOP victory will give no satisfaction to Russia.

The 39-year-old California lawmaker, a strong advocate of a rehabilitated western Europe, struck at "appeasement" and "isolationism" in a speech before the Republican National Committee at a dinner in the Mayflower.

"Let us make it crystal clear," he said, "that there is not an atom of satisfaction that the Politburo in Moscow can gain from the Republican victory on November 2.

Lashes at 'Appeasement'

"The peace cannot today be saved by appeasement of international blackmailers any more than it could be at Munich . . .

"For better or worse we live in the age of the airplane and the atom.

"As a Nation we can no more return to isolation than an adult can return to childhood. We cannot, we dare not, turn our back on the rest of the world. If we do, the light of human freedom will go out and some day, in the not too distant future, from out of the ensuing darkness would come the knife thrust or the shot to strike us down. . . ."

Two-day Business Meeting

In town for a two-day business meeting, the members of the Republican National Committee appeared to be just as much up in the air about the identity of the 1948 Republican nominee for president as the man in the street.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, they agreed, would be the two top men at the outset of the balloting, with substantial blocs of votes also behind former Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Gov. Earl Warren of California, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower (if he stays in the race) and a host of favorite sons.

A deadlock in the early balloting seemed likely to most of the visiting politicians, and in this connection Speaker Joe Martin was mentioned frequently as a possible compromise candidate.

The national committee will meet today to adopt a budget for the 1948 campaign and apportion delegates for the Philadelphia convention in June.

Tax Talks Scheduled

Four House members will speak on "Can We Reduce Taxes?" on the American Forum of the Air at 10 o'clock tonight at the Shoreham Hotel. Theey are Representatives John W. McCormick (D., Mass.), John D. Dingell (D., Mich.), Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.), and Carl T. Curtis (R., Nebr.) The forum, open to the public, will be broadcast over Station WOL.

Special 5-Man Squad Named To Check Unsolved Murders

A five-man detective squad has been set up to work exclusively on threee unsolved District murders until they are cleared.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, announced yesterday the appointment of the following to the special squad:

Lieut. Edgar E. Scott and Detective Sergt. Robert E. Talbot, both of the homicide squad; Detective Sergt. Richard Meissner, of the check squad; Detective Sergt. Herbert C. Young, of the robbery squad, and Detective Sergt. John L. Sullivan, of the sex squad.

Specific Cases Assigned

They will concentrate on the following cases:

The death of James A. Kemp,

Sullivan

Scott

Meissner

Young

24, of 335 37th pl. se., a Navy Yard cabinet maker, who was fatally stabbed at 37th st. and 37th pl. se. shortly after 1 a. m., September 1, 1946.

The brutal shooting of Mrs. Adele G. Johnson, 62-year-old landlady of 1728 New Hampshire ave. nw., who was killed in her basement apartment by a prowler about 10:30 p. m. September 18, 1947.

The death of Dorothy Belle Woods, 32, found garroted in an alley between 6th st. and the 1600 block of Marion st. nw. about 7:30 a. m. December 17, 1947.

The squad has not been organized as a permanent group, but will function as a special squad only until it has solved the three murders, Inspector Floyd Truscott, detective bureau chief, said.

Concentration Held Needed

Although the regular homicide squad, headed by Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, has been doing a splendid job, the men are interrupted too often with other cases, such as deaths due to natural causes, to give these particular cases the concentration they need, both Barrett and Truscott explained.

Police have maintained they know Kemp's slayer and his motive, but that they have been unable to get enough proof for a conviction. They said that since there was no sign of a struggle at the scene of his slaying, they believe he knew his murderer and was stabbed without warning. They have not located the weapon.

The only leads in Mrs. Johnon's case are a vague description of the prowler as a dark-skinned Negro, about 5 feet 10 inches tall and very thin. Police know the caliber of the bullet but have kept it secret.

Dorothy Belle Woods was believed strangled with a wire or cord which have never been found. She had been released from jail only three days before she was found dead, wearing only a black velvet suit. Although police believe she was dumped from a car into the alley, they have found no witnesses who saw her placed there.

"I want a nice pot roast"

This lady actually ordered her pot roast from her meat dealer. But in so doing she did give an order to a farmer many miles away.

Meat packers and meat dealers merely make it possible for these two people to get together easily, any place, any time nourishing meat is needed for the table.

The 4,000 meat packers of the United States cannot determine how much meat there will be or for what it will sell. Their job is to buy what livestock raisers offer for sale, turn it into meat, and deliver it to the store where you shop.

For this service the meat packers' profit, after paying all expenses, averages only a fraction of a cent a pound—and meat prices always are established by the demand for the available supply of meat.

Meat center. Many beef cattle now come from "feed lots." In fall most come from Western ranges. At all livestock markets, meat packers compete to buy meat animals to supply their retailer customers.

Not all meat. Only slightly more than half of a beef animal is meat, but the meat packer carefully saves and sells many by-products. So the total money he gets for the beef frequently about equals what he pays for the live animal.

Meat on the move. The average meat animal travels 432 miles to a meat packing plant, and the perishable meat is delivered, under refrigeration, a few blocks or 1,000 miles to reach a retailer's store.

5 Arabs Slain In Palestine

They were wiped out in an Arab ambush along a camel track on which they were moving to reinforce the defenses of Kfar Etzion. One of the dead Jews was identified by Jewish sources as Mosheh A. Pearlstein, 22, Brooklyn, New York City.

Three British armored cars and troops stood by as the mass funeral rites were held.

Meanwhile an informant at the American Consulate said the United States consul general in Jerusalem was keeping the State Department "fully informed" on activities of former American soldiers of Jewish faith who are students at universities in Palestine and at the same time taking part in the Holy Land fighting.

The informant said that as yet there has been no confirmation as to the status of United States citizens fighting on either side in the Jewish-Arab warfare.

Jewish sources said two American students—Pearlstein and another identified as Ari Rabinowitz—had been killed in organized Hagana actions, and a number of others were believed enrolled in Hagana. Rabinowitz, a former American soldier, was a student at Haifa Technical College.

The American Consulate said 137 former American soldiers of Jewish faith are studying either at Hebrew University or the technical college in Haifa under the GI Bill of Rights.

Jews 'Dominate' Jaffa

Tel Aviv, Palestine, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—A former British army colonel who now commands the Jewish Hagana "defense army" said today that his men "dominate every road, every path" leading in and out of all-Arab Jaffa and would use the 100,000 Arabs there as hostages if Jews are massacred in isolated settlements in the north or south.

India, Pakistan Okay U. N. Kashmir Mediation

name one U. N. member for the mediation commission, and Pakistan would name another. Then the two selected countries would elect a third, which would serve as chairman.

Calls Private Meetings

This was the plan followed in the Indonesian-Dutch dispute, which involved the only real fighting which U. N. has been able to halt.

Members of the Kashmir Commission, under the resolution, need not be members of the Security Council.

Van Langenhove proposed the plan and called the Indian and Pakistan delegates into the private meetings to get them to agree.

The Security Council got involved in the troubles of the subcontinent when India complained officially that Pakistan was aiding raiders in the princely state of Kashmir, which tentatively joined India.

Pakistan replied with a counter-complaint that India was trying to wipe out the entire nation of Pakistan. The two countries received their independence last August 15, but persistent communal fighting has threatened to grow into full-scale war.

Gandhi Improved

New Delhi, Jan. 19 (AP).—A physician's report said tonight that Mohandas K. Gandhi was "better, but still weak" following his 121-hour fast. The wizened Indian leader had to be carried in an archair to his evening prayer meeting.

Gandhi expressed his "personal gratitude" for messages which came to him from all over the world after he ended his fast yesterday.

He held to his customary Monday silence, but in a written prayer speech declared a "heavy task" still lay ahead of the Hindus and Moslems of both India and Pakistan to achieve peace. He advised "mixing together and the cultivation of close friendship until heart unity is established."

Prisoner Recaptured

Baltimore, Jan. 19 (AP).—John A. Hickman, 36-year-old burglar who escaped last week from the section for violent criminals at Spring Grove State Hospital Thursday, was recaptured here last night and returned to the mental institution.

Korean Election Planned

Seoul, Jan. 19 (AP).—The United Nations commission for Korea set a tentative date today for the election it hopes will lead to establishment of an independent government for a unified Korea.

The commission named a subcommittee to examine the election laws of Russian-occupied North Korea and American-occupied South Korea. Its objective will be to compile a single law under which a Korean National Assembly may be named by March 31, or as soon as practicable thereafter, to form a long delayed all-Korean government.

and Social Council to investigate immediately the "critical" plight of Jews, living in Moslem or Arab countries, who "face extreme and immediate danger" from stepped-up anti-Semitism caused by the Palestine partition decision.

The Congress charged that the Arab league has drawn a proposed law under which Jews in member states could be classified virtually as enemies, subject to imprisonment and confiscation of property.

About 240,000 Jews live in the Arab League states with about 540,000 living in other Arab or Moslem states or areas.

Egypt Offers Leave

Cairo, Jan. 19 (AP).—The Egyptian government has offered six months leave with pay to Egyptian army officers who will volunteer to fight with the Arabs in Palestine against the Jews, an Arab League informant said today.

At the same time a Damascus dispatch said 1000 Arab volunteer fighters had arrived in the Syrian capital from Iraq.

GENERAL ELECTRIC
cuts prices in bid to stop inflation
$50,000,000 AT RETAIL LEVELS
"You have been worrying about high prices for a long time. So have we at General Electric. It is obvious that we are in a painful inflationary spiral. And it is also obvious that every industry, every company, every individual, must do all in their power not only to stop this spiral, but to reverse it.
"For this reason, General Electric is reducing the prices on a wide range of products. The reduction is effective January 1, 1948. Some of the products affected by price reductions are listed at right. We estimate that these reductions will make possible a saving to the public of close to 50 million dollars during the coming year. The reductions range from 3% to 10%. The average is somewhat more than 5%.
Profits still too low
Some of the products on which prices are reduced January 1, 1948

WHY GENERAL ELECTRIC PUT LOWERED PRICES AHEAD OF OTHER THINGS

General Electric lowered prices because we wanted to do our part to stop the present spiral of inflation.

General Electric lowered prices on electrical appliances in greatest demand—because that is where lowered prices on General Electric products will do the most good and have the greatest effect.

General Electric lowered prices regardless of the fact that G-E profits are not high—are not at present levels high enough.

We did this because we know that in the long run General Electric can prosper only as the people of this country prosper. We believe that producing more goods for more people at less cost is the soundest way of running a business. And we feel that inflation in this country has reached a dangerous level—for the wage earner, for the man with savings, and for industry alike.

Do you know what inflation can do to you?

As money buys less and less, your savings lose their buying power. Life insurance policies dwindle in value. Money saved to take your wife to the hospital won't pay the bill when the time comes. Pay checks buy less and less. Retirement money won't pay for retirement.

This applies to the man who brings home a weekly pay check, to the man with a little savings in the bank or a life insurance policy, and to companies that have to build new plants and buy new machines to fill future needs and provide future jobs.

Inflation is a sinister thing. It steals up on a country and its economy in a gradually accelerating two-step of prices and wages—each trying to get one step ahead of the other—and there is no red line to show when the danger point has been reached.

Inflation is like a fire. Once it gets well underway, it can never be checked until everything is destroyed.

Self-restraint by industries and individuals the best check

You as an individual can do most by buying less and saving more—thus avoiding bidding up the prices for scarce goods. Business and industry can do much by lowering prices whenever and wherever possible—voluntarily.

ITU Criticized in Strike By Photoengraver Officials

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP).—An AFL photoengravers union local official says his group is not supporting the strike of union printers against the six Chicago daily newspapers, and declares the AFL International Typographical Union "has erred."

William V. Clemens, executive board chairman of Chicago Local 5 of the International Photoengravers Union, said yesterday at the local's annual meeting that the engravers will not support any controversy arising from "a refusal to sign a contract."

"The strike of the International Typographical Union and the making of plates for varityped copy for our members was discussed thoroughly at several meetings," Clemens said.

ITU Erred, He Says

"While we are of the opinion that all unions should stand shoulder to shoulder at all times, but especially when a dispute arises, we feel that the ITU has erred by their convention action to reestablish jurisdiction over all branches of the printing industry and by refusing to sign a contract for more than 60 days."

The strike of 1500 printers employed by the six dailies started November 24. The newspapers have continued publication by means of typewritten or varityped copy reproduced by the photoengraving process.

In another reference to the ITU strike, Louis A. Miller, president of the photoengravers local, told his group's membership "we are not going to be misled into walking the streets in a cause that we do not agree is right or sane."

Larry Gruber, the outgoing president, urged the members not to be drawn into disputes which "result from issues not clearly defined."

"New Responsibilities"

"Passage of the Taft-Hartley Act imposes new responsibilities on us," Gruber said. "We can ill afford recklessness by ill-advised members taking matters into their own hands, which may result in the dissipation by lawsuits of our hard-earned finances."

A National Labor Relations Board hearing of an NLRB complaint that the ITU has committed unfair labor practices went into its third week, with the union calling its first witness.

Edward F. Fanning, 77, an ITU member since 1894 and an employe of the Chicago Tribune since 1910, testified that the so-called "bogus" clause in ITU contracts was first placed there at a publisher's request.

This clause requires payment for setting duplicating type, or "bogus," material, such as some national advertising copy, which has already been set up in another print shop and is delivered to the newspaper ready for stereotyping.

The publishers' witnesses have contended such practices are wasteful and should be abandoned.

House Votes Negro Veteran Hospital Fund

By The Associated Press

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill authorizing $5,000,000 for a Negro veterans hospital at the birthplace of Booker T. Washington in Franklin County, Virginia.

Chairman Edith Rogers (R., Mass.) of the House Veterans Affairs Committee said the hospital would be of great benefit to Negro veterans of the region since there are more than 50,000 of them in Virginia alone.

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) urged passage of the bill to care for Negro veterans of not only Virginia but West Virginia, eastern Tennessee and other nearby areas.

There is a Negro veterans' hospital at Tuskegee, Ala., and a 200-bed Negro veterans' hospital has been authorized for Mound Baoyu, Miss.

A committee report on the bill said it is felt that a hospital in Franklin County would be a "timely recognition of the services" rendered by Washington, "one of the most outstanding leaders of the Negro race."

Virginia Economics

For all Virginia's other claims to fame, the general income level of its inhabitants is not yet one to arouse enthusiasm. For that reason it is particularly encouraging to have an official State body doing something to bring about an improvement in economic welfare. This body is the 45-member Advisory Council on the Virginia Economy established last fall by Governor Tuck. The council is charged with an impressive list of functions, including initiating specific proposals for economic betterment and getting those proposals in the hands of appropriate governmental and private groups, encouraging research in use of Virginia's resources, stimulating new enterprise and counseling businesses on their problems. This experiment in self-help, similar to efforts in several other States, is the outgrowth of a recommendation by the Virginia State Planning Board.

As one of its first projects, the council is publishing a new quarterly, the Virginia Economic Review, the initial issue of which appeared last month. Of especial interest in delineating the council's job is the Review's analysis of income trends in Virginia. It shows, for example, that although incomes have leveled off within the last two years, Virginia's improvement in this respect over the last 18 years has been remarkable. From 1929 to 1940, income payments to individuals in Virginia rose 14 per cent despite an 8 per cent national decline; and from 1940 through 1946 they increased 144 per cent as compared with 123 per cent nationally. The fact that Virginia has fallen back to thirty-seventh place in per capita income ($952 as compared with the national average of $1200) after a temporary climb to thirtieth indicates, the Review says, only a "relative loss, as heavy industrial areas gained faster." Virginia agricultural prices have not risen so much proportionately as elsewhere in the country, and Virginia obtains less income from manufacturing than the average other State.

From the Review it is also possible to learn that poultry now leads tobacco as a source of farm income, that there is an actual labor shortage in a number of counties including those bordering Washington and that unemployment in the last quarter of 1947 was less than half that of the preceding period, and that 14.6 per cent of the land in 26 counties classified as to land type ought to be taken out of agriculture. Altogether, this type of information and later specific adaptations to individual problems should serve as a valuable guide for a concerted attack on those areas in which Virginia's economy is deficient.

Lost Chords

A few days ago Prof. Joseph E. Maddy, head of National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., related to the House Committee on Education and Labor the history of his effort to preserve his school from destruction at the hands of Mr. J. Caesar Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians. The Interlochen camp, which was established 20 years ago under the aegis of the University of Michigan, is a sort of summer finishing school for the most promising young musicians, carefully chosen from secondary schools throughout the country. For a long time the Interlochen school received great encouragement and support from the most distinguished members of the profession, many of whom contributed their services to it. Its difficulties with Mr. Petrillo began a half dozen years ago over the broadcasting of concerts by the school orchestra.

When Dr. Maddy decided to defy Mr. Petrillo's prohibition of concerts by school orchestras, Interlochen was placed on the "unfair list." This meant that the distinguished musicians could no longer participate in its activities, since to do so would jeopardize their union status and make it impossible for them to appear on any programs which utilized the services of professional musicians. Dr. Maddy himself, for the crime of continuing to teach at Interlochen, was expelled from the federation after nearly 40 years of dues-paying membership. As he told the committee:

> I am for the rest of my life prohibited from earning a living at the profession which I spent many years and many thousands of dollars to master. During my 37 years membership in this union I was never once charged with violating any union rules.

Dr. Maddy also said that before his expulsion he had sought to obtain from the union a statement of the reasons why the Interlochen school had been placed on the "unfair list." He was advised, he said, that

> . . . the union had the right to put any place or any person on the "unfair list" and that their action in so doing could not be questioned. I was further informed that whether such action was reasonable or unreasonable, right or wrong, was of no concern to anyone but the union, and further that there was no appeal from such a ruling.

The blacklisting of the Interlochen school was announced five days after the passage of the Vandenberg Act, making it illegal for anyone to interfere with the broadcasting of programs by educational institutions not associated with commercial enterprises. Mr. Petrillo, however, was able to nullify the law and to enforce his own edict because of the timidity of the broadcasting companies. Dr. Maddy observed that the Lea Act, adopted in 1946, also prohibits interference with broadcasting of programs by amateur musicians not conducted for purposes of profit. However, he pointed out to the committee that > even when the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the Lea Act last June, the radio networks declined to risk broadcasting from the National Music Camp for fear of reprisals from Petrillo. Three summers have passed since the National Music Camp was placed on the "unfair list" . . . but neither the Lea Act nor the Taft-Hartley Act provides any relief from such a decree.

Of course, the Interlochen camp is not the only music school which has felt the tyrannical hand of Mr. Petrillo. The plain truth is that Mr. Petrillo not only holds in arbitrary control the livelihood of every musician in the United States; he also holds in his hands the destiny of the musical arts in America. As far as we can make out, it is Mr. Petrillo's purpose to discourage musical education on the ground that the smaller the number of musicians, the easier it will be to find jobs for them.

Siamese Twins

By far the most telling testimony for the Marshall Plan came from Mr. Baruch in yesterday's statement before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But Mr. Baruch did not limit himself to the Marshall Plan. This he sees only as one item in a series of solutions for the world's crisis. His basic assumptions put the debate in the same perspective as we ourselves see it. The absence of peace is the crux of the world crisis, our foreign and domestic policies must be indissolubly linked together, Europe must be given "faith, something to believe in." His program falls into place—in fact, is inevitable—only if these assumptions are accepted. What he suggests is summed up as "a global strategy of American peace-making."

The impetus to confidence in Europe that was given to Europe by the Marshall offer of last June 5 was electric. An American official said at the time, "We expected them to jump a yard or two, but they jumped a mile." Sixteen nations, in the teeth of Russian opposition, met in conference and prepared a blueprint of European recovery. But the very success of our initiative seems to have produced cold feet in the State Department. For instance, it has lately been reported from London that a second meeting has been postponed because of American advice that such a meeting might perturb Congress. Mr. Baruch, on the contrary, would encourage the get-together. He favors a "political, economic and defense union" in Europe "under the United Nations." To encourage this integration Mr. Baruch recommends that the United States "guaranty the nations entering this union against aggression." In other words, there must be the marriage between the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan which is implicit but not expressed in either document. The marriage is inevitable in the struggle to save Europe from the great panic created by the shadow of Cossack aggression.

But any "vigilant self-containment" of Russia begins at home. Stability of the American economy is the world's, let alone America's, shield and buckler. With punch and brevity Mr. Baruch outlines the steps that are necessary to exorcize the "clawing" fear of inflation—the shadow that hangs over economic America. Fiscal strength is the chief weapon against inflation. Accordingly Mr. Baruch would postpone tax reduction for two years and restore 50 per cent of the wartime excess profits tax. But these steps are only the beginning of his catalogue.

Everybody now knows that inflation can be conquered either by "braking" the output of money or spurring the output of goods; Mr. Baruch, with his great faith in progress, puts the emphasis of his anti-inflation measures on production. He pleads for work and more work in the spirit of our war exertions. Other items are: exchange a reduction of food prices for a three-year price guaranty to American farmers, postpone less essential public works, and review all capital issues (private as well as public) for the same purpose of economizing use of materials.

Very little attention to the details of the Marshall Plan as set forth in the current bill appears in the Baruch outline. For the most part they are included as separate recommendations. But Mr. Baruch does have a word to say about ERP organization. Judging from his comment, he agrees with the set-up recommended by Secretary Marshall, though without saying so. He would give full operating powers to a single, competent administrator, subject on all matters of foreign policy to the President and the Secretary of State. This is Mr. Marshall's suggestion. He also warns against cheese-paring when he says that aid should be "substantial," and that "if we are to undertake a European Recovery Program, let us do it well."

Mr. Baruch's testimony will be read with the respect due to his elder statesman experience and breadth of knowledge. He has such a knack of being right that he has gained a stature in this country as an oracle. If the Government had taken his counsel at the beginning of the war, much of our present inflation might have been avoided. The same common sense marks his present utterance; this time, we hope, it will be the basis of policy. It cuts clean through to the marrow of our present discontents. It strips all the issues bare to the bone. It puts the commonweal in the context of a global program to be integrated under a general staff for peace created out of the National Security Council. To that program everybody must contribute because the program is aimed at finding the solution for everybody's problem.

Moral Leadership

In a day when the influence of men is measured almost wholly by the size of the armies they can assemble or by the amounts of money they can mobilize, moral leadership appears an almost quaint and romantic concept. Yet men and women continue to be today, as they have always been in the past, responsive to moral leadership which is genuine—which is rooted, this is to say, in faith, in principle and in a selfless consecration to the common good. Mohandas K. Gandhi has demonstrated once more, as he has done on so many previous occasions, the power of such leadership in mundane affairs.

For 121 hours, the frail, emaciated 78-year-old mahatma went without food of any kind in pursuance of his pledge to fast until Moslems, Sikhs and Hindus brought to an end the bloody jehad that has rent the peace of India ever since that subcontinent gained its independence from Great Britain. On Sunday, temporal leaders of the warring religious communities gave assurances that they would settle their differences; and some 200,000 persons in Delhi signed a solemn pledge that they would live with one another in peace.

From the point of view of Western culture, the mode of settlement seems even more strange than the strife which occasioned it. The hunger strike has been tried, to be sure, as a means of exerting moral suasion here and in Europe by pacifists, rebels, religious objectors and some others who had spiritual arguments to advance. It has served, in some instances, to dramatize causes, but it has not proved particularly effective in coercing consent. Perhaps this is because passive resistance is so at variance with Western traditions. In India, however, Gandhi, who long ago renounced physical force of any kind and who had so often resorted to fasting as a means of wresting for his people concessions from the British, was acting in the one fashion which he had taught his people to respect—perhaps in the only fashion that could have had meaning for them. Their reaction to what he did and the wave of relief that has swept the Western as well as the Eastern world over the knowledge that his fast has been broken in time to spare his life affords a measure of the saint-hood with which he has been invested.

It is impossible to say, of course, that the peace he has won among his people through this spiritual force will endure or serve to bring about a real adjustment of the conflict between India and Pakistan. At least it affords a breathing spell in which temporal leaders and the United Nations can attempt to create understanding. In the West no less than in the East, there is need for the assertion of some such spiritual and moral power as Gandhi's—some moral suasion which will arrest the passions flinging men headlong down the road toward fratricidal conflict.

Costly Opinions

To most laymen the law is an enigma. But perhaps this is because lawyers make it so and because courts and judges do so little to explain it. The Circuit Courts of Appeal of the United States, for example—and these are second only to the Supreme Court itself in the Federal judicial hierarchy—tend for the most part to require such high fees for copies of their opinions as to put them quite beyond the reach of the ordinary citizen. These opinions, though often of vital significance, are reported but sketchily in most daily newspapers because of their length. Thus, save for lawyers, they are issued almost in secret. Yet the reading of them would do much to illuminate the law for interested laymen.

The Judicial Conference of Senior Circuit Judges authorizes the clerk of each court, with the approval of the court, to make such charge for printed copies of opinions as may be fixed by the court. The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia charges only ten cents for each copy of its opinions. This is a nominal fee which serves to make the court's judgments available to all who wish to study them. But other Circuit Courts are less liberal; their charges range upward to as much as five dollars for the opinions of the first five judicial circuits.

The courts themselves are to blame for these exorbitant charges. All of them are free to follow the sensible example set by the Court of Appeals for the District. In most cases, no doubt, the courts scarcely cover their own printing costs through the sale of opinions. And whether the increase of demand to be expected from a reduction of price would produce additional revenue is, of course, problematical. In our opinion, Congress ought to set a general policy for the courts and subsidize the sale of opinions by providing funds to make up any deficit the courts might incur through making these opinions available to the public at a nominal fee—say, the 10 cents charged here in the District. It is doubtful whether Congress could find any better way to promote popular respect for the law than by helping citizens to learn how the courts of their country construe it.

Grain Speculators

I should like to point out several factors in the case of Gen. Wallace Graham's speculation in wheat which the senatorial investigation naturally does not bring out. First, there has been a tempest entirely disproportionate to the amount of cause. Secondly, a man with a background of such proved service to humanity (much of it at the risk of his life), and such ability for further service—should be spared all unnecessary strains. We trust that since the facts have been ascertained, and this trading in wheat was entirely legal, the program of investigation and the attention of the press will shift to other matters.

In the writer's humble opinion the Chicago Grain Exchange should have removed temptation for speculation, as President Truman suggested, by requiring such a high percentage of margin as to prevent anything but actual investment in wheat.

No crime or misdemeanor has been committed by the thousands who have taken advantage of speculative possibilities that have always been open to the public and practiced by it. Congress might well give its attention now to ways of preventing excessive speculation in food stocks in the future.

Student Subsistence

On January 14 the Washington press reported stories about a student lobby for passage of the Rogers bill to increase veterans' subsistence payments, which revealed that the students were working in an organized effort under leadership which had been cited by the Special House Committee on Un-American Activities as sympathetic to extreme left wing elements.

Lest the impression be given that all student effort along these lines is so dominated, allow me to affirm the viewpoint here of the United States National Student Association (USNSA). As the Washington representative of that organization may I publicly disassociate the USNSA from the efforts of "Operation Subsistence." At the same time may I reiterate our support of the bills before the Congress which would increase veterans' subsistence above present rates.

Last August 31 when the National Students Congress, at which this organization was founded, brought together some 750 student delegates representing 1,389,000 students in 356 of America's leading colleges and universities, a resolution was adopted calling for an increase in veterans' subsistence and advising that "increase in GI subsistence" be "in proportion to the family unit."

Arizona Ave. Highway

The opposition of Mrs. Ann Archbold and Charles C. Glover, Jr., to the proposed Arizona ave. dual highway as reported in The Washington Post of January 14, would have more meaning if the park and recreation area were really useful as such.

As I understand it, the land donors also oppose the clearing out of underbrush in the park, which is directly responsible for the ease with which hooligans hide out there and molest would-be users of the park, adults and children alike. We parents of children in the vicinity must restrain our children from using it. The police have a list of "incidents" that have occurred there, including attempted rape, but there is no way they can drive a patrol car through to make it safer. I also understand that poison ivy is likewise "protected" in this area of natural beauty where it occurs widely.

I would cast my vote, if I could, for a dual highway and a reduced but improved recreation area where our children can play without molestation.

Safety Zone Hazard

On Connecticut ave., just south of Dupont Circle, where Wesley Heights bus riders change to the streetcars, there is an extremely dangerous zone which should be protected, at least by crossing lines. Bus riders who transfer to the cars at that point have to chance the rapidly moving traffic which swings around the circle and often runs very close to the car platform, with little or no consideration for the people attempting to cross.

The other day a public conveyance, crowded by a more considerate private motorist, was so close to the platform, and moving so rapidly, that he barely missed two elderly women who were trying to step up on the platform.

Why wait until someone "gets it" before doing something about it? And, speaking of crossing lines, has the District run out of white paint?

Taft on ERP

I should like to answer the two letters in The Washington Post of January 14, initialed "J. P." and "R. A. F.," and titled "Taft on ERP," by saying that the denouncing of Senator Taft for his opinions on the ERP and interpreting them as "suicidal . . . in the fact of what we must all recognize as world forces" may be slightly overstepping bounds.

The Senator's fundamental concepts are not confined to his party politics, for many conservative Democrats share the same humanitarian and political views with him. It was the original intention of the Nation's founders to keep the national economy built upon sound ideas of government, and despite the fact world forces have reached a crucial point, it is still questionable whether adjustments in the world crisis will be assured through the medium of theories which recommend the "Santa Claus" tactics.

Recently I happened to be passing the Tidal Basin and a score of boys were snagging winter shad that are now running. The Park Police took them to a precinct station. Why are not there signs printed where people may fish?

Rationing Without Price Control

The Congressional Record and the newspapers have recently reported an increasing interest in the reinstitution of meat rationing, among other things, perhaps by providing stand-by authority for use when the Congress so indicates. As one of the many men from business who spent more than four years in wartime Washington working on food price control, I am naturally greatly interested in the situation which has developed and which presents such a difficult problem to the Congress.

Those of us who burned the midnight oil trying to make sense of the stabilization job during the war were led by fact and sometimes bitter experience to this general conclusion: assuming conditions of scarcity in relation to effective demand, neither rationing nor price control singly was sufficient to provide necessary control effectively.

If you ration only, you do divide available supplies on a generally equitable basis among all legitimate claimants, but uncontrolled prices then provide the escape valve; consequently, effective demand starts bidding prices up despite rationing. In other words, the threat of a rationing black market appears along with higher prices.

Equally, reliance on price control alone, if meat is actually to be short, would quite likely contribute in large measure to an even worse maldistribution than that which appeared in 1946 when various monkeyshines were so apparent despite comprehensive controls. Thus, with price control but no rationing, the short supply is distributed with all the pressure working against normal distribution and according to ability or willingness to pay, even though [illegible] ceiling prices are in effect.

Nothing I recall in wartime stabilization experience indicates that rationing a short commodity where demand exceeds supply would in itself restrict price advances or cause declines. Invariably, price and perhaps other controls were also needed.

It is obvious that these premises, if correct, go to the heart of the question of overall vs. selective controls, even though we are discussing here only one commodity. Again, I am reasonably certain you would find most wartime stabilization technicians in agreement that selective controls will simply not work, if it is determined that the basic disease has reached a crisis such as to require "emergency" treatment.

Technically, at least, if the present and evident future peacetime economic situation is such as to warrant congressional action, I feel quite sure most of my wartime contemporaries will have considerable difficulty in understanding how selective controls will prove any more effective now than they did during the war, even though the economy is in a somewhat different status. Only when selective controls were replaced by comprehensive controls and implemented by the hold-the-line order did any degree of stabilization appear—and then it was accompanied by an uproar which has not yet died away.

Of course, reverting to meat, none of this tackles the issues involved in determining what could be done under peactime conditions to alleviate the worst features of wartime meat controls—the tendency to encourage withholding, the entrance of many newcomers into the industry, generally ineffective enforcement and punishment and sheer complexity—but those are likely problems in the case of any kind of control.

Finally, while I believe these comments to be based on fact, that does not solve the congressional problem. Multiply these statements by their thousand or so ramifications, pro and con, and the scope of the legislative decisions commences to appear. Nevertheless, it seems appropriate that such apparent facts as these be spread on the public record, for only on the strength of such facts, if they are conclusive and can be confirmed, may the public and the Congress find some basis for a determination.

At the same time, while technical points are always in order, I am sure the wartime technicians in this field are not so far removed from the tumult and the shouting that they would expect finely drawn technical solutions to prevail throughout; and it ought to be possible for enough of the people and the Congress to agree that many compromises will be vital just as will some degree of expediency be unavoidable. Perhaps Madison's words in The Federalist are appropriate even though some will regard them as naive: . . . it is the reason alone, of the public that ought to control and regulate the Government. The passions ought to be controlled and regulated by the Government."

Washington Calling

Trouble For France

WHILE THE great debate on European recovery begins slowly and ponderously in Congress, events on the other side of the Atlantic are not standing still. The lull of the moment in western Europe gives a false impression of a victory finally achieved.

In reality it is little more than a breathing spell in a battle that is certain to grow even more fierce. France is the key, and the political-economic barometer in France indicates a new storm on the immediate horizon.

The middle-of-the-road government of Premier Robert Schuman won out in the contest with the Communists in mid-December. Schuman also won a vote of confidence for his financial reforms by a narrow margin in the Assembly.

But the struggle with the Communists cost more than a billion dollars. The stabilizing effect of interim aid from America was in large part nullified by this staggering loss.

Not long ago Jean Monnet, the astute chaiman of the commission that has tried to map France's economic future, turned in a blunt report. It was unanimously agreed to by the members of the commission. Reduced to its elements, this report showed that France would need from outside food, fuel and raw materials costing well over two billion dollars above and beyond what could be paid for through French exports. This is a great deal more than has been contemplated in interim and long-term aid from America during the coming year.

The Monnet figures were based on uninterrupted production within France at the rate achieved just before the wave of strikes. Those strikes cost France 2,500,000 tons of coal. The wage boost agreed upon put an added strain on the shaky French economy.

IN THE FACE of a sea of troubles, Schuman has done far better than anyone expected he would. He has shown remarkable courage and skill in uniting the middle and getting at least part of his financial reform program pushed through the Assembly.

But once this has been said, it must be quickly added that perhaps his most gruelling test is still to come. There have been reports from Berlin of uncovering a secret Communist document outlining plans for sabotaging recovery in western Europe and thereby making any Marshall Plan impossible.

What is planned for France is hardly a secret. Despite the split in the labor movement, the Communists still have iron control over two key unions—the miners and the dock workers. Strikes in those unions can go a long way toward pulling down the crumbling support that still sustains the French economic structure. As the latest Monnet Communist report pointed out, with increasing inflation the average worker is more and more hard pressed and he is therefore ready to strike with little or no political prodding.

IN THE MIDST of all this, a speech came from Gen. Charles de Gaulle that seemed to confirm the suspicions of those who have insisted he would install a form of fascism in France if he came to power. Speaking at St. Etienne, the general used all the cloudy rhetoric that is by now so familiar, but he got a little more specific than ever before. He talked about how both workers' and employers' organizations should be incorporated in the state.

"First," said the general, "in any given group of enterprises, all those who are a part of it—the leaders and the workers' representatives—would, under a system of organized arbitration, fix together, as equals, all working conditions, especially wages. They would fix these in such a way that everybody, from the employer or the director down to the hand laborer, would receive, under the law, and above all according to a scale based upon hierarchy, a remuneration proportionate to the total output of the enterprise."

While the general's speech was sprinkled with references to freedom, this sounds very like the corporate state of Mussolini. It ties in to De Gaulle's reverence for authority and his belief in the strong leader.

The middle ground is fast disappearing. Whether it can withstand the attacks that will come again in February or early March is the question. The trouble in America, the London Economist said recently, is not that people refuse to learn. Few nations have learned so much in so short a time. The trouble is that events outstrip knowledge and that need is always one lap ahead. If in March the debate in Congress is still moving ponderously and uncertainly, then the middle ground in Europe will be imperiled indeed.

Mr. Povich's Column

In these "taking-matters-for-granted" times, may I tell you what a sparkling contribution your sports columnist, Shirley Povich, makes to the content of your paper. Take as an example, his column of January 13, on the so-called escapades of one Ray Alvis in the sports world. Ostensibly, Mr. Povich takes the readers backstage and shows them what opportunities there are in the sports field for enterprising minds. Actually, his column glitters and reflects a chunk of American life, in his inimitable style.

I am sure the future edition of This is America will dip into the sports biographical reservoir to which Mr. Povich contributes so much. You are to be commended for employing such talent.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Evil For Good Ends

THERE IS a notion, held by some in Washington, that the only way to win the support of Congress for the Marshall Plan is to frighten it.

Lippmann

I believe that nothing but mischief can come of that, and that to organize a propaganda of fear would be wrong in itself, would not deserve to work, and would not in fact work.

A campaign of fear designed to ride roughshod over all doubts and hesitations would be at bottom an attempt to rob the Congress of its right to be convinced and its duty to deliberate. The notion, though it is put forward by fervent, even frantic, opponents of the totalitarian system, is profoundly undemocratic. It lacks a decent respect for the dignity of representative government, and it rests on the self-righteous assumption that the true believers in whatever it is that is to be stampeded through Congress are entitled to do evil that good may prevail.

THE PRACTITIONERS of this notion have been operating for nearly a year, ever since the crisis of last March during which the Truman Doctrine was improvised. That crisis, which arose out of a diplomatic failure to anticipate and to prepare for the recession of the British power in the Eastern Hemisphere, caused a panic within the Administration. The panic caused it to stampede Congress into voting aid to Greece. The campaign of fear employed to stampede Congress, though it may have been successful in lining up the votes, committed the United States so publicly and so irretrievably that it was then impossible to make a success of the Greek policy.

In order to frighten Congress, the Administration put itself in a position where in fact it was married indissolubly to any Greek government in Athens which, no matter what else it did or did not do, proclaimed its anti-communism. The propaganda employed to sell the Truman Doctrine for Greece deprived the United States of its leverage and influence in Greece.

An intervention may have been necessary. It might, if we had remained free agents, have been successful. But because of the way it was sold to Congress, it has become an entanglement in which American prestige is at stake on the outcome of a civil war in which the government we are supporting can and does compel us to support it on its terms, not on ours.

SOMETHING of the same sort is happening in Germany. The net practical effect of telling the world that we are going to stop communism by subsidizing anti-Communists is that we are losing control over western Germany. Whereas we can still spend six months debating whether we shall give aid to our great allies, the British and the French, in western Germany we no longer have any such freedom of decision.

For we have committed ourselves to, and have staked our prestige so completely on, making Bizonia a going concern, that we must now subsidize the Germans no matter what they do or fail to do. We cannot bargain with the Germans as we propose to bargain with the British and the French, saying that we shall furnish assistance provided they in their turn carry out the engagements they have made.

In Germany we have to furnish the assistance, and we cannot withhold it if the Germans do not fulfill their part of the bargain. There is no bargain in Germany because we have made ourselves so wholly responsible for the condition of life among our Germans. We have therefore deprived ourselves of the power to say to the Germans that we shall stop the subsidy if Bavaria and Lower Saxony choose to put their food into the black market rather than into the Ruhr.

FEAR is a bad motive in diplomacy and fright is a poor substitute for argument in dealing with a democratic people like our own. The genuine motive of the Marshall Plan is an interest in the revival of great nations and in the unity of Europe and in the peace of the world. In arguing the case for the Marshall Plan, it is a mistake to rely upon fright. This plan calls for a sustained effort over a period of more than four years, and if it has no better foundation in American life than fear, the effort will not be sustained. It is not possible to maintain a state of hysteria and fear over a period of four years.

Either our people will decide that they are being bamboozled by the cry of wolf—wolf, or they will decide that they prefer the horrors of war itself to living a life of unending anxiety. In either event they will not give the Marshall Plan the kind of support which it must have if it is to be successful.

It accepted without debate Senate amendments to the bill passed originally by the House last year and approved by the Senate last Friday.

The legislation merely authorizes the program and does not finance it.

Nobel Peace Prize

By Sumner Welles

Dr. Aranha's Practical Service

IN A WORLD in which there is no peace, the award this year of the Nobel peace prize may seem anomalous. But it can be of exceptional significance.

As we look back with the clearer vision afforded us by the passage of the years, it is discouraging to see how often the prize has been conferred upon those who, with the best of intentions, are now shown to have rendered no real service to the cause of world peace.

We realize today that such instruments as the Kellogg Pact were not worth the paper they were written on. Because they deceived many millions of people as to the true factors that make for peace, they actually did more harm than good. The experience of the years between the two world wars has forced us at last to understand that it is not by mere words, but only by concerted action that the nations of the world can win a lasting peace.

If the Nobel committee of the Norwegian Storthing selects the man who has made the most practical contribution to world peace during this past year, its choice can hardly fail to fall upon Dr. Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil.

As Ambassador to the United States from 1934 to 1938, and as Foreign Minister from 1938 to 1944, he ably and untiringly helped to remove the political and economic obstacles which had for so long prevented inter-American cooperation. The outstanding part he played in the negotiation of all of those basic agreements upon which Pan-American solidarity presently rests is generally recognized. What is less well known is his determining role in ending the two wars that broke out in the Americas during the past 15 years.

THE LEAGUE of Nations could not end the Chaco War between Bolivia and Paraguay. The attempt of a group of American states to mediate dragged on interminably. There was inherent in this cruel war in which thousands of lives were needlessly sacrificed, the threat of even greater danger, for the conflicting interests of Argentina and Brazil were involved. As Foreign Minister, Dr. Aranha consistently maintained that the peace of the hemisphere was infinitely more important than any narrow benefits that Brazil might hope to secure. A fair and definitive peace was only made possible by his decisive intervention in the deliberations of the mediation commission.

As the representative of the United States in the negotiations at Rio de Janeiro in January, 1942, which led to the settlement of the century-old boundary dispute between Ecuador and Peru, and which ended the undeclared war that had broken out, I myself can testify that the conclusion of the protocol that terminated the controversy was chiefly due to Dr. Aranha, and that it was solely because of his continued mediation that the provisions of that protocol were finally carried out.

The inter-American system has become a partnership of sovereign states capable of maintaining peace in their neighborhood, and of promoting their common interests by reciprocal assistance. It offers the rest of the world the most enlightened example of regional organization that has yet been seen. It would be difficult to overestimate the value of the contribution that Dr. Aranha has made to its establishment.

BUT THE service he has rendered the cause of peace in his capacity as president of the General Assembly of the United Nations last year is equally far-reaching.

Had it not been for the determination, the courage and the vision which Dr. Aranha displayed as president of the Assembly, the Palestine problem would not now be on the road to a final settlement.

When the regular session of the General Assembly convened last September the prestige and the authority of the United Nations were at a low ebb. When it adjourned the Assembly had not only gained new authority, notwithstanding the attempt of the Soviet Union to relegate it to a role of utter futility, but it had demonstrated its power as an effective agency of all of the United Nations and as the voice of all free peoples. The credit for an achievement that may well help to insure the ultimate success of the United Nations must in great part be given to Dr. Aranha.

Public opinion in the United States, and only to a lesser degree in the other Western democracies, has all too often been prone to believe that any high official who mouths some pious platitudes about the blessings of peace, or who proposes some sterile resolution "condemning" war, has thereby actually helped to prevent war. It has failed to see that such declarations, unless they are reinforced by positive and practical action, are likely to tempt peoples to shirk their national responsibility for the establishment of peace. They tend to persuade them that a peaceful world order can be attained without a major sacrifice, without international cooperation, without social or economic reform, without the expenditure of human energy or of national resources, and without the demolition of many of the fetishes of an exaggerated and selfish sovereignty.

The Nobel Committee can do much for humanity this year if it helps to shatter that kind of wishful thinking by conferring the peace prize upon one who has made a most eminently practical contribution to the advancement of world peace.

Commissioner Criticizes FTC For 'Hit-and-Miss' Procedure

By The Associated Press

A member of the Federal Trade Commission accused that agency yesterday of spending too much time on "hit and miss" prosecutions of individual complaints.

Lowell B. Mason, a Republican from Illinois and one of FTC's five commissioners, suggested the agency put more emphasis on "a mass understanding and acceptance of the law."

Mason issued a three-page leaflet setting out what he thinks is the matter with FTC and quoted President Truman in support of part of his position.

GOP Colleague Disagrees

A Republican colleague, Robert E. Freer of Ohio, the commission's 1948 chairman, promptly disagreed with Mason's criticism.

Mason said the FTC's "cease and desist" orders—which are orders directing a business to discontinue some practice the agency regards as unfair—rarely result in protection to the public if the banned practice is common to others in the same business.

This Freer denied. These orders, the chairman told a reporter, have benefited the public by "many millions of dollars."

Mason and Freer disagreed on other things, too.

Recommends Salary Raise

Mason recommended in the FTC's annual report sent to Congress today that the five commissioners be given a raise from their $10,000 salary.

Freer said he does not believe the commissioners should discuss their pay in an annual report.

Mason said the FTC chairman should be designated by the President "instead of by our present musical chair procedure which prevents log-rolling and spreads the glory but doesn't operate for the benefit of the taxpayer." (The chairmanship is rotated annually, and Mason is scheduled to become chairman next year.)

Freer called the rotation "a pretty good thing" and said it tends to keep political issues out of commission considerations.

Cites Truman Message

Mason said President Truman has taken "cognizance of the fact that some infractions of mercantile law are best remedied through cooperative means rather than by lengthy litigation against single companies."

In this connection, Mason said Mr. Truman, in a special message to Congress May 17, 1946, "indicated we can obtain this through stipulation agreements to cease and desist or through the establishment of trade practice rules." In a subsequent message, Mason added, the President said the FTC "will operate on an industry-wide basis, rather than through the slower procedure of individual complaints."

In addition to Mason and Freer, members of the FTC are Edwin L. Davis, William A. Ayres and Garland L. Ferguson. They were not available for comment.

Britain's Appeal To Speed U.S. Food Receives Priority

By the United Press

Britain's appeal for hurry-up shipments of American food to help curb unrest among German workers in the westeern occupation zone was promised top priority by the State Department and tthe United States Army yesterday.

A State Department spokesman said the Department and the Army were aware of the critical situation even before British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin dispatched his SOS to Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

He said the two departments were giving the matter "urgent consideration." He said the shortage of food traced back to last fall, when collections of food from farmers in the Anglo-American occupation zone fell considerably short of expectations.

Bevin's appeal stemmed directly from the outbreak of strikes which hit the industrial German Ruhr area last week.

Price Support Announced For Grapefruit to End Waste

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A program to support prices for Florida grapefruit and grapefruit juice was announced yesterday by the Department of Agriculture.

No details of the plan were announced, but Florida Congressmen said the department had earmarked six million dollars for the job.

The program was announced as one to save fruit that otherwise would be wasted.

"More than four million boxes of grapefruit were not harvested last season because prices often failed to cover the cost of production, harvesting and marketing," a statement from Agriculture Secretary Anderson said.

"Production this season is expected to be almost three million boxes more than last year. In view of the world food shortage, this program will provide for the utilization of food which might otherwise be wasted."

Details, the announcement said, will be released soon.

At the same time, it was announced that Commodity Credit Corporation would buy 135,000 boxes of winter pears in Oregon, Washington and California. They will be used in the National School Lunch Program, CCC said.

Meantime at the House Agriculture Committee, studying a long-term agriculture program, a California fruit grower, Frank Long of Fresno, told the lawmakers that "the farmers would be mighty pleased if you'd leave them alone and forget about writing a new farm aid bill." But if they wrote one, he hoped it would be "in plain English—so even Congress can understand it."

"Folks," he said, "I've always thought that our economy is composed of three things—business, labor and agriculture. Treat the three equally, and everything's OK.

"This has always seemed to me a fine three-horse team which, when pulling together could plow a fine straight row. But some folks think the farm horse is pretty rugged. So they take some of his oats away.

"Then, when they see that the horse is getting along OK, they take all the oats away. Pretty soon they take the hay away. Finally he staggers and goes down, pulling the other two horses with him."

Chairman Hope (R., Kans.) referred to recent Government purchases of California dried fruit surpluses to support the price. Hope termed that subsidy. "I have been led to believe," he told Long, "that the farmers in California favor this type of program. Do you favor it?"

Long said he did. But, he said, he didn't consider that a subsidy, since prunes and raisins were purchased at less than cost of production.

Italian General Killed In 'Tragic Mistake'

The raid reportedly was carried out by a plainclothes squad which had no search warrant. The official report said police had been informed gambling was going on in Coop's apartment. Police termed the incident "a tragic mistake."

Prosecution Rests, Murphy on Stand Today

ant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher announced prosecution was resting its case, Chief Defense Counsel Martin F. O'Donoghue moved to dismiss one of the charges.

The count alleged that Murphy conducted himself in a disorderly manner on September 13, 1946, at the Joy Inn, 609 H st. nw.

According to previous testimony, Murphy, together with Maj. James R. Lusby, District disbursing officer, and Edward A. Dent, District tax assessor, were driven there in Murphy's car. Murphy and Lusby entered, but Lusby soon came out, it was said.

When O'Donoghue made the motion for dismissal, Austin F. Canfield, trial board chairman, commented, "We expected this motion."

O'Donoghue argued that Maher had "impeached" his two key witnesses in the incident, George Moy, proprietor of the restaurant, and a policeman on the scene, by announcing "surprise" when their trial testimony failed to conform to previous affidavits.

Canfield told Maher, "You had the privilege of asking Lusby whether Murphy conducted himself in a loud, noisy or abusive manner . . . you didn't ask that question."

Maher insisted that other evidence substantiated the charge, and the board took the motion under advisement overnight.

Earlier, when Battalion Chief Millard H. Sutton was asked whether transfers in the Fire Department affected efficiency he said:

"In some instances, yes, but I don't think in all." Later he said none of the companies as such was affected.

Reluctant to Name Firemen

Sutton, Werheim and Capt. Elmer F. Stein stated that discussion of many of the other alleged charges against Murphy, which include counts of intoxication and abusive language, lowered morale.

Stein, acting chief of the Fifth Battalion since June 6, 1946, was reluctant to name any firemen who discussed the charges until the board insisted he give their names and assured him there would be no reprisals.

In connection with one of the profane language charges, he said one fireman stated that "If that had been said to him he'd have taken a smack at him (Murphy)." Later Stein said the statement was made by Pvt. Meyer Gordon of Truck Co. No. 14.

In connection with an intoxication charge, Stein said one of his men, later disclosed to be Lieut. William R. Sweeney, a witness against Murphy on another charge, had said, "If he can do it, I can do it."

Stein who said he was sent to Truck Company 14 by Murphy to "build it up," declared the company was on only two actual fires in the 18-month period, and they "just seemed to go all to pieces," on one occasion failing to respond promptly to the situation.

Werheim said all the battalions chiefs would be agreed to a "sane plan" based on moving 10 per cent of the department yearly to gain experience, but said no transfer plan was announced and many transfers were "capricious."

In recent months he said, there has been a slight rise in morale in the department, because, he declared, the "mass transfers" ended.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning

That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low

If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Public Sale Of Gas Stock Is Due Today

Public offering of 13,790 shares of Washington Gas Light Co. common stock is expected after 3 p. m. today.

Public Utilities Commission authorization was received yesterday and routine approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission is anticipated today. The offering will consist of the balance of 85,000 shares originally offered to old stockholders.

The unsubscribed stock will probably be priced at $20.25 a share, unless the shares take a decided upturn from yesterday's closing price of $20.50 on the New York Stock Exchange. The company had stated that the public offering of the 13,790 shares would be priced one-half point lower than the closing price on the Big Board on the day the amendment becomes effective. In no case would the price be less than 20¼ a share, however.

The following brokerage houses will participate in the offering: First Boston Corp.; Alex Brown & Sons; Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath; Johnston, Lemon & Co.; Folger, Nolan Inc.; Goodwyn & Olds; Mackall & Coe; Ferris & Co.; Robinson Rohrbaugh & Lukens and Robert C. Jones Co.

Business Outlook

Record Coal Output Redeems Fairless-Lewis Wage Deal

By J. A. Livingston

K. C. ADAMS is tall, 88 per cent Irish and 12 per cent Scotch, and 100 per cent unparsimonious in his praise of the American coal miner. Adams is edior of the United Mine Workers Journal. His motives, perhaps, are not unadulterated. But his language is. Says he, editorially:

"American coal miners have established a new peacetime production record. . . It is a record that constitutes front-page news. It rates editorial praise. But Americans have become so sure of the productivity of American coal miners fulfilling every demand to meet the Nation's requirements in contrast to competing fuels, oil and gas, that an adequate American coal supply is taken for granted." The italics needless to say, are Adams'.

Livingston

"In the face of this outstanding achievement," complains Adams, "the National Coal Association's Bituminous Coal Institute . . . has failed to publish a single advertisement to tell the 1947 coal production story."

ADAMS OVERSTATES his case. To a Nation whose coal supply was cut off in the fall of 1945—when the miners dribbled out of the pits because John L. Lewis was bent on organizing the foremen and whose steel industry was tied up for a time in '46 by a coal strike—the argument that the miners "fulfill every demand" seems rhetorical rather than substantial.

Yet Adams has a case. And he isn't second-guessing the statistics. Back in August, Adams unfolded a sheaf of telegrams from United Mine Workers representatives in various coal districts citing layoffs due to a shortage of coal cars. "Give us the cars, and we'll produce 13 million tons a week," he said, pounding his desk.

That seemed like a tall prophecy at a time when weekly production was only 12 million tons, down 800,000 tons from May and June. The cause seemed clear enough: The work-week had been cut from nine hours to eight in the Benjamin Fairless-John L. Lewis coal wage agreement. And coal operators were pointing out that the loss in actual working time—at the mine face—was really from eight hours to seven.

THE MINERS have more than validated Adams' faith. In the week ended January 10, bituminous coal production totaled 13,690,000 tons, or 14 per cent more than when Adams was talking. This is partly because more miners are at work—335,000 as against 327,000 then. Undoubtedly, men have been attracted by the fancy wage boost. The miner today averages $1.80 an hour and $72 per week. He's the patrician among United States workers—tops on both an hourly and weekly basis, surpassing even the building workers as a group.

Further, the rise in hourly wages—up 23 per cent over a year ago—has sharpened management. Coal operators are installing mechanical cutters, loaders and cleaners as fast as the manufacturers can make them. And operators have rearranged procedures wherever possible to increase efficiency.

Finally, miners have responded to their improved economic station. They've managed to gait themselves so as to produce more per hour in seven hours than in eight. It's only natural to try to give value received.

BEARING ON this, the union had to show somthing for the 31-cents an hour wage boost, which broke the 1947 pattern of 15 cents in steel, autos, and electrical equipment. Otherwise both Fairless and Lewis would look bad.

Labor-management cooperation improved. The operators wanted higher output too. Coal prices since June are up about 20 per cent—amply compensating for the higher wages. Overall result: In November, output per man per day ran to 6.58 tons, as against 6.54 just before the wage agreement. Apparently, the time lost has been made up.

Adams need not fear that the efforts of the miners have gone unobserved. They show up in earnings reports of coal companies and in dividends to shareholders. They also are noted prominently in bulletins sent out by John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association. "But," says Battle, "I don't think it's good taste to buy space to brag about our performance, though some of our members do. And maybe later on we will." Too bad Adams isn't a member to cast his vote.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP).—Sharply lower prices were recorded in grains on the Board of Trade today as the market showed prompt response to developments in Washington.

The selling followed news of the submission of an anti-inflation program to a Senate committee by Bernard Baruch. Another influence was introduction of a bill by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.). Representative Jarvis (R., N. Y.) of a bill to provide for meat rationing.

Weakness in securities, cotton and other markets also helped to create a nervous undertone in grains. Many stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Final prices were at the day's lows in most cases.

Wheat finished 5 to 6¼ lower, May 3.96¾@2.96½; corn was 1½ to 4 lower, May 2.63½@2.63¾; oats were 1¾ to 2¾ lower, May 1.24¼@1.25, and soybeans were 7½ to 8 cents, the daily limit, lower, March 4.25½.

Among many proposals submitted by Baruch to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was one calling for the reduction of food and agricultural prices in exchange for guaranteeing farmers an assured price for their crops for the next three years. Details on this scheme were not immediately available to the grain trade.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Cotton futures registered losses of 35 cents to $1.30 a bale in moderately active trading today.

Commission House liquidation was induced by renewed emphasis in Washington on the need for inflation control. Traders sold cotton following the Baruch's proposals for price curbs and on weakness in outside markets.

In addition, the export situation was still beclouded by congressional agitation for a reduced foreign aid program which should affect cotton. Mills bought futures mostly on the scale down, partly reflecting the absence of aggressive demand for cotton textiles.

Do Actions Speak Louder Than Words?

Of course! But words and actions together speak even louder.

For example, it is the recorded policy of the Southern Railway System "to develop the territory and to foster faith in the South, its people and opportunities."

To back our words with action... to help promote the growth and prosperity of the Southland... we place advertisements like these, month after month, in national magazines having a total circulation of 5 million copies. Over and over again we're telling the nation's industrialists, financiers, and businessmen that it will pay to "Look Ahead—Look South" for greater opportunity.

Is this words-and-action policy getting results? You'll hear a loud, inspiring answer in the whistles of thousands of new and expanding factories throughout the South!

Exchange Plan Of Woodward Is Approved

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of Woodward & Lothrop yesterday approved a proposal that the 20,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock be converted into a new issue of 5 per cent preferred.

A company spokesman reported that well over two thirds of both the preferred and common stock was voted in the affirmative. Next step, he said, will be a letter to stockholders asking that the outstanding preferred be turned in on a share-for-share basis during the exchange period running from February 3 to February 24. The new securities will be effective as of March 16.

Any 7 per cent preferred stock not exchanged will be redeemed at the call price of $105 a share, plus dividends accumulated and unpaid at the redemption date set for March 30. The redeemed stock will be retired and the capital stock will be diminished by any unconverted 7 per cent preferred.

Stockholders also approved these changes in the corporate charter—permitting the name of the board of trustees to be changed to board of directors; fixing the board's number at not less than 5 and not more than 15, and authorizing the appointment of an executive committee composed of more than three instead of only three as now limited.

Originally, the board of trustees had proposed that the 7 per cent preferred be converted into 25,000 shares of new 4 per cent preferred. Each old share would have received 1¼ shares of new stock. This plan was withdrawn when representatives of local investment banking firms protested it as unfair to common stockholders.

Southern Colleges Will Meet on New Sanity Code

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

JIMMY CONZELMAN, the old gag man, evoked a lusty laugh from the Touchdown Club audience the other night at the Statler, with his straight-faced dissertation on the evils of money. "Money can't buy friendship, affection or the finer things in life—of course I mean Confederate money," cracked Conzelman.

POVICH

He could have added that even legal tender in any amount couldn't buy a baseball pennant. I was thinking as much when I learned the other day that the Pittsburgh Pirates' new owners, during their first year in the league, spent the whopping sum of $800,000 for new talent and then finished in a tie with the Phillies—for eighth place—last season.

The Pirates were the biggest spending club in history but there is additional evidence that the team with the moola doesn't necessarily get into the first division. The Cubs, who are owned by the wealthiest man in the National League, Phil K. Wrigley, who moreover is fast with a buck when he can buy a ball player, finished in sixth place. The Phillies, who deadlocked the Pirates for the cellar, are owned by a branch of the DuPont family, who can scarcely be called public charges.

WHEN THE YANKEES won the pennant in the American League last season, it was not quite a triumph of high-powered capital. Del Webb and Dan Topping, who own the Yankees, can round up a few millions of their own on short notice, but the Yankee dough was not in great evidence last season. Manager Bucky Harris and Fram System Manager George Weiss assembled a pennant-winning team with little call on the purse strings of Webb and Topping.

The Yankees' big star, Joe DiMaggio, cost the club only $25,000 a dozen years before when Weiss took a chance on his purchase after a knee injury had cut DiMaggio's price in half when four other teams lost interest in him. It was Weiss who signed Tommy Henrich as a free agent about the same time, and the Yankees' other outfielders, Charley Keller and Tommy Henrich, came up through the Yanks' minor league farm system.

The man who was the most valuable Yankee for the first half of the season was George McQuinn, whom Bucky Harris signed for nothing after he was released as washed-up by the Athletics. The rest of the Yankee team were graduates of the club's smart farm system. The Yankees, who won a pennant, didn't spend 10 per cent as much for talent as the Pirates, who finished last.

IF DOUGH WAS THE decisive factor, the rest of the American League could forget about the pennant and let the Yankee owners, Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox and Walter O. Briggs of the Tigers, settle it in a show-down of cash on the line. But the Nats, the poorest club in the league, have won as many pennants since 1924 as any club except the Yankees and Tigers, and only one fewer than Detroit.

There's a dark-horse club in the American League whom baseball men feel could take it all next season, with just a fair share of the breaks and one more solid player. They are the Cleveland Indians, whom Bill Veeck has built up with shrewd trading and at no great outlay of cash. The Indians don't have much cash to work with, compared to the rich clubs, but in Veeck they have a smart operator.

Yawkey's deal with Washington for Stan Spence in December was significant. In return for Spence, the Red Sox gave the Nats a young second baseman named Al Kozar for whom the Tigers had offered $85,000. That's more than Spence would have brought on the market, but in these times players are not for sale for cash. Baseball is back on a horse-trading basis.

CASH WAS THE biggest drug on the trading market when the club owners met in New York in their December meeting. It couldn't buy anything resembling desired talent. Most of the clubs were well-healed anyway, after their tremendous attendance in 1947, except for the St. Louis Browns, who over-expanded on stadium construction and had their bankers on their necks.

Money doesn't beget money in the baseball business. At least it can't be cashed in for as much as a good ball team will bring in at the gate. A player worth $100,000 on the trading market can be worth $200,000 at the gate, and the owners know it. The Nats, who finished seventh, would have drawn 100,000 more fans at home if they had finished one place higher and proportionately more if they had been in the first division.

The Washington club is capitalized for only $200,000, no more than some refined hamburger joints. They are rated as one of the poor clubs of the league; at least they're one of the least wealthy. But wealth is no index to a club's standing. More important to the Nats last season was Mickey Vernon's batting average. If he hadn't slumped those 85 points the Nats could have been up there in the first division with the rich boys.

Don Hillock, American U. Star, Quits

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Don Hillock, stellar guard on the American University basketball team, yesterday turned in his uniform to Coach Staff Cassell.

Hillock said that his duties as a student, basketball player and provider for a family of four (he is married and has two children) were more than he could handle.

Hillock's departure from the American squad followed by eight days similar action by Bart Fugler, who was the team's captain.

Hillock and Fugler were teammates in their high school days at Wilson High here.

Showing Displeases

It was leraned that Hillock had become dissatisfied with the two-team system employed by American and the team's disappointing showing this season.

Hillock and two other Southern Conference stars transferred to American University last fall. The others were Reggie Crockett, who came from Washington and Lee with Hillock, and Pete Negley, from North Carolina State.

American, strengthened by these three, was expected to win a high percentage of its games but so far has won only 8 of 15. In the Mason-Dixon Conference, American has won four out of five.

"He told me," said Cassell, "that he thought I treated him fairly, but that he had to devote more time to providing for his family. I couldn't ask him to disregard his family and studies for basketball. We'll miss his playing. He's a fine boy."

Cassell added that he didn't expect any more of his players to quit "voluntarily." He said finals are coming up this week, and a few of the boys are on the border line.

"If they don't pass, I'll have to drop them from the squad," he said.

Hillock plans to continue at American U. until June. "After that I don't know," he said.

When he transferred to American U. last fall, W. and L. spokesmen protested that Hillock had been "lured" by officials of the Washington school. But Hillock said that as a native Washingtonian, he had been attending summer classes at A. U., liked the setup there, and wanted to major in physical education, which he couldn't do at Washington and Lee.

Hillock was named all-Virginia in basketball last season at W. and L.

Provisions On Athletic Scholarship Under Fire

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Alarmed over application of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's new sanity code, Southern athletic directors and football coaches will meet in Atlanta Thursday and decide either to live up to the code or withdraw from the NCAA.

The meeting, it was learned last night, has been called by Gen. Robert Neyland, athletic director of Tennessee University, specifically for coaches in the highly-subsidized Southern Conference.

It has been decided to include Southern Conference coaches since schools in the two conferences play each other and any drastic action by the Southeastern would necessarily affect its relationships with the Southern.

Some Southern Conference athletic heads will attend the meeting, but only as observers. It was also learned that the Southwestern Conference plans a similar meeting at a later date.

Couldn't Hit Them Hard

The Southeasterwn Conference, where subsidization in the form of 75 athletic scholarships, including $10 monthly cash, is permissible, admittedly is in danger of being hit hard by the purity code.

Heretofore, alumni organizations have supplied and controlled most athletic scholarships. This is illegal under the sanity code.

Universities must now designate an agency within the school to supply this aid. Scholarships cannot be awarded on the basis of athletic ability alone. No one, however, shall be denied student aid because he is an athlete.

Athletic officials at Southern, Southeastern and other conference schools are as confused over the new code as they are alarmed. The program has many ramifications and implications.

New Basis for Scholarships

Theoretically, the NCAA places the athlete on the same footing as any other student under the code. High-powered alumni clubs which contribute heavily to athletic programs are barred.

All scholarships which the school awards are to be dumped into a common pool and distributed on the basis of merit and need with athletic ability not to be considered as a cause for awarding aid.

In all cases where scholarships are awarded, the student receiving such aid sholl be given a written statement of the amount, duration, conditions and terms thereof. The existence of such scholarships and their terms are to be announced in the school's catalogue, the NCHA further stipulates.

Punishable by Suspension

Any infringement of the NCHA's code is punishable by the suspension of either the school or the individual athlete.

In the event the Southeastern decides to withdraw from the NCHA and continue to aid athletes as it does now, no competition between the Southern and Southeastern would be possible. Both Maryland and George Washington play SEC schools in football.

The new code became effective January 10, but all athletes in school before that date are not affected.

The sanity code was adopted at this month's annual meeting of the NCAA in New York.

On Foul Shots

Caps Give Kids Another Lesson Today

More than 4000 kids are expected to attend today's Washington Post-Washington Capitols basketball clinics at 10 District gyms.

The subject will be foul shooting, and if you want to learn how to make 90% of those important free throws, you'd better not be late! On hand will be all of the Caps plus their coach, Red Auerbach. The Caps will show you how to make the shot and then they'll step aside and watch you try it yourselves.

Just remember to bring your sneakers or tennis shoes—no leather soles will be allowed on the floors. There's no admission charge. It's free as air.

Also remember, regular attendance at these clinics will get you a handsome diploma. And each week the Caps will select 100 of you fellows to be their guests at two games this week. Fifty boys will be invited to the Cap-St. Louis game tomorrow night, and 50 more will have special seats for the game with Providence Saturday night.

All classes will begin at 6:30 p. m., except at Jefferson, where class will start at 3:30 p. m. More than 2000 were at last week's opening session and that crowd is expected to double today.

So be on time if you want to see how the experts drop those gift shots.

Where Capitols Teach Youngsters

Here are the schools where the basketball clinics will be held and the Cap instructors:

WILSON—John Mahnken.
JEFFERSON—Red Auerbach.
ANACOSTIA—Bones McKinney.
STUART—Irv Torgoff.
FRANCIS—Johnny Norlander.
COOLIDGE—Bob Feerick.
LANGSTON—Dick O'Keefe.
BANNEKER—Fred Scolari.
LANGLEY—Jack Tingle.
RANDALL—Sonny Hertzberg.
Classes begin at 6:30 p. m. except at Jefferson, where the class starts at 3:30 p. m.

Gilmer Signs, But Amount Kept Secret

The worst kept secret of post-war professional football—the signing of Harry Gilmer by the Washington Redskins — formally was dished up to the public yesterday.

The Alabama university passing star, it was announced, affixed his signature to a two-year contract.

No terms were announced, but it was generally understood that Gilmer signed for no more than $10,000 a year—far short of the five-year, $100,000 contract which had been ballyhooed for weeks.

A cash bonus reportedly was tossed in.

"I'll get less money from the Redskins than was offered me by Brooklyn of the All-American conference," Gilmer told reporters. "But Washington seemed more attractive. The T-formation is the system I want to play and I should get a lot of help from Sammy Baugh."

Now 21 years old, Gilmer has been married three years and has a 2-month-old daughter, Constance Sue. He's exactly six feet tall, plays best at 165 pounds and can run and kick, in addition to passing.

An hour after signing he was deep in conference with Backfield Coach Wilbur Moore on Redskin plays.

Sauer Weighed For Navy Job

George Sauer, University of Kansas coach, yesterday was reportedly among those receiving serious consideration for the head football job at the Navy.

Sauer's record at Kansas the past two seasons has been exceptional. In 1946 his team won seven, lost two and tied one. In 1947 Kansas won eight, tied two and lost none during the regular season, and lost to Georgia Tech, 20-14, in the Orange Bowl.

Sauer was a backfield star at the University of Nebraska. His last year was 1934.

Sauer was in the Navy during the war and served in the Preflight athletic program under Capt. Tom Hamilton, Navy's present head coach who will become athletic director in June.

Soccer Club Loses Game, Beats Referee

GREENSBORO, MD., Jan. 19 (AP).—A Stewart Cup soccer game between the Pompei Club of Baltimore and Greensboro of the Eastern Shore League erupted in a ruckus yesterday afternoon and State police reported the referee was badly beaten.

The official, Vincent Savarese of Baltimore was treated for a black eye, facial cuts and body bruises. Part of his clothes also were torn off.

With one minute to go and the score 1-1, Savarese called a foul on Greensboro and awarded Pompei a free kick from the corner of the field. It was turned into a goal on another close decision.

Police said they learned seven Greensboro players hit Savarese and the crowd swarmed on the field. Savarese suspended the seven players and refused to let the game continue. This touched off some more milling around by the crowd and it was not broken up until the county sheriff arrived, along with State police from the Easton Barracks.

Gene Ringsdorf, secretary of the Maryland and District of Columbia Soccer Association, said today he had suspended the Greensboro team from further competition in the Shore League or the Stewart Cup series.

Chug! Chug! Chug!

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 19 (AP).—Two tugboats, one a steamer and the other diesel-powered, were at about the half-way mark today in their race up the Mississippi River from New Orleans to St. Louis.

The steamer Kokoda kept a 42-mile lead over the diesel-powered Helena last night while both boats encountered snow and ice. The tugs left New Orleans Thursday to test the merits of steam and diesel power.

Evans' Number Retired

Lawrence, Kas., Jan. 19 (AP).—The University of Kansas athletic department today retired the No. 42 football jersey worn by Ray Evans, the Jayhawkers' first varsity all-America halfback.

Cambria Moves Up

St. Louis, Jan. 19 (AP).—J. C. Taylor Spink, National Baseball Congress Global Commissioner, today confirmed the appointment of Joe Cambria as commissioner of nonprofessional baseball in Cuba.

Cambria, former scout of the Washinton Senators, will represent Cuba at the N. B. C. meeting at New York February 3.

New Lou Gehrig?

New York, Jan. 19 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees claim they have a "new Lou Gehrig" on the way up.

He's Joe Collins, a kid from Scranton, Pa., who has his mind set on that first base job at Yankee Stadium.

Last season with Birmingham of the Southern Association and Newark in the International League, he hit 23 homers, 11 triples and 23 doubles for a fancy slugging percentage of .511.

Temper! Temper!

Montreal, Jan. 19 (AP).—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said today Maurice (Rocket) Richard of the Montreal Canadiens had been fined $75 for an outburst of temper in Boston last night when he hurled two sticks on the ice from the penalty bench.

Coach Surprised . . .

Reports Grid Yanks Signed Oklahoma Collegian Denied

Oklahoma City, Jan. 19 (AP).—Bo Rowland, Oklahoma City University football coach, said today he was surprised to learn his first string, 265-pound Tackle Marion Shirley had signed with the New York Yankees pro football team because he had assurances from Yankee officials the sophomore would not be touched.

"I got a letter from Jack White, who is assistant coach of the Yankees, on December 19, last year, Rowland said.

"White told me they would not touch Shirley until he finished school.

"I'd like to know what the set up is now. I thought a boy couldn't be signed without the coach's consent."

Shirley said he would receive $6500 for playing next season. He was at the University of Oklahoma a semester before the war and served in the Navy before entering Oklahoma City University in 1946.

In Coronado, Calif., Admiral Jonas M. Ingram, commissioner of the All-America Conference, said that the signing of Shirley had not come to his attention and that he had received no protest from Oklahoma City Univeristy officials.

"Contracts of all players in the conference are investigated," Ingram said, "and if any player is not eligible for pro football I will not approve the contract.

"If a player elects to go to school and is eligible to play football at the university or college he is attending, I will not approve any contract he may sign to play football with a team in the All-America Conference."

Ingram said he expects to go to his New York office next Monday and probably would investigate the signing of Shirley then.

W & M Star Is Ineligible

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 19 (AP). Tom Mikula, 190-pound blocking back of the William and Mary championship football team, who yesterday was ruled ineligible for further competition in the Southern Conference, announced last night that he will consider offers from professional football teams.

"I would like to go into pro ball, and probably will—if I get a good offer," Mikula said after being informed of the conference's decision.

Mikula, who has seen only three seasons of activity in a William and Mary football uniform, will be unable to participate a fourth year because of a technicality in the conference rule book.

The Johnstown, Pa., husky enrolled here in June, 1943, but his first season of athletic competition was the football season of 1944.

The Southern Conference ruling that "participation in intercollegiate athletics shall be limited to one freshman and three varsity years over a period of five consecutive years counting from the date of first matriculation" is the regulation which caused Mikula to be ruled ineligible. Although Mikula failed to participate as a freshman, he has played three seasons on the varsity.

Can't Wait for Jack's Mistakes

Kramer Forces Riggs to Change Style

By Ralph Bernstein

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19 (AP). In the biggest transformation since Dr. Jekyll turned to Mr. Hyde, professional tennis' two championship protagonists have swapped court styles.

Bobby Riggs, "the biggest little man" in tennis, candidly admits that big Jack Kramer has made him change his game. That's quite a statement from the cocky Riggs, whose policy heretofore has been to tell everyone who would listen that he is the greatest tennis player in the world and then go out on the court and prove it.

The professional tennis group of Riggs, Kramer, Francisco (Pancho) Segura—the two-fisted racquet wielder from Ecuador—and Dinny Pails, Australian precisionist, rolled into Philadelphia over the weekend in Riggs' new car; apologized for being 45 minutes late and then charmed a press gathering with tales of much gold and great tennis. The group was enroute south for a series of matches, including a Washington, D. C. match Thursday, before coming back to Philadelphia Friday.

Riggs, as good a public speaker as he is a tennis player, told of the "new Riggs."

"I've always been known as a defensive player; a 'cheese champion' who loafed and wanted for the other man to make a mistake. Well, that is a thing of the past since this fellow Kramer rarely makes a mistake and is a wonderful competitor.

"Early matches taught me at once I'd have to become an offensive player if I was to lick him and retain the professional tennis championship," Riggs said.

"Im playing most of the time my game at the net and forcing the play. Actually I 'm matching my service with Kramer in a battle of nerves."

This change of playing style must be contagious because big Kramer, who won almost every amateur title at stake, also has acquired a "new look."

"I got so 'high' after one match recently that I decided to take things a little easier since it was my feeling that I'd never last through the tour at that pace," Kramer said, adding that it didn't pay since he lost the next four matches in straight sets.

"I'm going back to the aggressive slam-bang style and am in high hopes it will pulle me ahead of Bobby."

The good-natured Kramer said he was not bothered by lights and was in top shape. That he apparently dotes on continued action was pointed out by Promoter Jack Harris, who said Kramer won four matches in as many nights, then rested and dropped four straight.

There are still some good seats left for the Bobby Riggs-Jack Kramer tennis match Thursday night at Uline Arena. Tickets are on sale at the Arena and at the Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. nw.

Opening Thursday's program will be a singles match between Pancho Segure and Dinny Pails at 8:30 p. m. Riggs and Kramer will then meet in a two out of three set match and the four stars will play a doubles exhibition to close the program.

He's Kidding

Who Is Boss Here—Veeck Or Feller?

Cleveland, Jan. 19 (AP).—The ruddy-faced man with the open collar grinned at his audience and began:

"I come to you tonight through the courtesy of my employer, Bob Feller, who told me to get down heer and meet the good people."

President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians has found this a good way to lead off his talks, and uses it often.

The hustling Tribe chieftain is now at the height of a year-round speaking junket that takes him to more than 350 Ohio and western Pennsylvania audiences. He covers every sizable city along Lake Erie from Buffalo to Toledo like an Indian blanket, and his listeners in that last year have numbered about 75,000.

He talks to Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary clubs, high school athletes, parent-teacher associations. And "even spoke from the pulpit of a church once."

Bill's pleasant, conversational delivery and large stock of jokes soon warm up his audience. And thee question period following often lasts longer than the original talk.

Once a male audience showed up in sport shirts in deference to Veeck's sartorial preference. Another group gave him a pair of panties:

"So you don't lose yours when you talk salary with Feller."

"I like to meet people and talk to them," Veeck explains. "You might say I can keep my finger on the pulse of the public that way. Also, in what better way can a salesman sell his product to the public than to talk to them as I do?"

As one listener said last week after hearing Veeck:

"By golly, he sure makes you want to see a ball game, doesn't he?"

Last season Cleveland home games drew more than 1,500,000 for a new record while the Tribe played fourth-place ball. Fans-conscious Veeck and his missionary work helped no little.

Conference Ring Tourney Mar. 5-6

The 1948 Southern Conference boxing championships will be decided at the University of South Carolina, Columbia, S. C., on March 5 and 6, it was announced yesterday by the conference boxing chairman, George D. Quigley of Maryland University.

Besides the defending champion Maryland team, competing schools will be the hosts, Clemson and The Citadel. Action will be in eight weight classes with the Terps' Ed Reider and Ken Malone defending titles in the 160 and heavyweight classes, respectively.

Arries Named National Director

Leslie G. Arries, manager of Duncan's Television Station WTTG in Washington, has been named national director of sports by Lawrence Phillips, director of the DuMont Television Network.

Arries, president of the Touchdown club and a former football, baseball and basketball star at Northwestern University and an All-America end in 1917, has been with DuMont for eight years. He will maintain offices in Washington and New York.

'They Don't Belong,' Says Trautman

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 19 (AP).—Players contracts carrying bonus clauses based on outstanding performance were outlawed today in America's 56 minor baseball leagues.

George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the minors), informed about 250 delegates to the first annual conference for club and league executives such contracts would not be approved.

"Such contracts don't belong in baseball," Trautman said at today's session devoted to interpretation and discussion of the major-minor rules and the National Association agreement.

"This office will approve no contracts bearing 'performance' bonus clauses," the red-haired prexy of the minors declared. "When a player signs a contract he signs to do the best he can, and that's what he should deliver without the guarantee of added pay.

"Such contracts are dangerous to baseball. It is possible for a player to sign a contract awarding him a bonus if he wins 14 games, and after he wins 13, his club could keep him off the mound the rest of the year, thus preventing him from collecting.

"The same goes for a player guaranteed more pay for hitting over a certain figure. Such contracts might lead to something that we don't want in baseball, and we will not approve them."

Trautman also ruled there could be no "side agreements" on salary to be paid a player, but that all payments must be included in the original contract.

"Such side agreements," Trautman declared, "lead to destruction." He cited cases where players, as an inducement to sign a contract, had been recipients of farm machinery purchased by a club, or where the father of the player had been given a job as scout, and declared all such transactions should be explained in the contract to determine whether the player was eligible for designation as a "bonus" player.

"No matter what rules are made," the chief of the minors commented, "sometimes the boys get together in the haymow and attempt to figure out some way to get around them. We're trying to tie things down so that can't be done."

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: At Hialeah

Can't keep a good man down, I guess. Jockey Ted Atkinson, who took a rest recently, didn't lose any of his saddle technique during the layoff. Always a stickler for condition, Ted kept himself in shape and, as a result, stepped right into the lead among the Hialeah saddle artists. He will be hard to dislodge. He has ridden one or more winners each day of the meeting so far. Atkinson was the leading rider at the Flamingo track last winter. From reports coming in on Sunshine Park (Tampa) it looks like the jockeys from our section are having a tough time getting mounts. Baird is doing O. K. and so was Arduini before he was injured. However, there are many boys, who were kept busy on the halfers and at Charles Town, who don't seem to be able to buy a ride. Tony Neri visited Alan Clarke's farm recently and reports that Clarke's Fritz Maisel, now a 3-year-old, is doing nicely. The son of Little Beans is getting out in the paddock almost daily and his owner-trainer plans to start legging him up a bit early next month. Clark is still serious about naming Fritz Maisel for the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and other top 3-year-old races.—Bill

Eastern Tries for Revenge At Patterson Park Today

Carrying the prestige of the Washington public high basketball teams with them, Eastern's Ramblers journey to Baltimore to take on the strong Patterson Park High Clippers today. The Eastern-Patterson Park game is the feature of a 14-game court schedule.

Eastern and Patterson Park met before the Christmas vacation, and the Baltimore's defending interhigh champions walked away with an easy 57-34 victory. Since then, however, Eastern has improved considerably. The Ramblers have won five in a row against high and prep school opposition, and are tied for first plare in the Washington interhigh league.

The Clippers are led by Mel Baldwin, their hot-shot forward who has averaged over 17 points per game so far. Eastern will start Sal DeGiorgi, Johnny Brown, Sonny Wesley, Spike Barouth and Harry Wharam.

Outdoors . . .

By Jack Bell

WITH THE WATERS of the Severn and Wicomico Rivers covered with ice, we decided the weekend was unfavorable for sport.

Looking toward the trout fishing season, we decided it would be a good time to make repairs and improvements to the Rag Mountain camp of the Anglers Club of Washington, D. C., near Sperryville, Va.

Accompanied by Ray Cleary, Donald Rowhr and Paul Knowlden, all of Arlington, Va., we spent the past weekend there.

Early Saturday morning the scene that greeted us was a "barren solitude of dignified nature." The day, however, proved exceedingly favorable to our project of preparing for comfort during the trout fishing season.

That evening while we were partaking of our repast (T-bone steaks) under the glow of kerosene lantern light, it began to snow and brought to mind "the cold and selfish world we left behind" to enjoy the quiet and tranquility of the Shenandoah mountains.

BY THE TIME we were comfortably zipped in our sleeping bags, the temperature indoors dropped to 20 degrees above, while outdoors it registered zero.

Warm and very snug, we were soon lulled to sleep by the soft whistling wind and the rattle of loose window sash.

In the midst of this solitudinous region formerly occupied only by mountaineers and moonshiners, we were awakened by "dignified nature" in her ruder aspects.

With a roar like the sound of a hundred locomotives, a gale blew out of Nicholson hollow with such force as to shake the building to its foundation.

We all had visions of the roof taking off and finding ourselves half buried in debris, picking splinters out of ourselves.

From now on, we are going to read about the outdoors and make needed repairs to our fishing gear at home, surrounded by "the cold and selfish world we left behind."

Baltimorean Sells Gulfstream Holdings

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP).—Morris Schapiro of Baltimore, a director of the Gulfstream Park race track, today announced the sales of his holdings in the track to James Donn, president.

James L. Clifford, an associate with Schapiro in Gulfstream since May, 1943, will retain his holdings and interest and will continue as director of racing, the track announced.

Gulfstream recently closed its 40-day season.

Scoring Roundup:

Wanish Tops in Conference; Jim Lacy Paces Mason-Dixon

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19 (AP).—Guard Bill Wanish of the University of Maryland dumped in 49 points in two contests during the week to take over the lead today in the Southern Conference point-making derby with a total of 113 points.

Wanish was just a point ahead of last week's leader, Bill Cantwell, George Washington forward and captain, who had 112.

Wanish's 113 points came from 46 field goals and 21 free throws, scored in eight conference games.

Chester Giermak, William and Mary center, was in third with 99 points, and Bob Goldsmith, Washington and Lee's freshman center, lagged in fourth with 97.

Only four league games are on this week's lean program, the first Wednesday night when South Carolina goes to Clemson. In a Friday night game, the Citadel invades Clemson, and in two tilts Saturday night, Virginia Tech will turn up at Duke and the Citadel travels to Furman.

North Carolina's loop-leading Tar Heels, who lost their first games to New York University and Temple after taking 12 straight, have their only test of the week Saturday night at Pennsylvania.

No games are scheduled for tonight.

The past weekend saw South Carolina whip George Washington, 70-64; Wake Forest down Clemson, 68-48; William and Mary squeezed by the University of Richmond, 50-47; Maryland trounce Virginia Military Institute, 63-48; Roanoke College down Washington and Lee, 48-41; Temple beat North Calolina, 61-51; Furman won over the College of Charles, 73-51. A scheduled game between Duke and North Carolina State had to be postponed because the state gymnasium was declared unsafe to accommodate more than 1200 persons.

Baltimore, Jan. 15 (AP).—Depending on the way you look at it, four or five Maryland basketeers had a claim today on high point honors, either in their conferences, or their averages or free for all.

There wasn't much doubt that Jim Lacy, Loyola College sharpshooter who was second high scorer in the Nation last year, had produced the most points of anyone in the State or in the Mason Dixon Conference—238 in 15 games.

But only five of those were conference games, some schools have played as few as two and some as many as nine, so some of the other outfits boast entries with better averages than the Loyola ace.

If its averages you're after, take Pete Clark of Western Maryland. In 11 games this season, in and out of the Mason-Dixon Conference, he has scored 179 points, for an average of 16.3. That's a little better than Lacy's 15.9, which rates second.

If you want to know who's scored the most points in Mason-Dixon Conference games, take Catholic U.'s George Laubacher —117 in nine games for an average of 13.0.

Who Loses Freedom
Loses Everything

BELIEVING profoundly in the letter and spirit of the Bill of Rights, we are gravely disturbed by the continued attacks by men in our Government upon the freedoms guaranteed in the First Amendment to our Constitution.

We are devoted to the best in the American tradition. We believe, therefore, that the Committee on Un-American Activities threatens those freedoms that have given us for 170 years the way of life we cherish and respect.

The meaning of Article 1 of the Bill of Rights is very clear . . .

"Congress shall make no law respecting establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

They are betrayers of American ideals—those who use terror, innuendo, hearsay, and smears, ignoring the common rules of evidence and all precepts of fair play.

We call upon the American people to disavow such subversions of our basic freedoms as lie in the proceedings of the Committee on Un-American Activities.

That there may be a swift termination to such assaults upon our constitutional rights, we ask the American people to join us in a concerted action towards one goal: the abolition of the Committee on Un-American Activities.

Solely to accomplish this end, we are organizing as the Committee of One Thousand. Our means: an educational program using every available medium of communication to reach the broadest section of the American people and to enlist them in this fight.

In a well-known decision in 1945 the Supreme Court of the United States stated . . .

"If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion, or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith thereof."

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

A flatterer is a man who says things to your face he wouldn't say behind your back.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

President Moves Toward Rebuilding Labor Department

LABOR: The President yesterday took a first step toward rebuilding the Labor Department.

He sent a reorganization plan to Congress that would transfer permanently the United States Employment Service and the Bureau of Employment Security to the department. The plan is certain to get a critical study in Congress.

Both House and Senate must vote against the plan within 60 days or it will go into effect automatically. The Congress last year turned down a presidential recommendation that the USES remain in Labor.

The argument was made at that time that USES and BES, which handles the unemployment compensation system, should be in the same agency. BES is in Federal Security and USES would go back to FSA after the emergency is declared ended. The President has tried to meet congressional criticism by placing both USES and BES in Labor.

However, officials of USES and BES already have started to lobby against the reorganization plan.

GOSSIP: Attorney General Tom Clark has urged the President to appoint Milton S. Kronheim, jr., a local lawyer, to the vacancy on the District Court. He was enthusiastic in his praise of Kronheim . . . The next vacancy on a local court will be that of chief justice of the Court of Appeals for the District. The resignation of Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner is said to be imminent.

CAB: Harllee Branch may be the next member to resign from the Civil Aeronautics Board. Also reported is the strong possibility that a second member of the board will retire within a few months. There are now two vacancies on the CAB and only one member would be left if two of the three present members resign.

UPWA: Representative Fred E. Busbey (R., Ill.) yesterday called on the Attorney General to place CIO's left-wing United Public Workers on his list of "subversive" organizations.

He said the Government worker union has "consistently followed the Communist Party line" and its "leaders and officers have been completely dominated by the policies of the Communist Party."

The Illinois legislator in a letter to the Attorney General, asked him these four questions:

Has the FBI submitted a report to you on UPWA? If so, did it contain information indicating UPWA is subversive under the President's order that set up the President's Federal worker loyalty program? If such a report indicating disloyalty has been received, why hasn't UPWA been designated subversive by you? And finally, if no inquiry has been made of UPWA, will you please have the FBI make an investigation and inform me of the results?

It's no secret that UPWA officials were worried that their union might be on the Attorney General's blacklist. In fact, UPWA President Abram Flaxer and several other CIO officials called on Clark before he made his list public to ask if UPWA was on it. Clark would only tell them at that time that the matter was under study.

With his letter, Busbey sent Clark a copy of a recent Daily Worker advertisement announcing a performance by Paul Robeson whom he described as a "well-known Communist" for the benefit of UPWA. The Worker is the official Communist publication.

LEGISLATION: The House Rules Committee yesterday gave its approval to a bill that would pay up to 50 million dollars to United States civilians who were captured and interned by the Japs during the war. Most of these civilians were Navy employes . . . The House yesterday okayed a bill to bring employes of the National Library for the Blind under the Civil Service retirement system.

NOTES: Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the Civil Service loyalty review board, will speak on the loyalty program next Monday night at a dinner meeting of the Society for Personnel Administration in the YWCA. . . . STATE will give its employes efficiency ratings on a staggered basis. New employes and people who transfer to it will be rated after they have been in their jobs for six months and annually thereafter. All others will be rated March 31 annually.

CIVIL SERVICE soon will announce exams for about 2500 adjudicator jobs in the Veterans' Administration. The jobs pay from $4149 to $7102 a year. . . . It also will announce within 10 days an exam for appointment to the nursing school at St. Elizabeths Hospital. The test will offer both men and women a chance to compete for a three-year nursing course to begin in September.

Traffic Toll For Year Now 3 as Woman Dies

Ohio Visitor Struck Saturday; Two Injured in Bridge Collision

D. C. traffic deaths this year . . 3
Deaths this date last year . . . 2
Total deaths last year 72

A 64-year-old woman visitor here died of traffic injuries at Emergency Hospital yesterday, the third traffic fatality within the District this year.

In other traffic cases reported yesterday, two persons were injured in progressive collision of a bus and three automobiles on Kingman Lake Bridge, Anacostia Park, during the morning rush hour.

The dead woman was Mrs. Hattie Schneider of Toledo, Ohio, who was struck with her daughter as they crossed Pennsylvania ave. at East Executive ave., near the White House, on Saturday night. She succumbed to head injuries at 5 a. m. yesterday.

Daughter's Condition Good

Her daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Kremer, 44, of 515 Franklin st. ne., with whom she was visiting, suffered a fractured pelvis, but was reported in good condition last night at Emergency Hospital.

The two were struck, police said, by an automobile operated by Melvin M. Gusdorf, jr., 20, of 4700 Connecticut ave. nw., as he turned left into Pennsylvania ave. from Madison pl. The youth, a student at George Washington University, was en route to the theater with a companion, Miss Deborah Babbitt, 15, of 3955 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Police ordered Gusdorf held for the coroner. He had been charged with failure to yield the right of way to pedestrians at a crosswalk.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Schneider leaves two sons, Melvin D. and Carlton D. Schneider, both of Toledo.

Injured in Bridge Accident

Seriously injured in the Kingman Lake Bridge accident at 7:30 a. m. yesterday was Mrs. Estella Rank, 38, of 2304 Cheverly ave., Cheverly, Md., who was admitted to Casualty Hospital with possible head injuries, shock and bruises of the legs. She was riding in an automobile driven by her husband, Boulden M. Rank.

A bus rider, James V. Galloway, 25, of 5211 Jay st. ne., told investigators he was hurled against the back of a bus seat. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for injury to the groin.

Police said the accident began when a westbound Route 36 Capital Transit Co. bus, collided with the rear of Rank's automobile. The automobile then struck another driven by W. H. Messick of 4065 Minnesota ave. se., which in turn hit a car operated by Elbert H. Bush of 194 St. Catherine st. ne.

Operator of the bus was Artie Wade, 30, of 1725 Bay st. se., police said. No police charges were filed.

Montgomery Man Hurt

A Montgomery County man, Darby Duvall, 21, of Rockville, suffered a possible fractured pelvis yesterday when struck by a car as he alighted from a parked truck at Olney, Md.

He was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital. Police listed driver of the car as Jacob E. Warrenfeltz of Brookland, Md.

In another accident, two women were injured as a result of a two-car collision on the Colesville rd. at Good Hope rd. Miss Lillie Stabler, 76, of Spencerville suffered a possible broken arm, and Mrs. Elsie Stabler, 69, also of Spencerville, sustained head cuts and face lacerations.

The two drivers, Herbert Stabler, 69, of Spencerville, and Garland H. Mayes, 16, of Brentwood, were charged with reckless driving by Montgomery County police and hearings were set for February 10 in Silver Spring police court.

Truant Officers Make Visits in School Strike

Truant officers yesterday completed their first round of visits to parents of Negro Browne Junior High School students on strike at the Blow and Webb annexes.

Attendance at the two buildings where children have been out of classes since December 3, was a third of enrollment. At morning sessions, 223 of 552 students were present, and in the afternoon 158 of 579 students were in classes.

A request by Belford Lawson, jr., attorney for the Browne Parent-Teacher Association, for a conference with members of the Board of Education will be brought before the board tomorrow, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president, said.

The P-TA demands the board provide "more adequate" facilities for Browne students.

Shop Transfer To Playground Is Protested

District Recreation officials and Southwest Citizens Association leaders joined yesterday in a protest at the Capitol against Commissioners' plans to operate a Department of Vehicles and Traffic shop on a playground adjoining the Jefferson Junior High School.

Senate District Committee Clerk J. George Stewart, who met the group, said he would ask the Commissioners to reply and then turn the problem over to Committee Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.).

The Commissioners had notified the association of the transfer of shop facilities to the old Harbor garage building on the playground, at 9th and H sts. sw.

The Commissioners said no other adequate space was available.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, told Stewart the land was bought with recreation funds and that $15,000 is in the 1949 recreation budget to demolish the old garage.

Wender said if the Commissioners can take recreation property for other uses it will handicap the recreation board, and be "a direct threat to these people in the Southwest community."

Appearing with Wender were Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of recreation; Miss Sibyl Baker and Robert Andrews, assistant superintendents, and a Southwest Citizens Association committee of Frank Hurst, Joseph H. Schneider, Mrs. Thelma Morgan, Lloyd Jones and Michael P. Troiano, president.

$1000 Rise Asked in Pay Of Teachers

McCarran Presents Measure for Flat Increase of all District Salaries

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A $1000-a-year pay boost for all Washington teachers was proposed to Congress yesterday by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.).

McCarran, former chairman of the Senate District Committee, introduced a bill in the Senate to make the proposed cost-of-living pay boost effective last New Year's Day, to continue until living costs drop to the levels of January 1, 1943.

As the result of last year's District teachers' pay act, Washington public schools now have a salary range from $2500 to $4000 for teachers without a master's degree, and $3000 to $4500 for teachers with a master's degree.

Limit of $8000 Year

The new pay bill would apply to all teachers and to most other professional employes of the Board of Education. The $1000 flat boost would be given to all employes covered by last year's pay act who now receive $7000 a year or less. Above that level, the bill says that no increases are to be given that would push an employe's total pay over $8000 a year.

Senator McCarran, long active in campaigning for improved Washington school pay, said that despite recent increases, "the real wage of these deserving men and women is less today than it was five years ago."

Senator McCarran's bill was sent to the Senate District Committee.

Eight District Bills

Meanwhile, Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) of the Senate District committee, introduced eight District bills, most of them requested by city officials. The bills would:

1. Set up a committee on Capitol clearance to tell Congress how to make more efficient use of public land in the District.

2. Let police destroy dangerous weapons they seize from persons who have them illegally, unless Courts order otherwise, or the District attorney has them held for use as evidence.

3. Increase barber's license fees to put the Board of Barber Examiners on a self-supporting basis.

4. Permit out-of-town doctors to get a District license if they have a certificate or diploma from a national examining board.

ABC Pay Increase

5. Authorize a pay increase for members of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board by putting them under the Civil Service Classification Act.

6. Set up a five-member board to register and regulate professional engineers in the District.

7. Boost from six to 12 the number of District cadets at West Point.

8. Boost from five to 15 the number of District midshipmen at Annapolis.

In another action, the House passed a Senate-approved bill amending a 65-year-old law that said the inspector general of the Army had to make a personal annual inspection of Soldiers' Home here.

The new bill says he can assign other officers to make the inspection. Although both Houses have passed the bill, a minor language change made in the House sent the bill back to the Senate for final action.

Traveler Aid Service Cut Held Probable

A possible one third reduction in services rendered by the Travelers Aid Society, and a cut in the society's professional staff are expected to result from the failure of the Community Chest campaign.

Board members of the group, meeting yesterday, agreed that two and a half case worker must be cut from the professional staff, and that a part-time worker must be pared off the clerical staff. The relief budget also faces a reduction —of about 50 per cent— of the agency is to function under its reduced budget.

Probable results of the slice, according to Mrs. C. F. Alexander, director, will be less coverage at the bus station, and fewer cases handled. The reduction in the case category is expected to be about a third.

Mrs. Alexander is retiring from the agency aften 10 years' service.

At yesterday's meeting, two new board members were elected for three-year terms. They were George E. Muth, president of George F. Muth, Inc. and Millard West, jr. Muth also is an officer in the Boys' Club of Washington, the Rotary Club and the Arts Club. West is past president of the Junior Board of Commerce and a member of the board of directors of the Council of Social Agencies.

Contractors Must Have Permits or Face Apprehension

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

District Government officials last night ordered an immediate crackdown on contractors who build or remodel structures without a permit.

Police will be directed to arrest any contractor working without a permit and hale him into a precinct station to post collateral or bond in amounts ranging from $50 to $500 before being released. He will then face charges in Municipal Court.

The Washington Post yesterday disclosed that Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King and Chief Field Inspector Jesse J. Kimball were anxious for strict enforcement of the permit laws, but were restricted by a standing practice in the department. This practice permitted violators who were caught working without a permit to escape punishment by applying for a permit upon apprehension.

Director of Inspections Robert E. Davis yesterday ordered Kimball to make an "immediate crackdown" on permit regulatoins violators and to end the soft-gloved "courtesy" practice under which the only punishment mete dout to a violator caught red-handed wa sa demand that he obtain a proper permit.

Kimball welcomed the order and immediatly contacted police precinct captains to ask them to direct their men to begin arresting violators, instead of merely informing the Inspections Department, as ha sbeen done in the past.

Kimball said that "willful violators must be punished. That is the only way we can break this practice. A policeman doesn't stop to write a letter when he catches up with a person speeding and we shouldn't, either."

King also approved the change in policy and said that he would recommend violators be forced to post from $50 to $300 cash collateral or from $300 to $500 bond when apprehended.

The attorney said the crackdown will be principally directed at contractors, rather than owners, since the latter usually depend on the building men to secure the proper permits.

At present a special committee is studying permit regulations and procedures with a view to streamlining the issue of the permits. Some building men have complained that contractors are tempted to skip the "complicated and time-consuming" permit snarl, rather than lose time and effort in the procedure.

The parents then tried to get back into the building but were driven off by the flames. They were burned about the face.

Graveside funeral services will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Bethel Cemetery near Garfield.

New Record

Navy Radios Photograph 10,581 Miles

By The Associated Press

A photograph radioed from the small mobile unit on an icebreaker in the Antarctic to gigantic receiving apparatus at Cheltenham, Md., has set a new record of 10,581 miles for regularly scheduled direct radiophoto transmission, the Navy Department claimed yesterday.

The radiophoto was one of the daily transmissions from the Burton Island, a vessel in the Navy Antarctic expedition which is collecting weather data.

Pictures and weather charts are received at Cheltenham and piped into Anacortia, a Navy spokesman said.

Long-range transmissions are made possible by coordination of the communications stations at Annapolis and Cheltenham, Md.

The huge transmitters in Annapolis serve as sending station for Navy Radio, Washington.

The old mark was 8952 miles, established in 1940 by the New York Times-World Photos, Inc., and press wireless communicating between Little America and Baldwin, Long Island.

On the theory that weather in the Northern and Southern Hemispheres generally originates at the poles, the Navy said its systematic collection of data in the Antarctic helps the weatherman forecast the conditions elsewhere.

Rakes, Wife Rest Defense In Bank Case

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19 (AP).—Counsel for Hugh N. Rakes and his wife, Mrs. Lillian C. Rakes, charged with aiding in the misapplication of funds from the Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg, rested their defense in Federal District Court here late today.

Under cross examination by United States Attorney George R. Humrickhouse, Mrs. Rakes denied repeatedly that she was guilty of any wrongdoing in assisting her husband by making deposits and writing checks at his direction.

The wife of the Leesburg dairyman denied that her husband had been "running around" the State covering kited checks and asserted, instead, that they had spent long hours of hard work trying to manage his dairy interests during the period when the Government contended they were assisting William Reeves Gardner to misapply the bank funds.

Mrs. Rakes said she had no servant to assist her and had helped with milking on some of the farms.

largest sum her husband had ever given her to deposit for him, Mrs. Rakes said, "Three, four or five thousand dollars, I guess; I don't know for sure."

She declared she had not traveled around the State 'at all hours, day or night, with suitcases full of money" trying to cover up kited checks, in response to the district attorney's questions.

Mrs. Rakes did say she had pawned her jewelry, a fur coat, a watch and her household furnishings to assist her husband to cover some oif his obligations. At another time, she said, she inquired into the balance maintained in her husband's accounts and presumed that all the checks she wrote were good, since none of them came back from the bank.

Rakes did not take the stand, and the defense rested immediately after Mrs. Rakes concluded her testimony late in the day.

Anne Arundel Heads Play Cupid To Blind Couple

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 19 (AP).—Tradition gave way to romance yesterday with the Anne Arundel County commissioners.

Approached by the Annapolis postmaster today for permission to let Kenneth W. Merrill of Baltimore operate a magazine and refreshment stand in the courthouse, the commissioners forgot about precedent and said "Okay."

Thus they cleared the way for the marriage of Merrill, who is blind, to Miss Joanne Faunce, also blind, who runs a similar stand in the Postoffice building.

Now Joanne is looking for a place for Merrill to stay. As soon as the couple gets quarters, they'll be married, she says.

Hinterlanders Take Over

Manhattan Hits Spending Slump; Mrs. Vanderbilt Carries On in Grand Style

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEW YORK is in a definite postholiday slump. Taxi drivers grumble, dress sales are still going strong, fancy spenders are keeping elastics tight on their bankrolls. At posh restaurants, where a lamb chop cluttered with a handful of string beans, sets your escort back $2.75, good tables are easy to get. Sole exception is the Pavilion, where the best heeled refugees hang out. Theater tickets can be had without too much struggle or outlay. Night clubs like El Morocco are jammed with strange hinterland types having themselves a time on one Scotch and soda plus cover charge. The old familiar faces are either tanning their wrinkles in Palm Beach or home conserving principal. Dining in "21" after a dud theatrical opening, every other woman entering was wearing a full skirted satin ballerina dress, covering her head with a nest of ostrich plumes, or experimenting with one of the new hairdos—"snails" coiled over each ear or the whole works swept to one side, instead of being massed on top.

Clustering around the bar were such notables as Bob Considine, who has just finished collaborating on former President of Poland Mikolajczyk's story; Charlie McArthur, Helen Hayes leprechaun husband; Actress Margalo Gilmore, Scenic Designer Doland Oenslager; his wife, Zorka, chic in long-sleeved, high-necked black lace; luxurious Mrs. Lawrence Copley Thaw, whose ermine coat is always whiter than anyone else's.

Charming French Mayor

AT THE COLONY Restaurant Elsa Maxwell, who has shed heaven knows how many pounds, lunched Mrs. Ogden Mills and Mme. Jacqueline Patrenotre, who is young, chic, is not only Mayor of Rambouillet, one of Paris' charming suburbs, but is one of 22 women senators who nowadays under the new political setup are called members of the Council for the Republic.

Madame Patrenotre, whose father was Andre Thome, a prominent French politician, is spending next weekend in Washington, dining at the embassy Friday, with Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss Saturday.

At the Voisin Restaurant, Radio Tycoon John Royall, recently divorced from "Blithe Spirit" Leonora Corbett, was lunching a cute trick. Ditto Bachelor Alfred Corning Clark and mystery man Public Relations Expert Ben Sonnenberg.

Foreigners Around Town

TRICKLING through the expensive boites are handfuls of foreigners well known to the international set and whose wartime political reputations were peculiar, to say the least. There's been Emilio Pucci, once rumored as second husband of Edda Mussolini Ciano; Prince Eddie Von Bismarck, who is back at the old stand as star boarder in the Harrison Williams' household; Princess Sixte de Bourbon Parme, the former Hedwige de la Rochefoucauld, who once was a great pal of the Carbuccias, the collaborationist owner of a clever Paris sheet called Gringoire.

Also around is Andre Dubonnet, the apertif king, who is rumored on the verge of marrying the alluring sugar heiress, Dorothy Spreckels. Ruth Dubonnet, his former wife, is said to be busy trying to get back her American citizenship which she did not value as highly when the Nazis were occupying France.

Those who know Europe and the international set are wondering how many of their former drinking and playing companions have obtained visas to this country.

'Neelie' Carries On

ON THE MORE cheerful side, the upper crust of the world is still maintaining its tiny toehold at kindly Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's. Though Mrs. Vanderbilt has been ill (her eyesight is not what it used to be) she still gives her really glamorous Sunday night dinners, and a half dozen other functions a week. Everyone who is interesting—musicians, diplomats, bankers, important foreigners, sometime or other are asked chez Mrs. "Neelie." Sunday there were 18 in her lovely paneled dining room. The long table with its snowy damask cloth was centered with a huge golden bowl filled with fruit, a dozen smaller gold dishes filled with wonderful candies. The guests ate their delighted way through a thin soup, filet of sole with almonds, turkey and fixings, with Poire Helene for dessert, followed up with persimmons and other tropical fruits.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, in black lace instead of her favorite red, wore her pearl and diamond rope, diamond clips, a single marquise diamond, once used by Tiffany as a specimen stone to compare quality with less perfect diamonds. Her black lace headband was pinned with a diamond arrangement spiked with pearls, which was once part of her mother's tiara.

After dinner two of the guests played the piano in the music room, where the harp Mrs. Mrs. Vanderbilt played still stands. Others talked. Mrs. Vanderbilt showed off the new photograph the Duke of Windsor had just sent her. Framed in red leather, stamped with a gold crown, it was signed with the single word "Edward." The whole wonderful familiar show was presided over by Hudson, the famous Vanderbilt butler, who returned from the wars fairly recently, and a corps of the famous Vanderbilt footmen, all of whom stand well over 6 feet. The house, the wonderful food and wine nowadays are run in style because Mrs. Vanderbilt is willing to dip into her capital. It can't go on forever and when Mrs. Vanderbilt stops entertaining, a unique bit of the lavish American scene will disappear. She has done so much to spread goodwill, to get people together, to make a marvelous backdrop of the grand way, that her "services" should be honored. Has anyone thought of giving Mrs. Vanderbilt a Medal of Merit? Britain has decorated a number of American hostesses for doing a trifle of what Mrs. Vanderbilt has achieved during the past 50 years.

Clayton Challenges Taft On Marshall Plan Cost

By Genevieve Reynolds

FORMER Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton yesterday challenged Senator Robert Taft's statement that the Marshall plan would call for three billion more dollars' worth of goods in 1948 than in 1947. Guest of honor and speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon held in the clubhouse, he told the some 200 members and their guests, "Taft's prediction is wrong, as will be shown in due course."

Clayton contended that goods shipped to the Continent under the Marshall Plan would be about the same amount as shipped last year. "If adopted in toto, the European Recovery Plan will not place additional burdens on the American economy," he declared.

He pointed out that the European countries have exhausted their means to pay for American goods and that the Marshall Plan offers them a new means for payment. He listed the British Loan and Lend Lease as ways by which the European countries previously paid for American goods.

Calls Plan Workable

Discussing the workability of the Marshall Plan, he expressed a belief that it would work provided the stipulations such as restoration of production, lowering of trade barriers and stabilization of currency are carried out. These were the steps agreed upon at the 16-nation Paris Conference, he said.

A Continuing Committee should report to the world on the progress of the ERP program, Mr. Clayton believes. The only sanction the Committee would have would be that of public opinion," he explained. "But if the European nations knew that their progress under ERP would be published from time to time, they would be more likely to stay on their toes."

As for how much progress would be made under the Marshall Plan, Mr. Clayton pointed out that all depended upon how the program is set up and administered.

When asked by former United States Attorney General, Francis Biddle if the satellite countries would be eligible to participate in the Marshall Plan, Clayton replied, "yes," if in the future they meet the stipulations of democratic principles such as freedom of speech and press. "I can't conceive of the United States permitting any country to participate in the ERP that doesn't adhere to democratic principles," the speaker declared.

Risk Involved

Admitting that the enterprise involves some risk, he said the alternative of doing nothing brings an absolute certainty of what will happen." If people have to fight communism cold, hungry and economically frustrated, they will lose their fight to maintain their integrity and sovereignty," he explained.

Another poser put by Biddle was "Isn't it inconsistent to continue to lend money to socialist governments?"

Clayton said he felt it "would be a great mistake to impose the condition that no more aid will go to governments nationalizing industries." "I am opposed to laying down that condition," he said. He pointed out that England has nationalized its railroads, banks and mines, but keeps freedom of speech.

"I do say that any country receiving aid, however," he continued, "must be a country that still maintains democratic principles."

Queried as to the best suggestion for administering the Marshall Plan, Clayton said that he was reserving his opinion until the Brookings Institute releases its report on the matter.

Economic Agreements

Referring to the economic aspects of the ERP, the speaker stated that the United States must make bilateral trade agreements with the 16 nations involved; that two per cent of our gross products will be sufficient to aid Europe under the Marshall Plan.

As for whether or not the Europeans will work for their own recovery, Clayton expressed a belief that they will work if they have the tools, and somebody pays them in money in which they have confidence.

"Money is almost the number one factor in restoring people's confidence," he said. "Europeans have lost confidence in their money becauseof its uncertain value."

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, club president, presented the speaker and presided during the question-answer period following the main address.

Vassar Girl of '91 Recalls Early Scholarship Loan

Believe it or not! Scholarship aid, which today makes a college education available to many girls, once was considered "demoralizing" reminisced Mrs. David Wing, popular head of the Madeira School for Girls at Greenway, Va., when she gave up the chairmanship of the Scholarship Committee of Washington Vassar Club, which she has held for 50 years.

MRS. WING

Back in 1891, as Lucy Madeira, she received the first scholarship aid ever to be awarded by Washington Vassar Alumnae about 26 years after the founding of the college in 1865.

Explaining that she received a loan without interest, not a scholarship, Mrs. Wing, commented, "In those Puritanical days, it was felt that a girl must not be 'demoralized' by an outright gift of money. She was made to understand that every penny of her grant must be repaid. It was not until 1922 that this loan became a full-fledged scholarship as it is today."

Mrs. Wing has seen Washington Vassar Club's scholarship aid jump from a $200 loan in 1891 to two annual $800 gifts.

"I hate to give up this work which lies so close to my heart, but I feel that the time has come for a younger generation to take over," she concluded. "But I know that Mrs. Lee D. Butler, who succeeds me as scholarship chairman, will do a splendid job."

Then she gave enthusiastic support to the Vassar Club's benefit fashion show scheduled for January 31 at the Statler Hotel. Proceeds of the two-performance show will go to the club's scholarship funds. Tickets for the event went on sale Monday in the Statler Hotel lobby.

Spareribs Star on Wintry Dinner Menu

It's hog-killing time in the country and spare-rib-time almost everywhere these chilly, wintry days! Here are a few suggestions on barbecuing the ribs to make a dish that's fit for a king:

When you buy the spareribs have the man at the meat counter crack them in half right across the middle. Then divide the meat into pieces containing about two ribs each. That will give you servings just the right size for finger food.

Arrange the ribs in a shallow baking pan so that the rib ends touch the bottom of the pan and the arched part of the rib is facing upward. Set your oven at 350 degrees F. and keep it that way all through the baking of the spareribs. This is most important because spareribs (any pork, for that matter) require thorough cooking at moderate heat to bring out the best flavor.

Pour spicy barbecue sauce over the spareribs and bake them in the oven about an hour and a half, basting them lovingly with the sauce from time to time. A recipe for the sauce follows. It's not very hot, so if you like it really fiery, step it up by adding additional chili powder.

BARBECUE SAUCE

1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/3 cup chili sauce
1/3 cup vinegar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
2 tablespoons water.

Mix all ingredients together in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until hot. This recipe makes ¾ cup of sauce.

Your Questions on Homemaking

What is the best way to remove wall paper? There are many layers that have been on for many years. R. R. H.

It's going to be quite a task to get off this wallpaper unless it's loosened a bit with age. Start by soaking it with warm water to soften and free the paste. For this a sponge or a wide brush can be used, or water can be sprayed on with an insect spray. Begin work at one end of the wall and wet it in vertical stripes. When the wall is completed, give the paper another soaking. Several applications of water will be needed, with time for it to soak through the various thicknesses of paper to the paste on the bottom layer. A handful of washing soda to the gallon of warm water may quicken the action, but care should be taken not to let the solution settle on finished woodwork, for it will destroy paint and varnish.

When the paper loosens, it should be torn off from the top, sticking places being scraped with a broad putty knife. With the paper off, the wall, while still damp, should be sponged with clear, warm water. To remove bits of paper and hardened paste, rub the wall, when dry, with fine sandpaper wrapped around a block of wood.

Can you give me a recipe for the savory dish, French fried onions? I recently learned of this delicacy when having dinner at a French restaurant. I knew better than to ask the chef to divulge the secret formula, so I have combed through all the recent cookbooks of my neighborhood book store but to no avail. E. D.

Skin onions. Cut them crosswise in ¼-inch slices. Combine ½ cup milk and ½ cup water. Soak onions in this for ½ hour. Drain onions, spread them on absorbent paper, and dredge them with flour. Season and fry until they are light brown in deep fat heated from 350° to 370°.

Will you furnish names of dance studios where instruction is given in square dancing and folk dancing? H. V. E.

I do not know of any all dance studio that has such classes. However, the Y. W. C. A. at 17th and K sts. nw. has a class in recreational dancing, which includes square, folk and ballroom dancing. A new class starts tonight at 7 o'clock at the Y. Meetings last 45 minutes and the course consists of 10 weekly sessions. Both men and women ar invited to join the class.

I have just purchased an automatic washer and am doing my husband's shirts for the first time. I have followed the directions on the starch box for starching the collars. However, I do not get the crisp smooth finish on the collars and cuffs that is there when they have been finished commercially. Will you tell me how to obtain this beautiful finish? H. W. M.

The ironing as well as the starching has a lot to do with getting a crisp, smooth finish on shirt collars and cuffs. Starch at least twice as thick as that for the rest of the shirt should be used. If your husband likes his collars quite stiff, you may want to use starch five or six times as thick. Some people like a cold-water starch for use on collars, cuffs and button bands. You might try this and see if it works better than cooked starch for you.

In dipping collar, cuffs and front bands, gather them all together in pleats in your hand. Hold tightly and dip in the starch. Repeat the process several times before finally squeezing out the starch and slapping the material between the palms.

Be sure shirts are evenly dampened before you iron them. Sprinkle, roll up, cover with towel, and let them remain an hour or two before ironing. Have the iron good and hot, though, of course, not hot enough to scorch fabric. Iron collar first on wrong side, then on right until perfectly dry, pulling taut and working from points in. Iron neckband completely dry. Shape collar by hand, ironing edge of crease. Next, fold yoke flat and iron dry. Iron armholes dry. Then iron cuffs the same as collar. Nose iron up into gathers. Straighten sleeve from underarm seam. Iron on both sides. Iron underarm seam dry. Now iron back of shirt, then buttonhole side of front. Iron both sides of front pleat, holding it taut to prevent wrinkles.

SAFE KEEPING: A covered tray like this one is just about tops when it comes to storing eggs in the refrigerator. It keeps them from absorbing flavors from other foods and cuts evaporation to a minimum. Its hard plastic top protects the hen fruit against breakage, but lets you see at a glance just how many you have on hand. Incidentally, don't wash eggs before storage. Water removes their natural protective covering and cuts down on their keeping qualities

Bishop-Bracken

I have a half-gallon of eggnog which has soured. It is a dairy-mixed product and does not contain any alcohol. Is there anything I can do with it, other than throw it away. E. R. C.

About the only useful thing I know that you could do with a soured product of this kind would be to feed it to chickens or other small animals. If you knew the exact proportions of eggs, sugar, cream and milk, it might be possible to use it with soda in baking. However, since it is a dairy product, this possibility is out. Using it in this way would be risky, anyhow, and might be just "throwing good after bad."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Young Wife, Mother of Three Babies, Grows Restless, Unhappy, Trying to Curb Social Inclinations Which Her Husband Disapproves

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 28, married and the mother of three children. My husband is a good provider as his means permit and he is good to the children and me; but I get upset over his attitude toward my longing for some social life outside the home.

He doesn't forbid me to join clubs, church, etc., but if I go shopping with his sister or a friend, his manner shows displeasure when I come in and I feel like a wrong-doing child.

He doesn't say anything, unless to ask why I'm a few minutes late; and I don't think he would ever strike me or stoop to profanity, but when I am out I am always afraid I will catch the dickens when I get home, so there is no pleasure in it.

For that reason I've given up hope of belonging to any women's groups or going anywhere without him and he'd rather stay home than make the effort to take us (including the children) out.

Feels Beaten At Every Turn

I TRY to be companionable with him. I like to share his experiences by sympathizing with his misfortunes and praising his achievements, when he cares to tell me what he has been doing outside. But if I try to share my day's work with him and some of it has gone badly, he says, "Don't bellyache to me,"—a favorite phrase of his which grates on me.

I've tried to interest him in some hobby we could share together here at home, but it is a wasted effort; and while I feel it is normal for married folks to seek enjoyment outside their walls, I've tried to rise above and forget that longing; but I am increasingly nervous and unhappy.

My parents live 200 miles away, mother hasn't been well in years and they can't afford the trip here; but they are anxious to see our twins—born prematurely five months ago—and I wanted to take the children by train for a visit here, but my husband forbade.

He said I could go, but I'd have to leave the twins here and find some one to stay with them; but I can't find a person to take the responsibility and I feel beaten at every turn. What do you think of the situation. Please advise me.

E. V.

Man Is Anxious, Unhappy Person

DEAR E. V.: As you say at one point in your long letter, here boiled down to bare essentials, you are depressed by intangibles mostly. Which is true, and a very astute realization.

Your husband isn't overtly abusive and materially he provides to the best of his ability—though only ostensibly, I may add; as he could do more to lighten your labors if he would.

What you don't say, and I point it out, is that he coldly fails you on the score of joy-giving, almost as if he unconsciously preferred to maintain a low, or chill, temperature in the relationship.

The fundamental "intangible" about your husband is this: In himself he isn't a happy person, the autobiographical explanation of which would be a long story, beginning I daresay with an insecure love-starved childhood. As a result, he doesn't associate happiness with daily living.

Fear Constricts Man's Emotions

DUE to early ingrained tensions, he is chronically anxious by temperament and more so now that he is responsible for the support of a multiplying family. He is too constricted emotionally to have much sympathy or interest to invest in others; or to hunger normally (as you do) for generous conjugal camaraderie and revivifying friendships jointly indorsed.

Hence he is hardly aware that, on the one hand, he treats you somewhat as a bonded slave and beast of burden around the house; and yet, on the other hand, feels inordinately dependent on your loyalty to ease his insecurity tensions and therefore reacts with jealous worry to your normal desire to be out and about, cultivating and cherishing good neighbor ties.

Limited space prohibits further discussion of the case; but my advice is to cast out fear in dealing with him; and become—as you must; in self-defense and to help him—the socially active character you were fashioned to be. You're in the right in that respect, so be vigorous, patient, cheery and indomitable in gradually conditioning him to a wife who gets around

Clip Calories, Step Up Proteins

It's Easy, Says Dieter Who Took Off 100 Pounds

By Ida Kean Kain

IT'S EASY enough to start a diet, particularly at this season when everyone else is having a go at it, but it's keeping on with the calorie subtraction that odes the actual reducing. So just in case the fine edge is wearing off your enthusiasm, this report may spur you on. It is from a woman in New Jersey who casually writes that she has taken off 100 pounds.

"I notice that occasionally you relay parts of letters written by reducers and thought you might be interested in my story. I was rather overweight—in fact, I weighed 275 pounds. After going to a doctor and getting a thorough check-over, I was put on a strict diet of 1000 calories a day. The diet was high in protein, low in fats and carbohydrates. During the year I took off 100 pounds and now weigh 17g. I am not slender but I look very well and feel wonderful.

"I have stayed at that weight for the last six months, as the doctor advised against further loss at that time. However, I've been checked again recently and he approved of my plan to lose another 30 pounds. So please send me a new calorie chart. Your column has helped enormously, and the chart makes it easy to keep track of the calories consumed each day.

"Keep right on encouraging the overweights to reduce. They have no idea how completely marvelous it feels to be rid of the burden of fat and how nice it is to be complimented by friends, and to be able to purchase attractive clothes and look youthful. Especially welcome are the compliments and praises I receive from my husband, and he is ever so proud to take me out."

Let's see . . . to take off 100 excess pounds, our model had to turn 400,000 stored caloriesback into energy! All this she did just by clipping calories in the nonessential foods, and stepping up the protein to help burn calories at a brisker rate. And if she can go ahead and take off 30 more pounds, perhaps you'll not feel so put upon if you have to stay with the eating-to-slim-down plan long enough to take off your trifling number of excess pounds. As you can see, there's nothing to it! Here is a sample menue of a diet high in protein and low in calories:

Paris Expects Hemlines to Drop Again

Paris, Jan. 19 (AP).—Paris fashion houses unveil their spring collections next month and fashion sages are predicting longer skirts.

An impressive web of secrecy has, as usual, been woven around the collections, but it is reliably reported that 7 inches from the ground—1 inch longer than the most exaggerated lengths last fall—can be expected. Some of the more moderate houses probably will maintain a happy medium.

Exaggerated hippiness is expected to be the vogue even more than last season. Materials are expected to be as luxurious as ever, with no harsh, bold colors. Gentle pastel shades will be played to the full.

Floral designs will be tabu—materials will be mainly plain. But polkadots from nickel to saucer size are expected to be splashed in a big way. Plaids copied in both silk and wool from original Scottish designs and colorings also are forecast.

Your Baby and Mine

Careful Check of Diet Helps To Detect Allergy Villian

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

When a child reacts dramatically by breaking out in hives or getting swollen eyes, lips or warm, red ears, it should be pretty evident that in the previous 12 hours he has eaten food to which he is allergic.

If the baby is young it is not so difficult to trace the cause of the disturbance, for there will probably be only milk, orange juice and maybe cereal to account for it. But, when there is a general diet, there are so many foods which might be responsible, that it takes long and careful search to run down the villains.

It is advisable, when the child has shown any symptoms of allergy, for the mother to keep a careful chart of the foods eaten daily. Then she may look back on the diet the previous 12 hours, or more, and may find that always when this reaction appears the self-same foods are represented on the menu.

Skin testing with the suspected foods may confirm the diagnosis. Patch testing is useful for materials other than food. But elimination diets are pretty conclusive if worked out in conjunction with the doctor. The other has to be conscientious and keep the child's diet completely free for one week of the food suspected to blame. Then a test-meal is given and the doctor has ways of deciding whether the food is or is not one to which the child is noticeably allergic.

There are four foods which are most often to blame when the child suffers from marked allergic reactions and those foods are the ones he is most apt to have in the diet; milk, eggs, wheat and corn.

Recently other symptoms have been added to the ones with which most persons are familiar—such as eczema, asthma, hay fever, chronic constipation and diarrhea — and those are behavior symptoms of fatigue, of disinterest in work or school subjects and in wilful misbehaviour. This may make clearer why some children are unable to "concentrate" or behave, no matter how much they might wish to be different, or what discipline is used to deal with them.

Whatever food or external factor is responsible for the physical or psychic disturbances, there will be times when the child will be free of symptoms even though he eats the same food or is exposed to the same factors. This is the cyclic character of allergy, but it is responsible for lulling a parent's suspicions to rest, and making her feel too confident that the child is going to outgrow his sensitivities without aid.

Kitchen Lore

Use a few drops of olive oil or glycerine in oiling kitchen utensils such as the food chopper and egg beater. If a drop or so should work into the food it can do no harm.

If the fish you are frying seems to spatter a great deal, invert the collander over the pan. This will prevent splashing and perhaps nasty burns and yet the small holes will allow the steam to escape and not make the fish soggy.

The safest way to make successful pastry is to always use freshly bought shortening, saving the shortening you have had on hand for a while for frying purposes. Nothing will spoil the flavor of the pie crust more than a stale or even slightly stale shortening.

C. U. Spruces Up Ex-GI Theater

By Richard L. Coe

A REBUILT GI THEATER and a rewritten play, is the news out at Catholic University's speech and drama department.

The theater once served at Camp Patrick Henry, Norfolk's embarkation point. The play is "Bride of Darkness," which its author, Pat Treadwell, has revised from her "Stranger at the Gate," performed by the group in the summer session of 1943.

While this reporter missed Miss Treadwell's original version, he was acquainted with the new theater in its original state at Pat Hank. It was one of those typical GI movie theaters so like hundreds of others that you always had to catch yourself from asking: "Where am I now?" This one, though, had a subtle distinction. Next to the milk bar at Pat Hank you always knew you were either going over or coming back. That made the big difference from its identical twins.

And there's a big difference in its new guise. There's a cheerful air about it now which Pat Hank's Theater No. 1 never had. There's a marvelously sloping floor which gives every one of its 550 seats a superb view of the stage, a far wider one than the group's old home a few yards away. While the stage isn't so deep, there's a big apron, fine lighting effects and the acoustics seemed clear—at least from the aisle of Row E. The back of the GI Theater has been chopped off to make room for heating equipment and murals are to decorate the spacious whiteness of the side walls.

Altogether, the new theater is a fine addition to the department's facilities. The old one, in which so many interesting productions have been offered, will remain in laboratory use, of course, but this building—plus its comfortable theater chairs (a far shout from the GI benches!)—is a big step forward for the university.

And Now—The Play

Exactly how—or whether—Miss Treadwell has altered her drama we don't know. She is telling the story of a lonely young woman whose fear that no one loves her pitches her into the arms of the prince of darkness.

The setting is an Arizona ranch, and in those around her she sees only selfishness and cruelty. With one exception—a simple young man whose love of beauty compels him to paint. How he ultimately saves her from the despair of madness forms Miss Treadwell's story.

Personifying the supernatural is one of the trickiest things a playwright can do, for the person to whom such visions appear must be made completely credible. To me, at least, Miss Treadwell's Lisa is not credible, nor do I think it can be laid to the thoroughly competent acting of Janet Fehm in the role.

Bill McGuire Scores

For we are not clearly told how Lisa came to her precarious state. Too often events are brought about only by pointedly avoiding the natural, obvious things people do. A doctor—Lisa's link with sanity at the critical stage—is shown as incapable of handling one situation only to pop up later by behaving with courageous sanity. The playwright's effort to show Lisa's plight overdraws on the weakness and evil in the characters who torture her.

The writing is often good, but too frequently, at crucial moments, stretches into the absurd. If anything, the play is overwritten.

As usual, the production is impeccable, from the effective sets and lighting of Don Gilman and James Waring to two particularly able performances by Miss Fehm and Bill McGuire, as the boy. Despite the awkwardness of speaking in a patois, McGuire has succeeded in getting under the skin of his character.

"Bride of Darkness" will continue nightly, Sunday included, through the end of the month.

IN BRIEF: Mail orders are now being accepted for Bert Lahr's "Burlesque," which opens a week's run at the National February 2; this is not, by the way, a burlesque show—it's the comedy by George Manker Watters and Arthur Hopkins revived for Lahr by Producer Jean Dalrymple . . . Tonight through Thursday the Arts Club will be playing Mark Reed's comedy, "Yes, My Darling Daughter"; Director Edward O. Kelley's cast includes June Weaver, Susan Oliver, Zita McBride, Martha Smith, J. Edmond Veitch, Marshall Kathan and William McClellan. The club's theater is at 2017 I st.

Trade Differences Ended

Buenos Aires, Jan. 19 (AP).—Senator Diego Luis Molinari, chairman of the Argintine delegation to the International Trade Organization meeting at Havana, said here today all differences with the United States had been eliminated.

He said Argentina was ready to make any necessary sacrifices to insure cussess of the Havana meeting.

Molinari said the basis for agreement provided that the trade charter to be drafted would provide for a temporary organization and that the permanent ITO would be established when normal conditions return to world trade.

He said Argentina has decided to make New Orleans the terminus of her fleet of merchant ships and planes, utilizing the free port there for distribution of Argentine goods to both the United States and the Caribbean area.

He confirmed reports that Argentina would build a refrigeration plant in the New Orleans free port. He said Argentine shops would carry fruit and meat to the refrigeration plant and that later these products would be either sold in the United States or reshipped to Caribbean points.

Priest Fails To Get Action By Fairlington

A Catholic priest's criticism of the Fairmac Corp., owners of Fairlington, yesterday was characterized as an "amazing defense of Communist practices" by Charles Prins, public relations representative for the corporation. He said the priest's denunciation has not changed the company's position.

The Rev. Father Martin T. Quinn, pastor of the Blessed Sacrament Church, rebuked Fairmac Sunday for failing to bargain with its striking maintenance employes. He called the refusal a "denial of a democratic American moral principle."

The priest chided the corporation for rejecting negotiations on the grounds one of the union's employes belonged to the Communist Party.

Prins said the corporation is "willing to meet with any responsible labor representation." The walkout began December 8.

Prince Georges Mental Health Clinic Opens

The Prince Georges County Mental Health Clinic, located on the campus of the University of Maryland, College Park, officially opened yesterday.

The clinic, first of its kind in the Nation, is being operated jointly by the United States Public Health Service and the Maryland State Department of Health. Backed by $40,000 in USPHS funds, it is part of a Nation-wide mental health program initiated last July.

Dr. Mabel Ross, child psychiatrist formerly at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, is head of the project, and will have a staff of four working with her. She reported yesterday that a number of calls had been received and that the staff was making appointments for treatment.

Open only to Prince Georges County residents, the institution will treat anyone with emotional or nervous problems. Patients may be referred by physicians, schools, public or private social agencies, or may come of their own accord. Hours will be 8:30 to 5 daily, and consultations by appointment only.

An interim committee, with representatives of all civic groups interested in mental hygiene work, met yesterday at the clinic. H. Clay Whiteford, chairman, appointed a nominating committee to prepare a slate of members for a permanent advisory board of 12 members.

Members of the committee are G. Gardner Shugart, superintendent of schools; Dr. W. B. Moyers, representing the county medical society, and Marion W. Parker, representing the Rotary Club.

The permanent group will be elected and a constitution adopted at a meeting sometime in February. Yesterday's meeting was attended by Dr. Thomas E. Englar, new county health officer; Dr. John M. Byers, former county health officer, and Dr. Kenneth B. Jones, chief of the Maryland State Mental Hygiene Division.

Junior Forest Rangers Head Dead From Shot

Baltimore, Jan. 19 (AP).—Leon D. Wagner, 56-year-old head of the Junior Forest Rangers of America, died in St. Joseph's Hospital last night of a gunshot wound through the mouth.

Police said he was found in his combination home-headquarters on Wednesday with a .22-caliber rifle beside him. They said he was to have appeared in Juvenile Court that day on an undisclosed charge.

Wagner's organization featured forest conservation work in combination with military training.

Morgantown ManFound Dead in Baltimore

Baltimore, Jan. 18 (AP).—A man identified as Paul Childs, 30 to 35, of Morgantown, W. Va., and Cumberland, Md., was found dead today beneath the high Orleans St. Viaduct on the edge of the business section.

Police could not explain how Childs happened to be in Baltimore or how he might have fallen from the bridge.

Relatives said the body would be returned to Morgantown for burial.

Girl Injured By Backing Police Car

Three Montgomery County children, two of them 4 years old and the third 5 years of age, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday in separate accidents.

Judy Morrow

John R. Dillon, jr.,4, of 10107 Burnett ave., Silver Spring, received major bruises when his arm ran through the rollers of an electric washing machine. In retrieving a rubber ball from the kitchen sink in his home, he accidentally flipped on the washing machine and his arm entered the rollers almost to his shoulder. He was treated at Washington Sanitarium and released after X-ray examination disclosed no broken bones.

Mary Lee Gruver, 5, of Rockville, Md., was injured by abacking police car. Driver of the car, Capt. Roy Bodmer, said he was not aware of the child's presence on the police parking lot at Rockville until he felt a rear wheel strike an object.

Bodmer got out of the cruiser and discovered that the child's head was almost under the wheel. She was taken to Suburban Hospital. The child, police said, is the daughter of John Gruver, a Gaithersburg High School teacher.

In the third accident, Judy Morrow, 4, of 529 Dale dr., Silver Spring, was overcome by coal gas fumes. Ozygen was administered by the Silver Spring rescue squad. A physician said the child's condition was "satisfactory." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Morrow. The father is a taxicab operator.

Shugart to Speak

G. Gardner Shugart, Prince Georges County superintendent of schools, will address the Hampshire Greens Community Association at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert A. Monck, 1117 Lancaster rd.

Record Budget Goes To Va. Assembly

Tuck Requests 17 Million in Capital Outlays, Average $150 Teacher Raise

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19.—The Virginia General Assembly today received from Gov. William M. Tuck a record budget, providing for more than 17 million dollars in capital outlays, and an average annual increase in teachers' salaries of $150.

Although Governor Tuck estimated Virginia will need to spend $504,995, 051 during the next two years to meet its obligations, he is opposed to using a sales tax to get additional State revenues.

Offers 7-Point Program

Instead, increased funds would come from a seven-point program Governor Tuck outlined to increase levies on existing sources of revenue.

In addition to the 17 million dollars Governor Tuck is asking the Assembly to approve for capital outlays, he also wants an additional 21 million dollars earmarked "conditionally" for capital outlay projects.

Major portion of capital outlays which Governor Tuck is requesting for State institutions would better institutions which have made no "very extensive additions to plant and equipment within the past 25 years," the Governor explained.

About Five Million Spent

He pointed out that while 39 million dollars has been appropriated from the State's general funds since 1940 for capital improvements, only about five million dollars has been spent, because of the scarcity of material and labor, and the high costs of construction.

The Governor's budget is based on the assumption that tax revenues, swollen since 1940 by war and postwar expansion, will continue to increase or at least maintain present levels during the current biennium.

Tuck explained that "influences over which State administration has no control may operate to bring in greater or lesser revenues." If greater revenues accrue, then conditional appropriations for essential needs will be released; and if revenues do not meet expectations, the budget will be pared to balance.

$11,878,357 More for Schools

The State's public school system would receive $11,878,357 more for the 1948-50 biennium than for the 1946-48 under Tuck's budget. The Governor pointed out that the school budget asked for the current biennium is 354 per cent higher than for the last prewar biennium, from 1936-38. The budget allows for increasing the number of teachers "to the figures estimated by the State Board of Education to be desirable and probably available."

Of specific benefit to localities, the budget provides $52,474,735 for salaries of teachers and local school officials; $5,183,090 for vocational education and other public schol activities; $9,857,840 for teacher retirement.

A total of $38,364,000 is earmarked for secondary roads and city streets, $13,945,000 for public welfare, of which $4,788,000 is for old age pensions and relief.

$537,000 for State Police

Specific recommendations in the Governor's budget to better State services include an appropriation of $537,000 for the Department of State Police for construction of a training school, pistol range building, additions, alterations to new buildings and a radio building extension.

Describing the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg as facing "a serious problem of discipline as well as student morale" because of the growth of the town and limited facilities for college students "for essential social contacts," Tuck asked $200,000 for a building for student activities and recreational facilities.

At the University of Virginia, Tuck wants money for a geography building, and asks that one million dollars be conditionally appropriated for a new medical center. At Virginia Polytechnic Institute, an engineering laboratory, new greenhouses, an animal processing laboratory and storage plant were asked, plus $1,359,553 in conditional appropriations which would include money for a new student hospital.

Tuck took notice of the State's health problem with requests for substantial capital outlays at tuberculosis sanatoria. He pointed out that 10 years ago, "more than half of the tuberculosis patients in Virginia could be treated as ambulatory cases," while today "the situation has been reversed and requests for admission are coming from patients who require bed care."

Blue Ridge Projects

At Blue Ridge Sanatorium, he is asking funds for fireproof infirmary additions, nurses' home additions, staff cottages, plus improved maintenance facilities.

At Catawba Sanatorium, he wants a 420-bed building, plus substantial allocations for projects already authorized.

Tuck called for construction of a new fireproof infirmary at Piedmont Sanatorium as "of prime importance" and asked for additional funds for this work. He also asked for a new nurses' home, and for additional funds to finance staff housing.

Pointing out that Piedmont Sanatorium is the only State-supported tuberculosis hospital for Negroes, Tuck asked a conditional appropriation of $2,500,000 to provide a new Negro sanatorium in the eastern section of the State to serve "a large section of our population now unprovided for."

At the Central State Hospital, Tuck wants to spend about $400,000 to alleviate conditions in the building now housing the criminally insane. Built for a capacity of 75, the building now is caring for 200 patients of this type. Also asked was $500,000 to remove tuberculosis patients from temporary structures into a modern building, and a conditional appropriation of $1,147,640 for other major improvements.

Funds to finance projects already authorized at Eastern, Southwestern and Western State Hospitals in Virginia also were asked by Governor Tuck. In addition, $1,160,600 in conditional appropriations was asked at Southwestern for projects including a new administration building, an employes' building and fireproofing and remodeling present wards. At Western, a conditional appropriation of $1,420,000 in additional funds for a new hospital and for improvements to the laundry was asked.

Approximately $1,700,000 in improvement funds for the State's penal institutions also were requested in the budget.

The budget was described by Tuck as "conservative" in its provisions for additional personnel, but $1,750,000 was asked to maintain pay rates "which are fair to the taxpayer and to the State employes alike."

Virginia Assembly Gets Bills Raising Taxes for Big Budget

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19.—Both houses of the Virginia General Assembly today received six identical tax bills designed to help finance the record budget asked by Governor William M. Tuck.

The Governor's tax bills would raise individual and corporation income taxes, boost retail and wholesale merchants' license taxes, raise franchise fees for public service corporations, increase the recording tax on deeds and raise the malt beverage tax.

Committee Assignments

The legislators learned of their committee assignments for the 1948 session. Among new assignments were Delegate J. Maynard Magruder of Arlington, who succeeds George M. Warren of Bristol as chairman of the House Committee on Interstate Cooperation; N. C. Bailey of Orange became chairman of the House Labor Committee; D. French Slaughter of Culpeper, who became chairman on Currency and Commerce; L. L. Triplett of Fauquier, who replaced R. B. Davis as chairman of the committee on claims, and Frank B. Beazley of Caroline, who became chairman of the Committee on Federal Relations and Resolutions.

There was ample evidence today that the 1948 General Assembly sessions would see controversies in both houses over legislation already introduced.

One bill expected to be contested was entered in the House by J. Maynard Magruder, carrying the anme also of four cosponsorse. The measure, favored by the Virginia Banking Association and opposed by the Bank of Virginia (Morris Plan), would freeze further expansion of intercity branch banking.

A bill to permit referendums leading to the recall of school trustees and division school superintendants, and another to abolish the integrated bar were introduced by John S. Boatwright of Buckingham.

Peace Resolution

A joint resolution calling on Congress to urge the United Nations to organize a federation of the world as the only alternative to an endless succession of wars was introduced in the House of Delegates by Bailey.

A flurry of partisanship came during Senate proceedings today when one of two Republican members, Senator Ted Dalton of Radford, said he was dissatisfied because the Finance Committee listed only one Republican, Senator Floyd Landreth of Galax.

Senator John S. Battle, chairman of the steering committee and of the Finance Committee, countered by pointing out that 50 per cent of the Republican Senate strength was represented on the committee, with Democratic representation only 40 per cent of the party's Senate strength.

Ten-Point Program Sent To Assembly

Members of the Arlington delegation to the Virginia General Assembly yesterday received a 10-point program of legislation which the Better Government League would like to see enacted into law during this year's Assembly sessions.

Included in the program is indorsement of Governor Tuck's financial program, which omits a sales tax and increases rates on current taxes.

Other points in the program are repeal of the poll tax as a requirement for voting; opposition to a requirement for re-registration; indorsement of a nonpartisan primary election bill for local government; indorsement of repeal of poll tax requirement for the first year of residence in a case where a person moves into the State after the first of the year; approval of a move to give Arlington the same authority to levy taxes as are available to cities in Virginia; indorsement of legislation providing a full-time assessor appointed by the County Board instead of the three-member board now appointed by the Circuit Court; approval of authority for the County Board to appoint a board of zoning appeals, now appointed by Circuit Court; support of adequate and fair rent control legislation; and re-enactment of the Public Works Statute of 1933 without the provision requiring contributions by the Federal Government.

3 Strikers Are Indicted In Fairfax

Fairfax County grand jury yesterday indicted three Fairlington strikers jointly on two charges of felonious assault growing out of incidents at the strikebound apartment development.

The grand jury, however, after what was reported to be the longest deliberation of a Fairfax grand jury in 12 years, failed to complete testimony in the October traffic death of Lemuel B. Morris.

Morris, Republican candidate for county supervisor, died October 27, apparently from injuries suffered in a collision involving a car in which he was riding, being driven by Fred A. Bryan, then county Republican chairman.

Bryan was found guilty of drunken driving by Trial Justice Harry L. Carrico and bound over to the grand jury on a manslaughter charge. The grand jury will reconvene at 10 a. m. Thursday to hear additional medical testimony in the case.

The Fairlington strikers ndicted were Wilbert L. Roberson, 33, of 940 P st. nw.; Wilson Robinson, 48, 3345 King st., Alexandria, and Edward M. Putnam, 24, 635 N. West st., Alexandria. Roberson separately was indicted on a third felonious assault charge. All of the strikers pleaded innocent.

The grand jury, in another case, indicted both George Crosby, 27, of Falls Church, and William O. Myers, a Falls Church carpenter, who testified against Crosby, on felonious assault charges. Both men pleaded innocent.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

It Depends on One's Viewpoint, Doesn't It, Mort?

Mort is 17, and rather bored with friends and relatives who return after prolonged absences to greet him with:

"My—you've grown taller, haven't you?"

The other day Mort met one of his uncles—a short gentleman whom the boy hadn't seen in years. Quite innocently, but with telling effect, the lad exclaimed:

"My—you've grown shorter, haven't you?"

WITH EXCEPTIONS

Joe Thomas of 4402 New Hampshire ave. nw. was walking along 14th st. near Irving the other day when he noticed a stalled taxi in the middle of the street.

The driver was doing everything he could think of to get the vehicle started again—but he wasn't meeting with any success.

As Joe walked on past, he noted that this legend appeared on the rear of the taxi:

"We Go Anywhere Any Time."

DISSENT

A. P. Hynes of 4952 Hurst ter. nw. takes exception to the magazine article which recently undertook to explain the origin of the name of Azusa, Calif.

The magazine said that the residents had thought of "everything from A to Z in the U. S. A." and merely combined those letters.

"Very interesting," comments District Liner Hynes, "but probably untrue. Because Azusa was Azusa long before California was admitted to the U. S. A."

He goes on to say that he's from Azusa, and his mother has been city clerk out there for the past 20 years. That ought to make him something of an expert.

According to Mr. Hynes, natives of Azusa usually believe one of two prevailing explanations of the name's origin:

1. That it was the name of an Indian girl who saved a chief's life.

2. That the name is a combination of Indian and Spanish words meaning "crossing of many trails."

GRAHAM CRACKERS ARE MUCH HEALTHIER

Most doctors recommend plenty of wheat in the diet, but the President's physician appears a bit fed up with it.

THIS CHANGING WORLD

It wasn't too many years ago that the hurdy-gurdy was commonplace on the American scene. But it appears to have gone the way of the buggy whip and the hand-crank telephone.

The Society of Natives' Bob Hoy, 910 E st. nw., is looking for a hurdy-gurdy for use in an Old Timers Night show—but thus far he's had no luck.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital have been received from:

Dennis L. McDowell, 3810 39th st. nw.; Hammond Newton, jr., 1608 Boyle st., Alexandria, Va.; Lois McDuffee, 1105 N. Tuckahoe st., Falls Church, Va.; J. K. Holloway, 8 Midhurst rd., Silver Spring, Md. (cash inclosed); and Richard Leonard, 1228 Savannah st. se.

We've also received a money order inclosed in the following letter:

"We don't have much to offer, although it seemed like a fortune when we were gathering it together 5 cents at a time by giving plays we made up ourselves. But we send along a million good wishes to the sick children, and hope that they will soon be able to get out and play, too."

The letter was signed by 9-year-old Joan Mason of 2015 N. 20th rd., 11-year-old Bill Whitmore and 6-year-old Lana Whitmore of 2013 N. 20th rd., all of Arlington, Va.

PERSONAL NOTES

William D. Haight, 214 Massachusetts ave. ne.: President Garfield was assassinated in the old railroad station which stood on the present site of the National Gallery of Art. The Library of Congress says that a plaque formerly marked the spot, but has since been removed. By the way—are you one of Walter Haight's numerous relatives?

Harriet K. Doyle, 1731 Lyman pl. ne.: The term "just outside Cleveland" was used to indicate that 21 miles is not much of a ride. I couldn't possibly walk that far—unless I had a golf bag on my back.

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments

Help You To

GROW THICKER HAIR

(Hopeless Cases Not Accepted)

R. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special, gentle, but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.

Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!

After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.

Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!

Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!

Once it has set in, your chance for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Pauley Acts Now Involve Krug

By Drew Pearson

It looks like Ed Pauley has an innate and unhappy faculty for leaving muddy tracks wherever he walks. He is now about to muddy up the financial life of another Cabinet member, this time Secretary of the Interior Julius A. Krug.

Pearson

Krug, a former University of Wisconsin football star, has long hankered to get an interest in a professional football team, and last summer worked out a deal with William Levy, the Louisville, Ky., department store man, to purchase a 5 per cent interest in the Los Angeles Rams. It cost him $7500.

The remaining interest in the team is owned by Levy, with 20 per cent, and the Reeves chain store family, with 75 per cent.

However, the Rams haven't been making money. And the Reeves family proposes selling one half its share to Ed Pauley, which would give him 37½ per cent and virtual control.

This in turn makes business partners out of Pauley and the Cabinet member who has to pass on millions of dollars' worth of Pauley's tidewater oil lands.

For, by a recent Supreme Court decree, submerged tidelands oil lands are now the property of the Federal Government.

Pauley is no small operator. His holdings of tidelands oil run into millons. In fact, he was the man who helped collect around $300,000 in campaign contributions for the Democratic Party in the hope that the Democrats would keep the tidelands oil under State control (which incidentally Truman did not do).

Now that tidelands, or submerged oil, has reverted to the Federal Government, some ticklish problems have to be settled regarding the companies which are still operating as virtual squatters on the forbidden territory. And Krug, charged with protecting the oil lands of the Nation, has to pass upon the leases of his new football parner.

Result: Krug may sell out his share in the Los Angeles Rams. He doesn't want to, because it would mean a loss, and no man who has to live on a Government salary can afford to take a loss. But nevertheless, he may have to do it.

In other words, it's tough to be a Government servant these days—especially when Ed Pauley keeps tracking mud.

More Friendship Trains

A total of six friendship projects are now being organized by patriotic citizens in different parts of the Nation. They will have an important impact on Europe. In fact, no money value can measure the good will they will spread—especially if American citizens accompany the food and apply the old, old principle that the gift without the giver is bare.

Here are the six friendship projects:

1. New England Friend Ship—The SS Eucadia has sailed from Boston for Glasgow with 1200 tons of food and clothing for Scotland. This was collected from all over New England when the mainline Friendship Train was not able to go through that part of the country.

2. Abraham Lincoln Friendship Train—Will start from Lincoln, Nebr., and Springfield, Ill., on February 12 with cars collected from all over the Middle West. Chancellor Gus Gustavson of the University of Nebraska is helping sparkplug the train with Carl Sandburg, Lincoln's famous biographer, as general chairman. The Church World Service and churches of all denominations are cooperating.

3. Northwest Friend Ship—The SS Gretna Victory with about five million pounds of food and clothing will sail from Seattle about February 1. This was collected by the people of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Alaska after the mainline Friendship Train was unable to go through the Northwest. The State Department has recommended that this ship go to Germany and Austria which hitherto have not received friendship visits. It has not yet been decided whether any Northwest citizens will go with the food.

4. Michigan Friendship Caravan—The Junior Chamber of Commerce in about 70 Michigan cities have done a great job of collecting 1000 tons of food for France. Originally it was planned as a motor-truck caravan, but when not enough trucks were available the New York Central Railroad patriotically helped out. In Detroit 5000 grocers helped collect the food. The Jaycees are sending five men to France to interpret the spirit of Michigan friendship.

5. California Milk Ship—Governor Warren of California who rode on the Friendship Train all through his State and who did so much to help start the original train is sending California's maritime training ship Golden Bear on a good-will mission carrying canned milk. The ship has to take a cruise anyway, so the Governor thought it would be a fine idea to pick up cases of canned milk and carry them to the children of France, Italy and Greece.

One hundred young California cadets, including Earl Warren, jr., will sail with the ship as ambassadors of good will.

6. North Carolina "Friend Ship"—The North Carolina Council of Churches is endeavoring to raise a shipload of clothing during the week of January 25-31. Every county in North Carolina has set up a committee and is working to take care of one of Europe's greatest needs—clothing. Their slogan is "Fill a Ship With Friendship."

Hot Water in Palestine

Irving Geist and Louis Nizer of the National Conference of Jews and Christians called on President Truman last week. The conversation turned to Palestine. Truman explained that he favored an international police force, made up of token armies from the member United Nations.

"You have to have a police force," he smiled, "even in Washington, D. C."

Nizer remarked that the situation reminded him of the man with neuritis who paid $100 for medical advice. He was instructed to soak his right arm in hot water, but his maid insisted cold water would be better. When the hot water gave no relief, he tried the maid's advice and it worked. The next day he protested to his doctor, telling how his maid had recommended cold water.

"That's funny," mused the doctor, "my maid said hot water."

The President chuckled.

"That's about the size of it," he admitted. "Maybe that's the reason we get into so much hot water."

Note—Truman told Geist, who possesses the Legion of Merit, that he hopes to make this medal the Nation's highest award.

Wedding present

A wedding present is a gift . . . Of silver or of gold . . . Or something less expensive for . . . The bride and groom to hold . . . It speaks congratulations on . . . Their wonderful event . . . With every hope that they will be . . . For evermore content . . . It is a sort of wishing well . . . That never will run dry . . . Provided it is treasured as . . . The days go rolling by . . .
